On the 5th May 1911, an Agreement was signed between His Britannic Majesty's Government and the Chinese Government, which embodied Great Britain's effort to show a practical appreciation of the recommendations of the 1909 Commission. By this Agreement the work of an earlier agreement (1907) was hastened so as to bring the import trade of opium from India to an end pari passu with the progress of the Chinese Government in stopping the production of opium in China. As a result of this Agreement, the formerly legitimate foreign opium trade in China came entirely to an end on the 31st December 1917. India, I am say, thereby sacrificed revenue amounting to several million pounds sterling.

International Opium Convention, 1912.

Meanwhile, on the 1st December 1911, an International Opium Conference met at The Hague, again on the initiative of the United States of America, and on that Conference I had the honour to represent the British Empire. The aim of this Conference, as stated in the preamble to the Convention it drew up, was to advance a step further on the road opened by the International Commission of 1909, and to bring about the gradual suppression of the abuse of opium, morphine and cocaine, as also of the drugs prepared or derived therefrom which give rise to similar abuses. This Conference was more formal in character than the 1909 Commission, whose functions had been merely advisory. The delegates at The Hague Conference were empowered to sign a Convention, which was to have the force of a treaty. The following Powers were represented :—United States of America, China, France, Germany, Great Britain, Netherlands, Italy, Japan, Persia, Portugal, Siam and Russia. On the 23rd January 1912 the International Opium Convention was signed. The principal articles in the Convention are as follows :—

(1) Raw Opium—The contracting Powers undertake to enact laws for the control of the production and distribution of raw opium, and to limit the number of ports through which export and import shall be permitted.

(2) Prepared Opium.—The contracting Powers will take measures for the gradual and effective suppression of the manufacture of, internal trade in, and use of prepared opium. They will prohibit the import and export of prepared opium, except as regards those Powers which are not ready to prohibit it immediately : and even they undertake strictly to regulate the traffic and prohibit it as soon as possible.

(3) Medicinal Opium, Morphine, Cocaine, Heroin, &c.—The contracting Powers will enact pharmacy laws to confine the manufacture, sale and use of such drugs to medicinal and legitimate purposes. They will co-operate with one another to prevent the use of these drugs for any other purposes. Every effort will be taken to regulate the import and export, and to prevent these drugs coming into the possession of unauthorised persons ; they will not be exported from the territories of one contracting Powers to those of another, except when consigned to persons furnished with the licences or permits provided for by the laws or regulations of the importing countries.

A special Chapter is devoted to the trade with China, in which the contracting Powers undertake to reduce pari passu with measures taken by China itself the opium shops and dens in foreign territories, concessions and settlements in China ; and to prevent smuggling and illegal use of postal facilities in that country.

The contracting Powers were to examine the possibility of making it a penal offence to be found in illegal possession of opium and kindred drugs.

They are to communicate to one another, through the Ministry for Foreign Affairs of the Netherlands, the text of existing laws, or future laws and regulations, and statistical information bearing on the subject. Any Power not represented at the Conference was to be invited by the Netherlands Government to sign the Convention.

Finally, the Netherlands Government were to invite all the Powers, and not merely those represented at the Conference, to ratify the Convention with its protocol. As soon as the ratifications had been deposited, the Netherlands Government were to notify all the Powers, and the Convention was to come into force three months after the date upon which the last ratification had been deposited. Laws, regulations and other measures arising out of the Convention were to be prepared not later than six months after the entry into force of the Convention ; and the date on which these laws, regulations, &c., were to come into force was to be arranged by the Powers concerned, at the instance of the Netherlands Government.

By the protocol to this Convention the Conference expressed its wish (1) to direct the attention of the Universal Postal Union to the urgency of regulating the transmission through the post of raw opium, morphine, cocaine, &c., and of prohibiting the transmission of prepared opium ; and (2) to study the question of Indian hemp, with the object of regulating its abuses.

An article of the Convention provided for the assembling of a further Conference in the event of delay in obtaining the signatures of all the Powers invited. Accordingly a second International Opium Conference met in 1913, and decided that although certain Powers who had been invited to sign the Convention had not then done so, the deposit of the ratifications might nevertheless take place. A third Conference was held at The Hague on the 15th-16th June 1914. By that time 44 out of 46 Powers had decided to sign the Convention ; 11 of the former had already ratified, 14 more were disposed to do so, while not one of the remaining 19 signatories had expressed any intention of not proceeding to put the Convention into force. The non-signatories were Turkey (for economic reasons) and Serbia (because she had been unable to study it sufficiently).

The points secured by the Third Conference were as follows :—

(1) An all but unanimous expression of opinion on the part of the signatory Powers represented in favour of the Convention coming into force without awaiting the signature by the remaining two invited Powers. Germany alone opposed this resolution.

(2) An absolutely unanimous request to the Netherlands Government to press for early ratification by all the signatory Powers which had not yet ratified in order that the Convention might come into force as soon as possible.

(3) A recognition by the Conference, although with several abstentions, of the feasibility of enforcement by a group of Powers who might be ready to co-operate for that purpose without awaiting the automatic enforcement of the Convention (provided for in Article 24) after ratification by all the signatory Powers. The date as from which such group enforcement might take place was fixed as the 31st December 1914, and a special protocol was to be provided for Powers desiring to co-operate to this end for signature by them.

The Netherlands Ministry for Foreign Affairs was unanimously requested to make urgent representations to all signatory Powers to complete their ratifications in order that the Convention might come into force as soon as possible.

At the time of the Third Conference Great Britain had not yet ratified the Convention owing to technical difficulties concerning the signature and ratification on behalf of the various Dominions and Colonies ; these difficulties, however, had ceased to exist, and the British delegates were instructed to inform the Conference that His Majesty's Government would deposit the instruments of ratification as soon as the necessary formalities had been carried out. Unfortunately the outbreak of the war suspended progress in this promising experiment in international legislation.

The Opium Convention and the Versailles Treaty, 1919.

By Article 295 of the Treaty of Peace with Germany it is provided that those of the high contracting parties who have not yet signed or who have signed, but not yet ratified, the Opium Convention signed at The Hague on the 23rd January 1912, agree to bring the said Convention into force, and for this purpose to enact the necessary legislation without delay, and in any case within a period of 12 months from the coming into force of the treaty. Furthermore, they agree that ratification of the treaty should, in the case of Powers which have not yet ratified the Opium Convention, be deemed in all respects equivalent to the ratification of that Convention and to the signature of a special protocol, which was opened at The Hague in accordance with the resolutions adopted by the Third Opium Conference in 1914 for bringing the said Convention into force. For this purpose the Government of the French Republic was to communicate to the Netherlands Government a certified copy of the protocol of the deposit of ratifications of the Versailles Treaty and to invite the Government of the Netherlands to accept and deposit the said certified copy as if it were a deposit of ratifications of the Opium Convention and a signature of the additional protocol of 1914.

According to Article 23 (c) of the Covenant of the League of Nations, the members of the League "will entrust the League with the general supervision over the execution of agreements with regard to the traffic in women and children, and the traffic in opium and other dangerous drugs."

Similar provisions apear in the treaties with Austria (Treaty of Saint-Germain, Article 247), with Hungary (Treaty of the Trianon, Article 230), with Bulgaria (Treaty of Neuilly, Article 174) and with Turkey (Treaty of Sèvres, Article 280). This last is of special interest, as Turkey was one of the Powers which had refused to sign the original Opium Convention.

Signatories of the Opium Convention.

The following Powers signed the Opium Convention as original signatories :—

Germany, United States, China, France, Great Britain, Italy, Japan, Netherlands, Persia, Portugal, Russia, Siam.

The following Powers who were not parties to the Convention signed at the invitation of the Netherlands Government :—

Argentina, Belgium, Bolivia, Brazil, Bulgaria, Chile, Columbia, Costa Rica, Cuba, Denmark, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Spain, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, Luxemburg, Mexico, Montenegro, Nicaragua, Norway, Panama, Paraguay, Peru, Roumania, Salvador, Sweeden, Switzerland, Uruguay, Venezuela.

The following Powers, which had not signed before, became signatories through the signing of one or more of the Treaties of Versailles, Saint-Germain, Trianon, Neuilly, and Sèvres :—

The Hedjaz, Liberia, Poland, the Serb-Croat-Slovene State, Czecho-Slovakia, Armenia, Turkey, Austria, Hungary, Greece ; also the British Dominions and India, which in respect of The Hague Convention itself were represented by Great Britain.

Ratification of the Opium Convention.

The following Powers have independently ratified the Opium Convention :—

United States of America, Belgium, China, Denmark, Ecuador, Guatemala, Italy, Portugal, Siam, Brazil, Sweeden, Venezuela, Honduras, Netherlands, Spain, Norway, Uruguay, Great Britain, Nicaragua.

The following Powers have ratified the Opium Convention through ratification of one or more of the Treaties of Versailles, Saint-Germain, and Neuilly :—

France, Japan, Bolivia, Cuba, Greece, Haiti, Liberia, Panama, Peru, Poland, Roumania, the Serb-Croat-Slovene State, Czecho-Slovakia, Germany, Austria, Bulgaria ; also the British Dominions and India.

Of the States which have now signed the Opium Convention in one form or another the following do not yet appear to have ratified :—

The Hedjaz, Persia, Chile, Argentina, Luxemburg, Mexico, Costa Rica, Dominican Republic, Salvador, Columbia, Paraguay, Turkey, Hungary, Armenia, Switzerland.

The following newly-recognised, or not yet recognised, Powers have not signed the Opium Convention :—

Finland, Latvia, Lithuania, Esthonia, Georgia, Azerbaijan, Soviet Russia.

It may interest the Committee to know what steps have in the meanwhile been taken in the British Empire for action in accordance with the terms of the Convention.

The British Dangerous Drugs Act, 1920.

So far as the United Kingdom is concerned, legislative sanction was obtained for enforcing the terms of the Opium Convention by the Dangerous Drugs Act (10-11 Geo. V., Ch. 46), which came into operation on the 1st September 1920. The principal articles of the Act may be summarised as follows :—

(1) Raw Opium.—Export and import entirely forbidden except under licence and through approved ports. Power to make regulations for controlling or restricting production, possession, sale and distribution of raw opium.

(2) Prepared Opium.—Export and import entirely forbidden ; the manufacture, possession, sale and use of prepared opium, and possession of opium-smoking utensils, made a penal offence.

[APP. III., ANNEX 6—contd.] 78

(3) Cocaine, Morphine. &c.—Import and export prohibited except under licence. Power to make regulations for controlling manufacture, sale, possession and distribution, &c., of these drugs.

Heavy penalties are provided for infringement of the Act, and provision made for inspection of the premises and books of those engaged in the manufacture, sale, &c., of the drugs.

Action taken in the British Empire generally.

Furthermore, regulations for restricting the traffic are being brought into effect and strengthened, where necessary, in the self-governing Dominions and other parts of the British Empire; and information regarding these regulations is being collected and will be communicated in accordance with Article 21 of the Convention. As regards India, substantial effect has been given to the provisions of The Hague Convention, and the Government of India have been asked by His Majesty's Government to examine the whole body of law and procedure and make such alterations and amendments as may be necessary to bring it into precise agreement with the provisions of The Hague Convention.

Action taken by British Foreign Office.

Lord Curzon in a circular-despatch of 22nd March 1920, drew the attention of His Majesty's Representatives abroad to the obligations incurred under the Opium Convention. His Lordship went on to state that there is reason to believe that, in spite of the efforts of His Majesty's Government and of the other Governments concerned, morphia produced in the United Kingdom is at present reaching the Far East in quantities largely in excess of the amount required for legitimate purposes, and His Majesty's Government are therefore of opinion that it is desirable that steps should be taken forthwith to regulate the export to all countries, whether their Governments are parties to the Opium Convention or not, of the drugs specified in Chapter 3 of the Convention. An arrangement has been made by His Majesty's Government with the United States, French and Japanese Governments whereby no consignment of morphia, or kindred drugs, is allowed to be exported from the United Kingdom to any of the countries in question except on the production of a certificate from the Government concerned stating that it is satisfied that the consignment is required exclusively for legitimate medical or scientific purposes, and will not be re-exported.

His Majesty's Representatives were instructed that it was desired to extend this system as widely as possible, and that the various Governments were to be approached with a view to ascertaining whether they would be prepared to enter into a similar arrangement with His Majesty's Government, without prejudice to any legislation of a stricter nature which they might introduce at a later date, in regard to their imports from the United Kingdom of medical opium and other deleterious drugs. At the same time they were warned that in the event of any country being unwilling to adopt this proposal, His Majesty's Government might be obliged to refuse licences. Replies to this circular have been received from 13 countries, and, although they raise a variety of different points which are now being dealt with, they are all favourable in character. The question of the adoption of similar arrangements by other parts of the British Empire has been recently submitted to the Governments and administrative authorities concerned for their consideration.

Action taken under the Postal Union Convention.

Finally, with reference to the Protocol of the 1912 Opium Convention, and the desire therein expressed that the Universal Postal Union should take steps to regulate the transmission of opium and kindred drugs through the post, it may be noted that under the terms of the present Postal Union Convention it is forbidden to send by post any article whatsoever of which the importation or circulation is prohibited by the country of destination. Many postal administrations, including the Chinese, prohibit or restrict under regulation the importation by post of opium and kindred drugs.

I now come to the letter from the Netherlands Minister in London to the Secretary-General which is among our papers and has placed the matter before the Assembly and this Committee. After discussion of the previous conditions, which I have covered somewhat more fully in my own remarks, the Netherlands Government points out that, under the Convention, it had various honourable and special duties attaching to it. As regards ratification, it considers that the steps which have culminated in the recent Treaties have practically solved the matter. There remains the task laid upon the Netherlands Government as an intermediary through which the different Powers will communicate to each other the regulations and measures connected with opium, &c., as well as statistical data bearing on the matter. Also the duty entrusted to it by Article 24 of The Hague Convention of initiating fresh negotiations, where necessary, in respect of questions arising in connection with future concerted action. The Netherlands Government, as I think very justly, holds that the establishment of the League of Nations and the provisions made under Articles 23 (c) and 24 of the Covenant should now be held to relieve it of the duties which it has hitherto so honourably and efficiently performed; in fact, it should pass over to the League the duties imposed on it by The Hague Convention.

The letter ends with the proposals (1) that the States which are especially interested in the campaign against opium shall be represented on the Committee entrusted with the preparation of a report on the opium question, and (2) that this Committee shall be instructed to submit to the Assembly a proposal for the organisation of he work to be accomplished by the League of Nations, in this matter, having special regard to the provisions of the Opium Convention.

The first proposal has already been met by the establishment of the present Committee, which included representatives of all the Members of the League of Nations. The second is one which the Committee must now take up and discuss. I suggest that there are two alternatives. (a) That the work of supervising the execution of the International Opium Agreements be left entirely to the Council of the League with the assistance of its Secretariat, reports being made from time-to time to the Assembly. (b) It might be desirable to appoint a special commission representing the Members of the League most interested in opium matters, to assist the Council and the Secretariat in this matter. The principal States interested are, I suggest, Great Britain, France, the Netherlands, India, China, Japan and Siam. I do not consider it incumbent on me as reporter to express myself in favour of one or other of these alternatives. I leave that to the decision of the Committee.

We have of course to face the difficulty that the United States and Germany are not yet Members of the League, but it would surely be possible to move those Governments to forward to the League Secretariat the information which they would otherwise, by Article 21 of the Opium Convention, have to submit to the Netherlands Government. If they should take exception to this they could still address the Netherlands Government, which would in turn pass the information on to the League Secretariat.

(Signed) W. S. MEYER.

Annex 7.—Report of Committee No. II. on Item 18 of the Agenda : "Passports for Members of the Secretariat of the League of Nations."

Mr. President, Gentlemen,

The draft resolution which the Second Committee has the honour to present to you has been prepared by a sub-committee composed as follows :—France (M. Hanotaux, Chairman) ; British Empire (Mr. Barnes) ; Spain (M. Quiñones de Léon) ; Uruguay (M. Fernandez y Medina) ; Serb-Croat-Slovene State (M. Politch, Rapporteur). The resolution has been considered and adopted unanimously by the Second Committee, presided over by M. Jonescu. The following is an account of the matter.

On the invitation of the Council of the League of Nations, the Secretary-General submitted to the Provisional Committee for Communications and Transit a memorandum on the question of the application of passport formalities to the officials of the League of Nations, with reference to the provisions of Article 7 of the Covenant of the League of Nations. This Article lays down that officials of the League of Nations shall enjoy diplomatic immunities and seems to imply that the officials of the League should hold passports of a diplomatic character.

The Secretary-General pointed out that the issue, in the usual form, of diplomatic passports by the various States to officials of the League is attended by serious disadvantages both of a practical and a general nature.

From a practical point of view, the necessity for officials of the League (who often have to undertake at short notice journeys to different countries on special missions with which they are entrusted) to obtain a diplomatic visa on every occasion would have a detrimental effect upon the normal working of the Secretariat, and especially now, since the League of Nations has been installed at Geneva.

On the other hand, it would be contrary to the spirit of a purely international institution such as the Secretariat of the League of Nations, if the fact that these officials were entrusted with missions of an international character should imply the consent—in the form of passports—of the States to which the members belonged.

With this memorandum before them, the Conference on Passports, Customs Formalities and Through Tickets, decided at its meeting in October last to accept the conclusions of the Memorandum and to propose that the Secretary-General should be delegated by States Members of the League of Nations to issue special passports to members of the Secretariat and to officials of the League.

These passports would be valid without visa in the territory of all States belonging to the League. Powers other than States Members of the League would be requested to apply to these passports a diplomatic visa.

The Secretary-General of the League of Nations would be responsible for the issue of these passports to their holders and for their withdrawal as soon as the latter ceased to be entitled to them. Permanent passports would be issued by the Secretary-General to the permanent staff of the League, and the temporary staff of the Secretariat would receive passports valid only for the duration of their duties.

A list containing the names of the holders of passports issued or withdrawn would be periodically submitted by the Secretary-General to all the Governments.

The Secretariat-General, when issuing such passports, would take every kind of precaution with regard to the identity of their holders, in agreement with the authorities of the country to which the holder belonged, and also with the Swiss authorities.

The view of the Secretariat-General as well as of the Passport Conference may be definitely summed up as follows :—

Diplomatic passports valid without visa should be issued by the Secretary-General.

Your Committee considered that while there is no doubt that Article 7 of the Covenant grants to officials of the League the enjoyment of diplomatic privileges and immunities during the discharge of their duties, nevertheless the proposed formula, if it were not modified, would give rise to difficulties of a legal and practical nature.

From the legal point of view the issue of a passport is an administrative act, an act of sovereignty and authority. Now it is evident that the League of Nations is not a State possessing sovereignty of its own, as it is obvious that there can be no "national" of the Secretary-General.

On the other hand, it is not possible for States to delegate one of their rights of sovereignty to the Secretary-General by means of a resolution passed by the Assembly ; this would necessitate a new international agreement, which would have to be submitted for ratification by Governments concerned.

For these reasons the Committee, though fully realising the importance of the practical considerations put forward by the Secretary-General, does not feel able to adopt his scheme; it proposes, however, that he should be authorised to furnish members of the Secretariat with identity cards, at sight of which the Government of which the holder is a national will issue a diplomatic passport, or cause it to be issued by any of its diplomatic representatives, or by its consular agent at Geneva. The period for which such a passport is valid will depend on the nature of the duties entrusted to each agent by the Secretary-General.

Seeing that diplomatic passports issued to diplomatic representatives require to be vise, the Committee considers it unavoidable that visas should be reintroduced for members of the Secretariat.

In view of these considerations, we venture to submit for your approval the following Resolution:—

The Assembly of the League of Nations, after having considered the draft Resolution regarding passports for members of the Secretariat and officials of the League of Nations.

After having heard the Report of the Rapporteur of the Commission, Dr. Ladislas Politch, delegate of the Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, has adopted the following Resolution:—

"The Secretary-General of the League of Nations shall deliver to members of the Secretariat and officials of the League an identity card certifying the identity of the holder and the nature of his official duties. On presentation of this card and at the request of the Secretary-General, the Government of which the holder is a national shall deliver or cause to be delivered by any of its diplomatic representatives or by its consular agent at Geneva, a diplomatic passport permitting the official to carry out the mission with which he is entrusted, with the benefit of all privileges and immunities provided for in Article 7 of the Covenant, and valid for the duration of such mission in the limits indicated by the Secretary-General.

"Diplomatic visas will be given gratuitously—Whenever necessary—on the request of the Secretary-General of the League of Nations by the diplomatic or consular agents of the Powers in whose territory the official will be travelling in accomplishment of his mission."

(Signed) LADISLAS POLITCH, Rapporteur.

Annex 8.—Report on the establishment of a Court of International Justice submitted to the Third Committee by Dr. Hagerup on behalf of the Sub-Committee.

(Assembly Document 199.)

The Sub-Committee has devoted conscientious and detailed study to the draft scheme for an International Court of Justice and the different amendments proposed thereto.

It has the honour herewith to submit to the Committee the text which it proposes for the Committee's adoption.* It takes the liberty of accompanying the text with the explanations which follow, and to add the general remark that it has felt bound to make certain slight alterations in the English text to make it correspond as closely as possible with the French text. These alterations being purely in form and language, it does not seem necessary to enter into fuller explanations with regard to them.

The Sub-Committee further desires to make the following general observation: It has not dealt with the question, raised by the Italian Delegation, as to whether the draft should be accompanied by a preamble, for this is connected with the question of the form which the draft is to take (whether it is to be a Convention or whether it is to be simply adopted by the Assembly of the League of Nations).

Article 1 (text adopted by the Council at Brussels, Article 1).—The words "to which Parties shall have direct access" have been deleted, on the ground that, since the provisions of the draft scheme of The Hague with regard to the right of unilateral arraignment have been modified, they involve a certain ambiguity.

The proposal made by the Argentine Delegation to suppress the Permanent Court of Arbitration of The Hague was unanimously rejected by the Sub-Committee. It was thought that this Court would still have a role to fill in certain international disputes which lend themselves more easily to arbitral decision than to an award based on strict rules of law. Further, it was pointed out that the present scheme cannot abolish a Convention signed by several States which are not Members of the League of Nations.

Article 3 (Brussels Article 3).—The Sub-Committee has not adopted the Colombian amendment, which had already been urged before the Committee. Its purpose was to establish a distribution of judges between the different Continents in certain proportions. Such a rule was considered too rigid, and was deemed unnecessary in view of the provision in Article 9 which enables the same result to be obtained by a more flexible rule.

Articles 4 and 5 (Brussels Articles 4 and 5).—It was pointed out that the provisions in these Articles involve the difficulty that not all the Members of the League of Nations are signatories of the Conventions of The Hague relating to the Permanent Court of Arbitration, and consequently that some of them have no national groups in this Court. Several amendments were proposed to meet this difficulty. Some of them assigned to the Governments the right of nominating candidates, either generally or else in the case of those States which are not signatories of the Convention. The Sub-Committee has not adopted any of these amendments. It considered that the nomination should be as far as possible independent of political considerations, and that the Governments which would have to vote on the candidates in the Council and Assembly should not have their hands tied in advance by the nomination of these candidates. Consequently the Sub-Committee decided upon the following solution :—

In countries which have no national groups on the Permanent Court of The Hague, the nomination shall be made by a body consisting of persons appointed for this purpose by their Governments under the same conditions as those presented for members of the said Court.

An Argentine amendment proposed increasing the number of candidates to five. As this question had been very fully discussed by the Jurists' Committee at The Hague, the Sub-Committee decided that it should not alter the solution adopted in the draft scheme.

Article 6 (Brussels Article 6).—There were certain doubts in the Sub-Committee as to the utility of retaining this Article. It was pointed out that in several countries it would be difficult, if not impossible, to comply with its provisions. On the other hand, the fact was emphasised that the question here was one of a mere recommendation which, if followed, would provide a kind of guarantee for the choice of the most competent persons. This being the case, the Sub-Committee thought it should not suppress the Article.

Article 8 (Brussels Article 8).—An Italian amendment proposed laying down the rule that elections in the Council and Assembly should take place simultaneously. The Sub-Committee did not adopt this amendment, which would make it impossible to establish the necessary contact between the two bodies in the election.

Article 9 (Brussels Article 9).—The Sub-Committee has replaced the words "veillent à ce que" by "auront en vue que" to effect a closer conformity between the French and English texts, the latter of which seems the more exact expression of the idea of the authors of the draft scheme.

Article 10 (Brussels Article 10).—On the proposal of the Canadian delegate, the Sub-Committee has altered the second paragraph of this Article to make it clear that it is essential for the proper application of this provision, not that the persons elected should be merely of the same nationality, but that they should be subjects of the same Member of the League of Nations.

Article 12 (Brussels Article 12).—On the suggestion of the British delegate, the Sub-Committee has slightly modified the wording of the third paragraph so as to empower the joint conference, in case a first attempt to reconcile the diverging opinions does not succeed, to proceed to repeated nominations of candidates until it becomes evident that it cannot arrive at any result.

On the other hand, the Sub-Committee thought that there was no sufficient reason for increasing the number of members of the Joint Conference to 10, as proposed by the British delegate, when the number of States permanently represented on the Council is increased in conformity with Article 4 of the Covenant.

Article 14 (Brussels Article 14).—A British amendment proposed the deletion of the last sentence of this Article. In support of this amendment, reference was made to the inconvenience of electing judges for a term which might be very short and to the possible difficulty of finding a competent candidate willing to accept election under these conditions. Mention was also made of the danger to the continuity of the work of the Court involved in a complete and simultaneous renewal of all the seats. On the other side, it was urged that the second sentence of Article 14 was intimately connected with the system designed in the draft to establish an equitable distribution of the seats between the different parts of the world. The Sub-Committee held that this last consideration was conclusive.

Article 16 (Brussels Article 16).—Both the form and principle of this Article were criticised. It was pointed out that the provision lacked clearness and that the English text, particularly, was difficult to understand and to apply. As for the principle, it was observed that the Article did not go far enough in determining cases of incompatibility.

The Italian delegate proposed a new paragraph for the Article, to the following effect :—

"The function of a member of Parliament shall not be considered as belonging to the political direction of States, within the meaning of this Article."

The Sub-Committee, while rejecting this amendment, was nevertheless unanimous in recognising that the exercise of the function of judge by members of a Parliament as in the House of Lords in England ("Law Lords") should not be incompatible with the duties of a member of the Court.

The Sub-Committee has adopted the following text :—

"Members of the Court may not hold any political or administrative office or post."

Article 18 (Brussels Article 18).—An Italian amendment proposed that for the dismissal of a judge unanimity on the part of the other judges should not be required, but merely a strong majority.

The Sub-Committee considered that unanimity alone was a sufficient guarantee against the possibility of undue influence upon a resolution of so grave a character as that in question.

The Sub-Committee has added to the second paragraph of the Article the words "by the Registrar," to avoid the implication that the President of the Court must personally give the notification required in this paragraph.

Article 19 (Brussels Article 19).—The Sub-Committee has given this Article a wording corresponding to that of Ariele 7 of the Covenant, where the question of the immunities of officials of the League of Nations is dealt with.

The Sub-Committee was of opinion that the question of the situation of judges in their own countries should not be prejudiced by the solution adopted.

Article 23 (Brussels Article 23).—With regard to the provisions in the first two paragraphs of this Article, the question was raised in the Sub-Committee whether a date should be fixed in the text for the commencement of the ordinary Session of the Court, or whether it was not better to leave to the President the duty of convening the Court on a suitable date. In this connection a proposal was made to delete the second paragraph and substitute for the first paragraph the following text :—

"An ordinary session, to be convoked by the President, shall be held every year."

The Sub-Committee has thought fit to retain the original of the Article. It was thought that it would be of advantage to persons who might be nominated as judges, as well as to all those who might have recourse to this tribunal, to know in advance exactly when the ordinary sessions would commence.

The Swiss Delegate had proposed the following addition to the third paragraph :—

"Particularly when a dispute is submitted to it under Article 12 of the Covenant."

The Sub-Committee considered that the words "whenever necessary" have sufficient scope to cover any hypothesis.

Article 24 (Brussels Article 24).—In the first paragraph the Sub-Committee has substituted the words "should not" for "cannot" in order to make it clear that the circumstances contemplated are not merely such as render it impossible for a judge to perform his duties, but such as impose on him a moral duty to retire.

Article 25 (Brussels Article 25).—An Italian amendment proposed adding to this Article the following provisions :—

"The quorum of nine, however, is sufficient to constitute the Court, without prejudice to the right of each party to demand that the argument and decision of the case shall be deferred until 11 judges are present."

The Sub-Committee preferred not to give the parties this influence on the composition of the Court.

Article 26 (British amendments Article 26 bis).—Apart from international disputes which may, in a general way, arise out of Labour questions, the Treaty of Versailles, Articles 416, 418 and 423, specifically provides that the Permanent Court of Justice shall have jurisdiction to deal with certain disputes which may occur in connection with the performance of duties imposed by the International Labour Conventions ; there are similar provisions in other Treaties of Peace. These disputes may present features which are not of an exclusively legal character ; and in order to provide a guarantee that the Court shall be able to adjudicate in the cases with full knowledge of all the various factors which must be taken into account, and at the same time to gain for the Court the full confidence of the peoples, it has been thought desirable to take special measures with regard to these cases. M. Albert Thomas, Director of the International Labour Office, has proposed adding, for the settlement of these questions, to the regular judges of the Court, judges chosen from amongst persons of known competence in Labour legislation and social questions. The Sub-Committee has not thought it possible to go so far. It has considered that it would be sufficient, to attain the desired end, to give these experts, as suggested in a British proposal, the character of assessors, who shall take their place beside the judges and deliberate with them in an advisory capacity, but without taking part in the decision itself. This solution, moreover, is in conformity with a proposal made by M. Albert Thomas in a letter dated 20th February 1920, addressed to the Secretary-General of the League of Nations.

With regard to the choice of these assessors, it must be borne in mind that in the different questions which may be submitted to the Court by virtue of the Treaties mentioned above, the special competence required may not always be of the same character. When it is necessary to decide what sanction must be provided for the Convention in relation to a State which has not performed its duty, the expert required by the Court will, in the first place, be a person with financial or economic knowledge, whereas in considering questions relating particularly to Labour it will be advisable to have the points of view of the employers as well as of the workmen explained in the Court. The Sub-Committee has tried to take these considerations into account in the text which it now submits.

Both the British proposal and that of M. Thomas set up a special Chamber of the Court for these cases, consisting of a smaller number of ordinary judges than that provided in Article 25 of the draft. These judges will be appointed for three years, in order to ensure that they will acquire special competence in the questions concerned, and that the jurisprudence of the Court may with a greater amount of certainty maintain continuity.

As, however, some members of the Committee pointed out with considerable emphasis that it would be more difficult to realise the principles laid down in Article 9 of the draft when the number of judges taking part in a decision is considerably reduced, the Sub-Committee has given the Chamber power to adjudicate only on the request of the parties. In the absence of such request, the Court will sit with the ordinary number of judges. But in any case, the judges will be assisted by assessors in conformity with the rules explained above.

Article 27 (British amendments Article 26 ter).—Similar considerations to those appealed to in connection with the rules of Article 26 also apply in cases relating to Transit and Communications, particularly in the questions mentioned in Part 12 (Ports, Waterways, Railways) of the Treaty of Versailles, and the corresponding parts of the other Peace Treaties. In these matters as well, the questions which the Court will have to decide will generally be of a very technical character, which may make co-operation with experts highly desirable. For these reasons, the Sub-Committee has felt bound to adopt a British proposal to lay down for these cases rules analogous to those of Article 26.

Article 28 (British amendments Article 26 quarter).—In certain cases it may be an advantage to give the Court the power of meeting in a place other than The Hague for the settlement of the questions mentioned in Article 26 and Article 27. In proposing to give the Court this power, the Sub-Committee assumes that the Court may make it incumbent upon the parties to defray the expenses of such a measure.

Article 30 (Brussels Article 27).—The Sub-Committee considered superfluous the words "governing the conditions under which the Vice-President shall take up his duties." It has, therefore, deleted these words. In the Committee's opinion it goes without saying that the Court will have power to lay down in its rules of procedure that a Vice-President, for example, whose domicile is too distant to permit his being summoned at short notice to fulfil his duties, must live at the seat of the Court.

Article 31 (Brussels Article 28).—To conform with the changes made in Articles 4 and 5, the Sub-Committee has replaced in the second paragraph the words "by some national group in the Court of Arbitration" with the words "as provided in Articles 4 and 5."

On the suggestion of the Italian delegate, the Sub-Committee proposes to add to the fourth paragraph the words "any doubt on this point shall be settled by the decision of the Court."

An Italian amendment had proposed adding the following phrase to the last paragraph: "They shall not, however, be included in the quorum of nine, or of eleven judges, stipulated in Article 25."

In the Sub-Committee's opinion this went without saying.

Article 32 (Brussels Article 29).—In conformity with the draft scheme drawn up by the Jurists' Committee at The Hague, the Sub-Committee has added a paragraph providing a regulation for the pensions of the personnel of the Court, without, however, making any pronouncement upon the question as to whether a right to such pensions should be granted.

Article 34 (Brussels Article 31).—This Article establishes rules for the competence of the Court ratione personae. It lays down that the Court shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine suits between States. It consequently excludes private individuals from presenting themselves before the Court. While retaining this rule, the Sub-Committee has considered that it would be expedient to express it in clearer form and to assimilate the position of all the Members of the League of Nations to that of States.

The Sub-Committee unanimously recognises the right of States to present themselves as joint parties before the Court.

Article 35 (Brussels Article 32).—The wording of this Article seemed lacking in clearness, and the Sub-Committee has recast it in an effort to express clearly what follows :—

(1) To the Members of the League of Nations and the States mentioned in the Annex to the Covenant the Court is open. The expression "Member of the League of Nations" includes those who subsequently enter the League as well as the present Members.

(2) The access of other States to the Court will depend either on the special provisions of the Treaties in force (for example, the provisions of the Treaties of Peace concerning the right of minorities, labour, etc.), or else on a resolution of the Council. Such resolution may lay down conditions of access in conformity with Article 17 of the Covenant, but in no case must these conditions result in any inequality of the parties before the Court.

Articles 36 and 37 (Brussels Articles 33 and 34).—The Sub-Committee has had before it several amendments tending to extend more or less the sphere of compulsory jurisdiction and the right of the parties to proceed by way of unilateral arraignment. The Sub-Committee has decided that it could not adopt these amendments, and that it should rather retain the principles enunciated on this point in the Council's draft. Whatever differences of opinion there may be on the interpretation of the Covenant with regard to the acceptance of a compulsory jurisdiction within the scope of its provisions, and upon the political expediency of adopting an unconditionally compulsory jurisdiction in international relations, the Sub-Committee was unable to go beyond the consideration that unanimity on the part of the Members of the League of Nations is necessary for the establishment of the Court, and that it does not seem possible to arrive at unanimity except on the basis of the principles laid down in the Council's draft.

With regard to the terms in which the Council has formulated these principles, the Sub-Committee considered that the rule governing the jurisdiction of the Court would gain by a slightly different expression. The text adopted by the Sub-Committee aims at formulating as clearly as possible the following ideas :—

(1) The jurisdiction of the Court is in principle based upon an agreement between the parties. This agreement may be in the form of a special Convention submitting a given case to the Court, or of a Treaty or general Convention embracing a group of matters of a certain nature.

(2) With regard to the right of unilateral arraignment contemplated in the words ("and this without any special agreement giving it jurisdiction") in the Council's draft, the Sub-Committee, by deleting these words, has not changed the meaning of the draft. In conformity with the Council's proposal, the text prepared by the Sub-Committee admits this right only when it is based on an agreement between the parties. In the Sub-Committee's opinion, the question must be settled in the following manner :—If a Convention establishes, without any reservation, obligatory jurisdiction for certain cases or for certain questions (as is done in certain general arbitration treaties and in certain clauses of the Treaties of Peace dealing with the rights of minorities, labour, etc.) each of the parties has, by virtue of such a treaty, the right to have recourse without special agreement (compromis) to the tribunal agreed upon. On the other hand, if the general Convention is subject to certain reservations ("vital interests," "independence," "honour," etc.), the question, whether any of these are involved in the terms of the Treaty, being for the parties themselves to decide, the parties cannot have recourse to the International Tribunal without a preliminary agreement (compromis).

[APP. III., ANNEX 8—contd.] 84

(3) Finally, the Sub-Committee thought that it should establish the rule that when a treaty or a convention provides for reference to a tribunal to be established by the League of Nations, the Court established by the present draft shall be that tribunal. This provision will have a practical application, particularly in the cases mentioned in the Treaties of Peace for submission to an International Tribunal. It does not include existing conventions which refer certain disputes either to a Court of Arbitration generally or to the Permanent Court of Arbitration of The Hague. To substitute the new Court of International Justice for these Courts of Arbitration would require a special agreement.

Article 38 (Brussels Article 35).—An Argentine amendment proposed a new text for this Article, intended, among other things, to limit the power of the Court to attribute the character of precedents to judicial decisions.

The Sub-Committee has not adopted this amendment. On the contrary, it considered that it would be one of the Court's important tasks to contribute, through its jurisprudence, to the development of international law.

The Sub-Committee has, however, made the following changes in the Article :—(1) At the beginning of the Article it has deleted as unnecessary the words "within the limit of its jurisdiction as defined above," also the words "in the order following." (2) At the end of No. 3 it has added a new clause in order to give a more flexible character to this provision and to permit the Court, if necessary, and with the consent of the parties, to make an award ex aequo et bono.

(Brussels Article 36).—Article 14 of the Covenant provides that the Assembly and the Council may ask the Court for advisory opinions. The Sub-Committee considers that these opinions should, in every case, be given with the same quorum of judges as that required for the decision of disputes, and that there is no need to maintain the distinction established in this respect by the draft scheme between the cases where a question submitted to the Court is the subject of a dispute which has actually arisen, and where there is no existing dispute. This distinction seemed lacking in clearness and likely to give rise to practical difficulties.

The Sub-Committee was further of the opinion that the draft here entered into details which concerned rather the rules of procedure of the Court.

Accordingly, the Sub-Committee proposes that this Article should be suppressed.

Certain proposals to give either to the Government or to the International Labour Office the right of asking the Court for advisory opinions have not been adopted by the Sub-Committee, which considers that such provisions would involve a considerable extension of the duties of the members of the Court and might lead to consequences difficult to calculate in advance.

(Brussels Article 36 bis).—The Sub-Committee was of opinion that it should suppress this Article, which had been proposed by the Secretariat-General as a result of the changes made by the Council in the text of The Hague. The Sub-Committee did not consider that there was any necessary relation between the new rules laid down in the Council's draft as to the jurisdiction of the Court and the rules of procedure proposed in this Article. In its opinion the procedure to be followed before the Court should be the same in every case, without any distinction between the different grounds of its jurisdiction (special Convention of the Parties or pre-existing obligation under a Treaty) but without prejudice to the right of the parties to modify the procedure in so far as it depends upon the rights which they may renounce.

Article 39 (Brussels Article 37).—A Spanish amendment proposed adding to the last paragraph of this Article the following clause :—

"This authorisation cannot be refused when it is requested by all the parties to the dispute."

The Sub-Committee has not adopted this amendment. It considered that such a rule might give rise to difficulties for the judges, by imposing on them the necessity either of knowing several languages or of having the pleadings translated by interpreters.

Article 40 (Brussels Article 38).—The Sub-Committee has slightly modified the wording of this Article without changing its principle.

Article 42 (Brussels Article 40).—On the proposal of the British delegation the Sub-Committee has made a slight change in the wording of this Article. On the other hand, it was unable to adopt the Argentine amendment, which was to the following effect :—

"The Parties shall be represented by Agents."

"They may have Counsel or Advocates to represent them or to plead before the Court."

Only the Agents can represent the Parties, but they may at the same time fill the role of Advocates.

Article 43 (Brussels Articles 41, 42 and 43, 1st paragraph).—On the suggestion of the Italian delegate the Sub-Committee has combined 41, 42 and the first paragraph of 43 (Brussels text) in a single Article, because a clearer arrangement of the connected matters treated therein is thus obtained, the first paragraph of 43 (Brussels text) having no relation to the other provisions in that Article.

Article 46 (Brussels Article 45).—The question of the publicity of the sessions of the Court was exhaustively discussed by the Sub-Committee. On the one hand it was maintained that it was not possible to apply in their entirety, to disputes between States, the principles accepted in national Courts. Publicity, or even the decision of the Court in a particular case to hold a private session, might in international disputes give rise to undesirable incidents, and exercise a regrettable influence upon the work of the Court. For this reason it had been proposed either that non-publicity should be the rule, or else that the text should leave to the Court complete liberty in deciding the question whether the session was to be public. On the other hand it was pointed out that the principle of the publicity of judicial discussion was of capital importance in winning for the Court and its judges the confidence of the public, and that non-publicity should always be an exception. The last opinion prevailed in the Sub-Committee, which has, however, left to the Court the power of holding a private session, either when it considers that there are reasons for so doing, or when both parties request it.

Article 51 (Brussels Article 50).—The Committee has studied the question whether Agents, Advocates, and Counsel should have the right to put questions directly to the witnesses and experts, or whether this should always be done through the President. It was decided to leave it to the Court to settle this question in its rules of procedure.

Article 53 (Brussels Article 52).—In the second paragraph the Sub-Committee has deleted as unnecessary the words "supported by substantial evidence."

Article 57 (Brussels Article 56).—There was an exchange of views in the Sub-Committee on the provision proposed by the Council with regard to the right of dissenting members of the Court to have heir individual opinions published. Though several members would have preferred not to grant such a right, the Sub-Committee decided not to depart from the Council's proposal, which is strongly advocated especially by the Anglo-Saxon jurists. The reasons upon which the proposal is based are shown in the Council's report.

Article 61 (Brussels Article 59).—An Argentine amendment proposed dispensing with any limitation of the period for the application for revision. Because of the difficulties which might result from a revision taking place at a time when a certain situation, based on the judgment of the Court, had become established and had existed for many years, the Sub-Committee was unable to adopt this proposal.

The Sub-Committee has, however, made two changes in this Article :—

1. Extension of the absolute period of limitation from 5 to 10 years.

2. Introduction of a very short period (six months) for the right of making an application for revision after the discovery of the new fact.

Article 62 (Brussels Article 60).—An Italian amendment also proposed giving the International Labour Office, as well as other international institutions of similar character, the power of intervention in cases before the Court. The Sub-Committee considers that such a power would be contrary to the terms of Article 34, which lays down that only States may be parties before the Court.

Article 64 (Brussels Article 62).—The Sub-Committee unanimously recognises that the terms of this Article do not prevent division of the costs between the parties in accordance with an agreement between them.

An Argentine amendment proposed adding to the draft scheme a new Article in the following terms :—

"The final award of the Court shall be binding upon the contesting States. Any State which refuses to comply with the final award of the Court shall be excluded from the League of Nations. If the failure to carry out the decision is of a nature capable of disturbing the peace of the world, the Assembly and the Council shall have the power to take the measures provided."

The Sub-Committee has not thought fit to adopt this proposal, which would appear to contain an amendment or addition to the Covenant.

It was also proposed to add a clause expressly applying to the decisions of the Court the sanctions provided in Article 13 of the Covenant, as has already been done in Article 69 of the Treaty of St. Germain and the analogous provisions contained in the treaties relating to the position of minorities. The Sub-Committee considers such a clause superfluous in view of the provisions in the Covenant and the above-mentioned treaties.

ANNEX 9.—Report of Committee No. III. on the establishment of a Court of International Justice.

(Assembly Document 216.)

The Assembly of the League of Nations referred to the Third Committee the draft schemes for an International Court of Justice and the amendments proposed thereto by the various Governments, and by certain members of the Assembly. The Committee appointed a Sub-Committee of 10 members, five of whom had formed part of the Jurists' Committee at The Hague. The Sub-Committee submitted to the Committee the report and the draft attached thereto (see Assembly Document No. 199). Both report and text have been unanimously adopted by the Committee, with the following modifications :—

Article 5.—In the first paragraph the Committee has introduced a provision to the effect that the nomination of candidates must be carried out within a given time.

The Committee has increased the number of candidates who may be nominated in order to give the different groups a larger opportunity to propose candidates of universally known competence, but of a nationality other than that of the nominating group. In no case, however, can more candidates be nominated than double the number of seats to be filled. If, for example, there is only one seat, the number of candidates to be nominated will be two.

Articles 16 and 17.—The Committee considered that it would be an excessive measure to apply the provisions of these Articles as a whole to the deputy judges. It has therefore introduced special rules for the deputy judges.

[APP. III., ANNEX 9—contd.] 86

Article 26.—After hearing the Director of the International Labour Office, the Committee has added to this Article a provision empowering the Director to furnish the Council with all necessary information ; for this purpose, the Director will receive copies of all written documents of procedure.

Article 36.—On the motion of the Brazilian delegate, the Committee has added a new paragraph to this Article, empowering States and Members of the League of Nations who may be willing to accept compulsory jurisdiction in a larger measure than provided for in the first paragraph of the Article, to make declarations on this subject either at the time of ratification or at a later moment.

The effect of this provision is as follows : It gives power to choose compulsory jurisdiction either in all the questions enumerated in the Article or only in certain of these questions. Further, it makes it possible to specify the States (or Members of the League of Nations) in relation to which each Government is willing to agree to a more extended jurisdiction.

Article 41.—The Committee has slightly altered this Article in such a way as to make it cover omissions which infringe a right, as well as positive acts.

The question as to the form in which the Statute of the Permanent Court of Justice should be adopted was the subject of long discussions and of detailed study both in the Sub-Committee and in the Committee.

On the one hand, it was insisted that a Convention or Protocol signed by the Governments and submitted for ratification would be necessary.

On the other hand, it was pointed out with much force that it would considerably weaken the authority of the Assembly and establish a harmful precedent if a unanimous resolution of the Assembly had to be submitted to the Governments for further approval.

The Committee finally agreed that, in view of the special nature of the terms of Article 14 of the Covenant with regard to the Constitution of the Permanent Court of Justice, it would be possible to submit that Constitution to the Governments for approval without establishing a precedent for other resolutions of the Assembly.

The Committee thinks it may assume that the unanimous adoption of the draft-scheme will be followed, within a short time, by ratification on the part of all the Members of the League of Nations, so that the elections necessary for the establishment of the Court may take place at the next meeting of the Assembly.

ARTICLES 5, 16, 17, 26, 36, and 41 as amended by the Third Committee on 10th December 1920.

Article 5 (Brussels Article 5).—At least three months before the date of the election, the Secretary-General of the League of Nations shall address a written request to the members of the Court of Arbitration belonging to the States mentioned in the Annex to the Covenant or to the States which join the League subsequetly, and to the persons appointed under para. 2 of Article 4, inviting them to undertake, within a given time, by national groups, the nomination of persons in a position to accept the duties of a member of the Court.

No group may nominate more than four persons, not more than two of whom shall be of their own nationality. In no case must the number of candidates nominated be more than double the number of seats to be filled.

Article 16 (Brussels Article 16).—The ordinary members of the Court may not exercise any political or administrative function. This provision does not apply to the deputy judges except when performing their duties on the Court.

Any doubt on this point is settled by the decision of the Court.

Article 17 (Brussels Article 17).—No Member of the Court can act as Agent, Counsel, or Advocate in any case of an international nature. This provision only applies to the deputy judges as regards cases in which they are called upon to exercise their functions on the Court.

No member may participate in the decision of any case in which he has provisionally taken an active part as Agent, Counsel, or Advocate for one of the contesting parties or as a Member of a national or international Court, or of a Commission of enquiry, or in any other capacity.

Any doubt on this point is settled by the decision of the Court.

Article 26 (British amendments, Article 26 bis).—Labour cases, particularly cases referred to in Part XIII. (Labour) of the Treaty of Versailles and the corresponding portions of the Treaty of Peace, shall be heard and determined by the Court under the following conditions :—

The Court will appoint every three years a special Chamber of five judges, selected so far as possible with due regard to the provisions of Article 9. In addition, two judges shall be selected for the purpose of replacing a judge who finds it impossible to sit. If the parties so demand, cases will be heard and determined by this Chamber. In the absence of any such demand the Court will sit with the number of judges provided for in Article 25. On all occasions the judges will be assisted by four technical assessors sitting with them but without the right to vote, and chosen with a view to ensuring a just representation of the competing interests.

If there is a national of one only of the parties sitting as a judge in the Chamber referred to in the preceding paragraph, the President will invite one of the other judges to retire in favour of a judge chosen by the other party in accordance with Article 31.

The technical assessors shall be chosen for each particular case in accordance with Rules of Procedure under Article 30 from a list of "Assessors for Labour Cases" composed of two persons nominated by each Member of the League of Nations and an equivalent number nominated by the Governing Body of the Labour Office. The Governing Body will nominate, as to one half, representatives of the workers, and as to one half, representatives of employers from the list referred to in Article 412 of the Treaty of Versailles and the corresponding Articles of the other Treaties of Peace.

[APP. III., ANNEX 9—contd.] 87

In Labour cases the International Labour Office shall be at liberty to furnish the Court with all relevant information, and for this purpose the Director of that Office shall receive copies of all the written proceedings.

Article 36 (Brussels Article 33).—The jurisdiction of the Court comprises all cases which the parties refer to it and all matters specially provided for in Treaties and Conventions in force.

The Members of the League of Nations and the States mentioned in the Annex to the Covenant may, either when signing or ratifying the protocol, to which the present Statute is adjoined, or at a later moment, declare that they recognise as compulsory ipso facto and without special agreement, in relation to any other Member or State accepting the same obligation, the jurisdiction of the Court in all or any of the classes of legal disputes concerning :—

(a) The interpretation of a Treaty.

(b) Any question of International Law.

(c) The existence of any fact which, if established, would constitute a breach of an international obligation.

(d) The nature or extent of the reparation to be made for the breach of an international obligation.

The declaration referred to above may be made unconditionally or on condition of reciprocity on the part of several or certain Members or States, or for a certain time.

In the event of a dispute as to whether the Court has jurisdiction, the matter shall be settled by the decision of the Court.

Article 41 (Brussels Article 39).—The Court shall have the power to indicate, if it considers that circumstances so require, any provisional measures which ought to be taken to reserve the respective rights of either party.

Pending the final decision, notice of the measures suggested shall forthwith be given to the parties and the Council.

DRAFT RESOLUTION.

1. The Assembly unanimously declares its approval of the draft Statute of the Permanent Court of International Justice—as amended by the Assembly—which was prepared by the Council under Article 14 of the Covenant and submitted to the Assembly for its approval.

2. In view of the special wording of Article 14 the Statute of the Court shall be submitted within the shortest possible time to the Members of the League of Nations for adoption in the form of a protocol duly ratified and declaring their recognition of this Statute. It shall be the duty of the Council to submit the Statute to the Members.

3. As soon as this protocol has been ratified by the majority of the Members of the League, the Statute of the Court shall come into force and the Court shall be called upon to sit in conformity with the said Statute in all disputes between the Members or States which have ratified, as well as between the other States, to which he Court is open under Article 35, para. 2, of the said Statute.

4. The said protocol shall likewise remain open for signature by the States mentioned in the Annex to the Covenant.

ANNEX 10.—Court of International Justice. Report of Committee No. III. on Salaries of Members.

(Assembly Document 248.)

The fixing of the salaries of members of the Permanent Court of International Justice was referred by the Council to the Third Committee. After detailed discussion, the following principles have been approved. They are based on Article 32 of the Statute :—

" The judges shall receive an annual indemnity to be determined by the Assembly of the League of Nations upon the proposal of the Council. This indemnity must not be decreased during the period of a judge's appointment.

" The President shall receive a special grant for his period of office, to be fixed in the same way.

" The Vice-President, judges and deputy judges shall receive a grant for the actual performance of their duties, to be fixed in the same way.

" Travelling expenses incurred in the performance of their duties shall be refunded to judges and deputy judges who do not reside at the seat of the Court.

" Grants due to judges selected or chosen as provided in Article 31 shall be determined in the same way.

" The salary of the Registrar shall be decided by the Council upon the proposal of the Court.

" The Assembly of the League of Nations shall lay down, on the proposal of the Council, a special regulation fixing the conditions under which retiring pensions may be given to the personnel of the Court."

The Committee was of opinion that the annual remuneration of all ordinary judges should be fixed at a minimum of fifteen thousand (15,000) Dutch florins. The special annual allowance assigned to the President was fixed at 45,000 florins, which brings his total remuneration to 60,000 florins a year.

[APP. III., ANNEX 10—contd.] 88

As the other members of the Court are not obliged to live at the seat of the Court throughout the whole year, it was considered that the allowance assigned to them should be proportional to the length of time they should spend at the seat of the Court. In the consideration of this allowance two points of view were advanced : they were fixed partly on the basis of the period of duty, and partly according to the length of residence at The Hague.

The allowance per day for the period of duty has consequently been fixed for each ordinary judge at 100 florins and for the Vice-President at 150 florins. As for the deputy judges, it was considered that a larger duty-allowance should be granted them. The ordinary judges receive an annual salary of 15,000 florins, and it must be taken into consideration that the deputy judges must hold themselves at the disposal of the Court and may be called upon to undertake a more or less unforeseen journey and to abandon their profession or the post which they hold in their country of origin. As they receive no annual salary, it seems just to compensate them by raising their daily allowance to 150 florins.

The subsistence allowance has been fixed for all the members of the Court, except the President, who has a different fixed allowance, at 50 florins per day.

The maximum compensation for the different members of the Court would, calculating the days of session in each year at 200 (Sundays and vacations deducted), amount to 30,000 florins for the Vice-President, 20,000 for ordinary judges and 30,000 for deputy judges.

To ensure an equal position for all the members of the Court of International Justice, by neutralising the different degrees in which their salaries might be affected by taxation in the various countries, the Committee proposes, that all salaries and allowances are to be free of taxation. As however, the decisions of the Assembly might be inoperative as against the fiscal laws applied in the different countries, it has been proposed that the League of Nations should reimburse the members of the Court for any taxes which they may have been obliged to pay.

With regard to travelling expenses, the Committee is of opinion that the expenses of moving the near relatives of members of the Court should be defrayed by the League of Nations.

Finally, the payment of salaries and allowances and the reimbursement for expenses shall take place on the basis of accounts approved by the President.

The table attached to the resolution set out below, will give a clear idea of the remuneration allotted to each class of member of the Court.

DRAFT RESOLUTION.

The Assembly of the League of Nations, in conformity with the provision of Article 32 of the Statute, fixes the salaries and allowances of members of the Permanent Court of International Justice as follows :—

	Dutch florins.
esident :
Annual salary	15,000
Special allowance	45,000
Total	60,000
Vice-President :
Annual salary	15,000
Duty allowance (200 × 150)	30,000	(maximum)
Total	45,000
Ordinary Judges :
Annual salary	15,000
Duty allowance (200 × 100)	20,000	(maximum)
Total	35,000
Deputy Judges :
Duty allowance (200 × 150)	30,000	(maximum)

Duty allowances are payable from the day of departure until the return of the beneficiary.

An additional allowance of 50 florins per day is assigned for each day of actual presence at The Hague to the Vice-President and to the ordinary and deputy judges.

Allowances and salaries are free of all tax.

ANNEX 11.—Report on Staff and Organisation of the Secretariat by Sir James Allen, on behalf of Committee No. IV.

(Assembly Document 229.)

The Committee approves the action of the Council and of the Secretary-General with regard to the staff and organisation of the Secretariat as indicated in Assembly Document No. 32, but makes the following recommendations :—

1. That all members of the Secretariat appointed for a period of five years by the Secretary-General shall, in the case of dismissal, have the right of appeal to the Council.

2. That a list of the staff, showing nationalities and salaries and allowances by classes, be published half-yearly, with the addition to the first and second issues of a list containing an account of the previous services of certain of the higher officials; and that a further list be prepared and attached to the annual budget, showing the nationality, salary and allowances of each individual member of the staff, and containing a schedule showing the travelling allowances for each class with the amounts paid.

3. That information regarding vacancies on the staff of the League be made as public as possible and that, in filling the various posts, whilst having special regard for efficiency, at the same time consideration be given to the international character of the League.

4. That the staff of the Secretariat be renewed at the termination of each five-yearly period, due regard being given to the retention of sufficient officers to enable the work of the League to be effectively maintained.

(Signed) J. ALLEN,
Delegate for New Zealand.

13th December 1920.

ANNEX 12.—General Report by Sir George Foster, First Delegate of Canada, and Jhr. van Eysinga, Delegate (Substitute) of the Netherlands, on behalf of Committee No. IV., on the First and Second Budgets of the League, covering the period to 31st December 1920, on the Provisional Estimates for the 1921 Budget, and on the future Method of Apportionment of the Expenses of the League.

Mr. President, Gentlemen,

In distributing the work allotted to the different Committees, the Assembly has entrusted to Committee No. 4, inter alia, the examination of :—

Item No. 23 : the first and second budgets of the League, covering the period to 31st December 1920 ;

Item No. 24 : the Provisional estimates for the 1921 budget ;

Item No. 25 : the future method of apportioning the expenses of the League.

The Committee that was formed under the chairmanship of M. Quinones de Léon, Spanish Delegate, and Dr. Restrepo, Colombian Delegate, as Deputy Chairman, has nominated Sir George Foster, Canadian Delegate, as first rapporteur, and Jhr. van Eysinga, Delegate (substitute) of the Netherlands, as second rapporteur on the above-named questions.

As regards the items 23-25 of the agenda, the Fourth Committee had to deal with a rather considerable number of questions ; as a matter of fact all the work of the League of Nations regarded from the financial point of view came under consideration. The Committee herewith submits its report covering the three budgets, the financial administration and control of the League for the future, and the efficiency of the internal services of the League. The rapporteurs have tried to give you as concise and short an explanation as possible of the resolutions and the recommendations which the Committee propose for your adoption.

Para. 1.—First and Second Budgets.

The Council of the League of Nations, on the report presented by M. Quinones de Léon at its session of 19th May 1920, held in Rome, approved the budget estimates submitted by the Secretary-General for the organisation period considered as ending on 31st March 1920, and for the period from 1st April 1920 to date of payment of the next contributions on 30th June of the same year.

The British Comptroller and Auditor-General was called upon by the Council to audit the accounts for the first period. This audit was approved by the Council at its session at San Sebastian on 5th August 1920. The Secretary-General submitted a memorandum (Document No. 20-31-81), which drew attention to the fact that the Council had decided to extend the first period until 30th June 1920, and that therein are included the accounts of the organisation period up to 30th June 1920, audited by the aforesaid British official. These accounts, amounting to 291,078*l.* 15*s.* 10*d.*, show a balance carried forward of 114,271*l.* 11*s.* 8½*d.* This audit was adopted by the Council at the Brussels session in October 1920.

At the San Sebastian session on 5th August 1920, and on the report of the aforesaid officer, the Council approved the budget for the second fiscal period between 1st July 1920 and 31st December 1920. This budget amounted to 10,000,000 gold francs.

It would appear therefore that the Committee might approve these two budgets. The first fiscal period came to an end long ago and the accounts in connection therewith have already been audited ; the second fiscal period will soon be terminated, and we therefore do not think that the Committee could with advantage make a full study of these two budgets. We desire, however, to make two observations thereon which may be useful for the future.

Attention should first be drawn to the fact that the balance remaining over from the budgets of the organisation period has not been carried forward and incorporated in the budget for the second period. According to information given by the Secretary-General, this balance was earmarked (without any previous approval) as the first contribution of the Members of the League towards a working capital fund, which at a later date the Secretary-General proposed to set up. For reasons of practical bookkeeping it is desirable that this reserve should be shown in the budget submitted by the Secretary-General. The Secretary-General should submit regularly as an annex to each budget a list of payments and receipts on account of this working capital fund and a statement as to how this has been utilised.

[APP. III., ANNEX 12—contd.] 90

In the second place it should be noted that it is absolutely necessary to separate the different budgetary periods as fully as possible. In the budget for the supplementary organisation period covering the months of April, May, and June 1920, the sum of 25,000*l.* appears for the International Labour Office. According to information given by the Secretary-General, this amount is only part of the sum to which the Labour Organisation was entitled. However, owing to lack of funds, the Secretary-General was compelled to come to an arrangement with the Director of the Labour Office, and the latter, for the time being, had to be content with a sum smaller than that to which the Labour Office was entitled, on condition that the office should, within the second fiscal period, receive an amount correspondingly in excess of that to which it then should be entitled. No objection will be raised to such an arrangement in case of absolute necessity, but this should in no way modify the amount due to the Labour Organisation in the budgets for one or other of the fisal periods.

Para. 2.—Budget for the year 1921.

The draft budget for the year 1921 was approved by the Council of the League of Nations at the Brussels session on 27th October 1920, and was submitted to the Assembly with full explanations. The Committee proposes its adoption save for the following remarks :—

(1) The budget should include not only the expenditure but also the income ; the contributions of the States Members of the League towards the upkeep of the organisation proper should be kept distinct from the contributions towards the capital and working capital accounts. The headings of the final budget would thus be as follows :—

	Gold francs.
Expenditure :
I. Direct expenditure	6,565,000
II. Indirect expenditure	3,535,000
III. Capital account	2,000,000
IV. Balance (to form a special working capital fund)	1,890,000
V. Labour Organisation	7,010,000
	21,000,000
Receipts :
I. Contributions towards ordinary upkeep	10,100,000
II. Ordinary contributions towards upkeep of the Labour Organisation	7,010,000
III. Contributions to capital account	2,000,000
IV. Contributions for working capital fund	1,890,000
	21,000,000

This budget should be called the main budget. Supplementary estimates, necessitated by decisions of the Assembly, are incorporated therein. These supplementary estimates are explained in the "Explanations as to the difference between the Council budget for 1921 and the budget proposed by the rapporteurs" (Document No. 20-64-40).

(2) Under Article 399 of the Treaty of Versailles and similar stipulations of the other Treaties of Peace, the expenses of the Labour Organisation which are not borne by the States Members of the League, are to be paid from the general budget of the League. It follows that the bodies which authorise the budget of the League are thereby called upon to decide the amount to be allocated to the Labour Organisation.

It should be noted that the draft budget mentions only the expenditure of the International Labour Office, whereas it applies to the whole organisation. Owing to circumstances fully explained to the Committee by M. Thomas, the estimates of the Labour Organisation were necessarily general and approximative. (Para. 3 deals with this question as regards future budgets.)

(3) The items of the different chapters of the budget should be numbered consecutively.

(4) Item 11 of the Direct Expenditure of the Secretariat includes a sum of 50,000 gold francs for unforeseen expenses. This item is meant to include all ordinary unforeseen expenditures, and no similar items should appear elsewhere in the same chapter of the estimate. In item 4 b, however, we find 5,580 gold francs for unforeseen expenditure (vide detailed explanation, page 5). This item should be deleted and the sum of 5,580 gold francs added under item 11.

(5) Further items should be included in chapters I. and V. to provide for expenses for the Committee of experts [vide para. 2 under (9)] as well as for the expenses of control of the finances of the League (vide para. 5).

(6) At its 10th session the Council decided that the Finance Committee of the Assembly should be asked to examine again the question of the interest which the League of Nations pays for money which has to be borrowed in cases where the States Members of the League have not paid their contributions in time for the League to make its payments without borrowing. On the one hand it is not reasonable that this charge should fall on the Members having already paid their contributions as well as on those Members who have not paid. On the other other hand it is extremely difficult to decide from what date interest should run, as the budgets of the different countries are passed at different times of the year. In the circumstances it appears difficult to alter the present conditions under which all Members bear the cost of interest caused by a few who are dilatory in their payments.

The Assembly should make a recommendation to all Governments asking them to take the necessary measures to ensure their contributions being paid at the earliest possible date. Each Government should in any case inform the Secretary-General on 1st January 1921 at what date he may expect payment to be made. For this purpose a supplementary budget estimate in each of the countries would be of great assistance.

(7) Chapter II. also contains a special item (item 25) for unforeseen expenses. Such unforeseen expenses, therefore, will not be paid from the working capital fund. Exception should, however, be made in the case of recoverable expenses, as, for instance, commissions whose expenses will be refunded at a later date by the countries concerned. Since no other unforeseen expenses are to be incurred on account of the working capital fund, it will be necessary to increase to 500,000 gold francs the allocation for such expenses as are provided for under item 25 of chapter II. It must, however, be understood that the unforeseen expenditure provided for in item 25 can be incurred only after having been sanctioned by a special resolution of the Council.

(8) In conection with the organisation, offices, commissions, &c., alluded to in chapter II. of the budget it is necessary that each of these organisations, &c., should prepare its own detailed budget, which should be annexed to the general budget of the League with a detailed explanation. In the matter of expenditure these special budgets should follow the same methods and be subject to the ame control as the general budget of the League of Nations.

(9) The amounts included in the different items of the budget for expenditure call for the following remarks. It should not be forgotten that the whole organisation of the League of Nations had to be created in a very short space of time. This was an admirable, but necessarily a costly, effort.

From the information placed at the disposal of the Committee by the International Labour Office and the Secretary-General, it is possible to realise the great amount of work which has been accomplished by the Secretariat of the League of Nations. It was, however, impossible to form an exact opinion as to whether the Secretariat of the League was working in the most economical and efficient manner, without resorting to a full enquiry by experts. As the League is still in the organisation period, it is not possible to hold such an enquiry and prepare reports which could be used at the present session of the Assembly. We are of the opinion that as soon as possible a small Committee of experts should be appointed to examine and report upon the organisation and methods of work, the efficiency, the number, the salaries and the allowances of the staff, upon the general expenditure of the organisation and upon all other matters necessary to enable the Assembly to form a fair judgment in respect thereto.

In submitting this proposal we have solely in mind the idea of guaranteeing to the League of Nations an organisation as efficient and economical as possible, without desiring thereby to give expression to any unfavourable judgment regarding the work of the administration up to the present time.

In the meantime, we should endeavour to obtain the maximum of efficiency together with the maximum of economy and, so far as possible, avoid entering upon costly enterprises which might eventually be taken up by the League of Nations, but could equally well at present remain in the hands of individual Members of the League or of the existing Unions.

In view of the Resolution adopted by the Council at Rome on 19th May 1920 (Official Journal, pp. 125 and 139), the Committee recommended to the Assembly to affirm that, notwithstanding the adoption by the Assembly of the budgets for the first three budgetary periods, the Assembly reserves to itself the right, upon receipt of the report of the Commitee of experts to be appointed in pursuance of the second Resolution, to vary, to such extent as it thinks fit, the rate of remuneration of any officer of the Secretariat.

Para. 3.—Future Budgets.

Concerning the future budgets of the League of Nations, it is important that certain general rules be laid down. In accordance with the provisions of Article 11 of the Rules of Procedure of the Council of 7th May 1920 (Official Journal, p. 274), the Secretary-General should, three months at least before the annual session of the Assembly, commencing on the first Monday in September, submit to the Council a draft general budget (Rules of Procedure of the Assembly adopted 30th November 1920, Articles 1 and 4). The States Members of the League of Nations should receive communication of the budget with detailed explanations at least one month before the annual session during which the Assembly is called upon to adopt the budget. Naturally the Assembly could adopt such supplementary estimates as might thereafter be brought before it.

The folowing points should be borne in mind in connection with the Labour Organisation :—

(1) The budget of the Labour Organisation should, in future, be drawn up in gold francs.

(2) The budget should be submitted to the Secretary-General at a sufficiently early date to enable it to be incorporated in the general draft budget of the League.

(3) To this budget should be annexed detailed explanations and a list of the officials of the International Labour Office, with their salaries, allowances and nationality. These lists should be drawn up on the same lines as the similar lists which the Secretary-General of the League of Nations submits to the Assembly as an annex to his budget.

The Secretary-General should inform the Director of the International Labour Office in good time of the dates on which the above-mentioned data will be required.

Para. 4.—Manner in which Expenditure should be incurred.

It is also important that certain general rules should be laid down concerning the manner in which expenditure shall be incurred. No expenditure should be incurred except upon a warrant of the Secretary-General or one of his duly authorised deputies clearly stating both the budget period and the appropriation to which this expenditure is to be charged. In reference to transfers from one appropriation to another, such transfers should only be made on the authority of the Council, and notice thereof should be sent to each Member of the League. At present we are only concerned with the laying down of general lines for the proper application of the budget. These, in a way, are already indicated by a decision of the Council at its Brussels Session on 27th October 1920.

Para. 5.—Control of Expenditure and Income.

Article 12 of the Rules of Procedure of the Council (Official Journal, p. 274) lays down that two members of the Council itself should act as auditors and these might be assisted by financial experts of a Government designated by the Council from among the Members of the League.

It should be noted that the League of Nations has already obtained the services of certain Governments for the purpose of audit of the accounts for the past fiscal period. We recommend that this course be pursued in the future. This would ensure an efficient audit and one entirely independent of the authorities which appoint and all grades of the staff. The auditors should, three months before the annual session of the Assembly, present to the Council a report on the accounts and book pay-keeping. The accounts should be finally confirmed by the Assembly at its annual session.

As mentioned in para. 1, the Secretary-General should be asked to submit regularly to the Assembly as an annex to each budget, a list of payments and receipts on account of the working capital fund and a statement of the use to which the latter will have been put.

Para. 6.—Allocation of Expenses of the League of Nations.

According to Article 6 of the Covenant, the schedule in force for the Universal Postal Union shall govern the apportionment of the expenses of the League of Nations. Ever since its first meeting the Committee unanimously agreed that the postal schedule which had been drawn up to meet conditions which have changed considerably, and which only referred to inconsiderable sums, should be modified at the earliest possible opportunity. Everyone acknowledges that the present allocation is very unfair. In order to remedy this situation, two proposals were made. On the one hand, it might be possible to proceed with the negotiations which had already been opened with the Universal Postal Union, with the object of arriving, through its intervention, at a revision of the schedule of the League of Nations.

On the other hand, it might be possible to take preliminary steps with a view to submitting an amendment to the Covenant for the approval of the Assembly at the session to be held in September 1921. There were supporters and opponents to these two proposals, both for practical and theoretical reasons. The solution proposed by the Committee in Articles 13 (a) to (e) endeavours to combine both methods, and was agreed to by members holding divergent opinions. The revision of the schedule will be prepared by a Committee appointed by the Council; it will consequently be requested to continue the work already undertaken by the Committee appointed by M. Ador at the request of the Council.

Since it is impossible to modify for 1921 the existing schedule, it will necessarily apply to the allocation of the expenses of the League during 1921; on the other hand, according to Article 17, the allocation for 1922 will be so arranged by the Assembly of 1921 that the members who in 1921 will have paid a contribution larger than that contemplated in the new schedule, shall, in 1922, pay a correspondingly smaller amount, and vice versa.

Para. 7.—Conclusions.

The remarks included in paras. 3 to 6 (Budget of Expenditure and Income, manner in which the Expenditure is incurred, Control of Expenditure and Income, Allocation of Expenses) mainly concern the financial administration of the League of Nations. This administration is one of the essential parts of the constitution of the League, and it would be very desirable to unite under a single head the different regulations concerning the same. Such a set of regulations would also make it easier to form an adequate judgment on a subject which appears complicated when distributed in different texts. In view of the importance of the matter, these regulations should be laid down by a Resolution of the Assembly.

Para. 8.

In virtue of the foregoing report the Committee has the honour to propose to you the adoption of the following Resolutions and Recommendations :—

First Resolution.—The Assembly of the League of Nations hereby adopts the general budget of the League for the first financial period ending 30th June 1920, together with the budget for the second financial period ending 31st December 1920.

Second Resolution.—The Assembly of the League of Nations hereby adopts the annexed general budget for the year 1921.

RECOMMENDATION I.

The Assembly of the League of Nations requests the Members of the League to take the necessary measures to ensure their contribution being paid at the earliest possible date. Each Member should in any case inform the Secretariat on 1st January 1921 on what date it may expect payment to be made.

RECOMMENDATION II.

The Assembly of the League of Nations requests the Council to be guided by the principles embodied in the following Articles in regard to the financial administration of the League, and to prepare at the annual Session of the Assembly, 1921, a draft Resolution upon this subject.

Article 1.—Three months at least before the Annual Session of the Assembly, the Secretary-General shall submit to the Council a general draft budget of the League for the following year (expenditure and income) as provided for in Article 399 of the Treaty of Versailles (sic), and this shall be at once communicated to each Member of the League.

Article 2.—Draft budgets for the Labour Office and for other organisations, offices and commissions, &c., of the League, and also detailed explanations, lists of officials, their salaries, allowances, and nationalities, shall be attached to the general budgets as annexes. The Secretary-General shall notify the organisations, offices and commissions, &c., referred to, of the date in each year by which these data are to be received.

Article 3.—The Council shall see that the budget, as approved by it, with detailed explanations, shall be in the hands of the Members of the League of Nations at least one month before the annual session of the Assembly.

Article 4.—Upon the adoption of the budget by the Assembly, with or without amendment, the budget shall be operative to the extent of the amounts, for the purposes and services, and for the period specified therein.

Article 5.—Supplementary estimates which may become necessary from any cause shall be submitted with explanations and lists as provided for in Article 2 at the earliest practicable moment to the Assembly which at the then current session shall consider and approve the same, subject to such amendment and alteration as it deems proper.

Article 6.—Expenditure can only be effected by virtue of a warrant signed by the Secretary-General, or one of his duly authorised deputies, in which is mentioned the fiscal period and the appropriation on account of which the expenditure is incurred. Unforeseen expenditure can only be incurred on account of the last item of the second chapter (item 25) if it is authorised by a special Resolution of the Council, which must be immediately communicated to all the Members of the League of Nations.

During the year 1921 transfer from one item to another of the same chapter can be effected by virtue of a special Resolution of the Council, which must be immediately communicated to all the Members of the League of Nations. This action is not to be taken as establishing a precedent.

Article 7.—Except as regards recoverable advances, expenditure which has not been provided for in the general budget cannot be paid from the special working capital fund.

Article 8.—At the beginning of each year the Council shall engage the services of the auditors of a Government chosen by the Council from the Members of the League.

Article 9.—The Secretary-General, or in the case of the Labour Organisation, the Director of the International Labour Office, shall, at the latest, three months after the close of the budgetary period, submit to the auditors all documents necessary for their reports.

Article 10.—Three months at least before the Annual Session of the Assembly, the Auditors shall present to the Council, or in the case of the Labour Organisation to the Governing Body, a report on the correctness of the accounts and bookkeeping. These reports shall be circulated to all the Members of the League.

Article 11.—The Director of the International Labour Office will transmit the audited statement of his accounts together with a copy of the Auditors' Report, to the Secretary-General of the League (Article 399 of the Versailles Treaty), who will submit the same, with his own, to the Assembly.

Article 12.—The Assembly shall finally pass the accounts for expenditure and income.

Article 13.—(a) Whilst the existing allocation must from a juridical point of view be observed for the year 1921, the Assembly recommends to the Council the immediate appointment of a Special Committee of five Members, including the Swiss delegate to the Universal Postal Union, to investigate the question of the allocation of the expenditure of the League, with a view to an equitable scheme of allocation being devised.

(b) The Committee shall, at the earliest possible moment, not later than 31st March, report to the Council the scheme of allocation which it recommends, and the Secretary-General shall, as soon as possible, transmit a copy thereof to each Member of the League.

(c) The Committee shall place itself in communication with the authorities of the Universal Postal Union, with a view to the scheme of allocation which it recommends, with the approval of the Council, being brought into force at the earliest possible date.

(d) If the scheme of allocation recommended by the Committee is not adopted prior to the 1st July next, or if any of the Members express disagreement with it, the question of the allocation of expenditure shall be placed on the agenda of the Assembly of 1921.

(e) The allocation for 1922 shall be so arranged by the Assembly of 1921 that Members, who shall have contributed in 1921 more than they would have done if the new scheme had been in force will in 1922 pay a corresponding amount less than their quota and vice versa.

RECOMMENDATION III.

The Assembly of the League of Nations requests the Council to take the necessary steps to appoint as soon as possible a small Committee of experts to consider all factors connected with the organisation, methods of work and efficiency, number, salaries and allowances of the staff, and with the general expenditure of the organisation as well as with all other points necessary to enable the Assembly to form a fair judgment in respect thereto, both as regards the Secretariat and the International Labour Office. The report of this Committee should be in possession of the Members of the League by 1st June 1921.

ANNEX 13.—Report of Sub-Committee B of Committee No. VI. on the Economic Weapon.

We have held three meetings and have arrived at the following conclusions :—

1. We considered first what recommendations we should make as to the action to be taken on the resolution of the Council adopted at San Sebastian on 3rd August 1920. It will be remembered that on that occasion the Council adopted the Report of Signor Tittoni, and resolved that—

"The Council decides to place upon the agenda of the first Assembly of the League of Nations the consideration of the necessary measures to ensure the application of Article 16 of the Covenant. With this aim in view, it will propose to the Assembly that, as a preliminary measure, an International Blockade Commission should be appointed under the authority of the first Assembly for the purpose of studying the problem and settling the general plan of action, the organisation of the more permanent machinery required, and the principles on which it should work."

In the Report was also contained a paragraph to the effect that—

"A Committee composed of an equal number of members of the Council and of the Assembly may be set up to examine the question of the constitution of this international Commission and its duties."

*These amounts to be deducted from price should it be decided to buy within three years.

†Exclusive of furniture brought from London and office furniture on order in Geneva for delivery in November 1920, these items (200,000 gold frs.) being provided for in the Second Budget.

‡ The second budget of the League authorised the appropriation of the sum of 1,725,000 gold francs for the creation of a working capital or reserve. It was not expected then that the heavy expenses consequent upon the removal of the Secretariat to its permanent seat and its establishment there would be incurred during the second fiscal period.

The transfer having taken place during 1920, the greater part of the sum allocated for the creation of working capital will have been absorbed.

It is, therefore, necessary to include a similar appropriation in the third budget, in order that the League may always have at its disposal sufficient funds to carry on its work. This arrangement is very necessary, owing to the delays which frequently take place in the voting of credits by Parliaments and the fact that certain Members of the League, for this reason, find it impossible to pay their contributions as soon as they become due.

[App. III., Annex 13—contd.] 96

As the Council has consulted the Assembly on these proposals, we are bound to say that it seemed to the Sub-Committee that this was not a very satisfactory piece of machinery, and they therefore decided to recommend that—

"The Council should be asked to appoint an International Blockade Commission to consider the application of Article 16 of the Covenant ; the Commission will report to the Council, who shall place the conclusions before the Assembly at its next session for their acceptance, rejection, or amendment without prejudice to any action that may have been provisionally taken upon them. The Commission should not exceed eight in number, with power to summon experts to advise them, and not less than half its members should be persons representing States which have not a right to permanent membership of the Council."

2. It will be observed that in this recommendation the International Blockade Commission are to consider what steps are necessary to bring into full effect the provisions of Article 16. But the Sub-Committee were also instructed to consider what steps should be taken immediately to render as effective as possible the Economic Weapon of the League under Article 16. The Committee are aware that under that Article it is the duty of every Member of the League in the case of any Member resorting to war in disregard of its covenants under Articles 12, 13, or 15 to subject it to—

"The severance of all trade or financial relations, the prohibition of all intercourse between their nationals and the nationals of the Covenant-breaking State, and the prevention of all financial, commercial or personal intercourse between the nationals of the Covenant-breaking State and the nationals of any other State, whether a Member of the League or not."

That is a duty which now actually rests upon every Member of the League, but there are two difficulties in the way of its performance. In the first place, it may easily be uncertain whether a State has resorted to war in breach of the Covenant, and no machinery has been provided for ascertaining the facts. In the second place, there are considerable difficulties, which were pointed out in the discussion before the Committee on a previous occasion, in carrying out to the full what may be, for shortness, described as the blockading operations contemplated by the Article.

To obviate these difficulties we propose provisionally and subject to review by the International Blockade Commission :—

(a) It shall be the duty of the Secretary-General to call the attention of the Council to any facts which in his opinion show that a Member of the League has become a Covenant-breaking State within the meaning of Article 16.

(b) Upon receiving such an intimation the Council shall hold a meeting with the least possible delay to consider it, and shall send a copy of the proces-verbal of the meeting to all the other Members of the League.

(c) As soon as a Member of the League is satisfied, in consequence of the communication of the proces-verbal of the Council, that a breach of Covenant within the meaning of Article 16 has occurred, it is its duty to take measures for the purpose of carrying out the first paragraph of Article 16 ;

(d) These measures should include the breaking off of all diplomatic relations. But relations which exist for purely humanitarian purposes may be maintained with the Covenant-breaking State ; and

(e) The prevention of any commercial or other intercourse between the residents within its borders and those residing in the Covenant-breaking State. For this purpose the necessary legislation preventing intercourse between the residents of the two States should be immediately passed, according to the constitution of each Member of the League ;

(f) Where the Covenant-breaking State has a sea-board, it will be necessary to institute an effective blockade thereof, and the Council should forthwith consider which Members of the League can most conveniently be asked to discharge this duty.

3. Beyond this it is a matter for consideration what further steps ought to be taken to carry out Article 16, and this should be referred to the International Commission. For instance :—

(a) It is very desirable that identity of action by all the Members of the League against the Covenant-breaker should be secured.

(b) Further, there are questions as to relations between nationals of the Covenant-breaking State and those of other Members of the League which require consideration.

(c) It is also desirable to consider, in accordance with the proposals made by Denmark, Norway, and Sweden, what action should be taken in the case of Members of the League who, from smallness of their resources and their geographical position, might be in serious danger if they carried out to the full their obligations under the first paragraph of Article 16 against a powerful Covenant-breaking State. This is a matter which may have to be considered at any moment from a practical point of view if the necessity for coercion of a Covenant-breaking State should arise. In that case the Council would have to take whatever measures it thought suitable for the emergency.

But, both in this last case and in the others before alluded to, the questions involved were thought by the Sub-Committee to be too complicated for them to deal with, and they should, therefore, be referred to the International Blockade Commission, with other difficult questions, such as :—

(d) How the blockade can be enforced where a State not a Member of the League is a neighbour of the Covenant-breaking State, and (e) What restrictive measures of a financial character can and ought to be taken.

4.—(a) With regard to the States not Members of the League who have been invited under Article 16 to accept the obligations of membership, and have acceded to that invitation, the observations and recommendations in this Report apply to them as if they were ordinary Members of the League.

(b) Where a State has been invited and has refused to accept the obligations of membership, and has resorted to war against a Member of the League in disregard of any procedure such as that provided for by Article 15, the Members of the League must treat it in precisely the same way as if it were a Covenant-breaking Member of the League within Article 16.

(c) Where neither party to a dispute is a Member of the League, and they both refuse to accept the obligations of membership of the League for the purposes of that dispute, Article 16 does not apply, and the Council are left to take such measures as they think right. But in this last case, if the measures recommended by the Council should involve action by any other Member of the League, it has a right to be summoned to the Council with the position of a full Member for the consideration of the proposed measures, and consequently none of them affecting it can be adopted without its consent.

5. Any proposal which the International Blockade Commission may recommend, and which is of a nature to require amendment of the Covenant, will naturally be referred to the Committee that is to be set up for consideration of all amendments to the Covenant.

Annex 14.—Report of Sub-Committee A. of Committee No. VI. on Armaments.

The Sub-Committee on Disarmament have held five meetings and have examined Sir Cecil Hurst on the juridical aspect of the Arms Traffic Convention, and three witnesses from the Military Commission established under Article 9 of the Covenant.

The Sub-Committee addressed their attention to the following subjects :—

Arms Traffic Convention.

1. The Sub-Committee were impressed by the great importance of this Convention, and by the desirability of obtaining ratification of the Convention with as little delay as possible.

2. The Sub-Committee, having regard to the paragraph in Article 8 of the Covenant, which runs as follows :—

"The Members of the League agree that the manufacture by private enterprise of munitions and implements of war is open to grave objections. The Council shall advise how the evil effects attendant upon such manufacture can be prevented, due regard being had to the necessities of those Members of the League which are not able to manufacture the munitions and implements of war necessary for their safety," discussed the general aspects of the problem and invited the Permanent Military Commission to give evidence upon it. The Sub-Committee ascertained that the subject had not yet been taken in hand by the Military Commission, although the Commission had prepared tables of enquiry for circulation among the Members of the League, which provide for some of the preliminary statistical information upon which a decision might be based. The Sub-Committee consider that the question indicated in Article 8 of the Covenant is one which certainly deserves serious enquiry, and hold that the sooner this inquiry is undertaken the better, in view of the large stocks of war material now accumulated in the belligerent countries. Accordingly, the Sub-Committee recommend that the Council should ask the competent Commissions to consider the question of the private manufacture of armaments and to report on it with as little delay as possible.

3. The Sub-Committee, taking account of the paragraph in Article 8 of the Covenant, which runs as follows :—

"The Members of the League undertake to interchange full and frank information as to the scale of their armaments, their military, naval and air programmes, and the condition of such of their industries as are adaptable to warlike purposes," invited the Military Commission to give evidence upon the steps which had already been taken, or which were in contemplation, to give effect to this provision. The Sub-Committee ascertained that the Military Commission have already been asked by the Council to consider plans for obtaining military information ; that a questionnaire has already been prepared and that it will probably be submitted to the Council before the Assembly rises. The Sub-Committee attach importance to the execution of this provision of the Covenant ; and trust that the Council, upon receipt of the Report of the Commission, will communicate it without delay to the Members of the League. The Sub-Committee are also of opinion that if the questionnaire were available for consideration by the Committee of the Assembly before it has terminated its labours, the Committee will probably be glad to take note of it.

The Sub-Committee have no doubt that the Military Commission will, in conjunction with the Secretariat, make all the necessary arrangements for the interchange and publication of the information received in response to the questionnaire issued under the authority of the Council.

Some members of the Sub-Committee having drawn attention to the right of verification as a corollary to and a consequence of a frank and complete exchange of information, the Sub-Committee express the hope that the Council will take into consideration the machinery to be adopted when the principle of verification has been established by an amendment to the Covenant.

4. The Sub-Committee took into consideration the question as to whether it was desirable for the Council to invite the Military Commission to undertake the duty of reviewing or revising the laws of war. The Sub-Committee noted that the question of gas warfare had already been referred to the Military Commission, and that the Commission had reported upon it. While the Sub-Committee are of opinion that the question of defining the sphere of legitimate warfare and of attempting to limit the use of barbarous weapons is of great importance, it is inclined to hold that the more immediate task of the Military Commission is to prepare the way for the reduction of armaments, and that this task is so formidable and complex that the Commission should not at present be invited to deal with the revision of the laws of war, a matter which involves other than strictly military problems.

5. The Sub-Committee investigated with some care the composition of the Permanent Military Commission and its methods of work. They realise that the Permanent Military Commission is firstly a body of technical advisers to the Council, and secondly, a body of military experts responsible to their respective Governments. The governing idea of the Military Commission is, that through its agency the Council may be placed in immediate contact with responsible military opinion in the States represented on this body. The Sub-Committee, also, agree with the view that the Council is entitled to the best technical advice in respect of the execution of Article 8, and, finally, that the responsibility of the several members of the Military Commission to their respective Governments imparts a special weight to their counsels.

On the other hand, the Sub-Committee were of the opinion (1) that questions would from time to time arise upon which the Council would rightly and properly desire to supplement the technical military advice of its Permanent Military Commission by expert information of another kind, e.g., in the sphere of politics, economics or social science. The Sub-Committee are of opinion that the Council might make use of the Economic Section of the Secretariat, and that it might appoint special civilian committees ad hoc to examine from an economic, social or political standpoint such problems connected with disarmament as might from time to time be convenient to submit to it. And (2) that special occasions might arise upon which the Council might be disposed to refer a matter to the Military Commission in their capacity as a body of military experts without reference to their respective Governments.

6. Finally, the Sub-Committee desire in the most solemn way possible to register their belief in the vital necessity of reducing the burden of armaments in the world; and of influencing public opinion to this end, through a concentrated effort of popular education in the various countries of the League. The Sub-Committee are aware that a comprehensive scheme of disarmament based on a thorough feeling of trust and security as between nation and nation, cannot be looked for at once. They do not ignore the fact that the world is still disturbed, and that a complete and comprehensive scheme of disarmament depends upon the following conditions:—First, upon the complete fulfilment, under the responsibility of the Powers signatory to the Treaties of Peace, of the reduction of armaments imposed by the above-mentioned Treaties upon certain of these Powers; secondly, upon the exercise of the right of investigation accorded by those Treaties to the Council of the League of Nations, in order to maintain that reduction; and lastly, upon the collaboration of the other great military Powers which have hitherto remained outside the League.

The Sub-Committee are aware that progress must be effected in successive stages. The first stage would be reached if a general agreement could be framed between Members of the League not to exceed their present scale of armaments save at the request of the League or in circumstances recognised as exceptional. A further measure of progress would be realised if a general agreement were reached for a proportionate and simultaneous reduction either in the scale of armaments or in the existing military budgets of the Members of the League. The third stage would be the acceptance of disarmament, by which term the Sub-Committee understand a scientific and comprehensive reduction of armaments under the supervision of the League to the lowest figure compatible with national security. In other words, the Sub-Committee draw a distinction between limitation of armaments, reduction of armaments, and disarmament, and regard these as three successive stages in the journey which has to be accomplished.

Though the Sub-Committee are aware that in the present disturbed state of the world progress along this road cannot be as fast as the Members of the League would desire, they are nevertheless of opinion that many useful steps in the right direction can and should be taken at once, and these are indicated in the third resolution attached to the Report.

The Sub-Committee are also of opinion that an effort should be made to enlist the interest of Powers at present standing outside the League in the great task of preparing the way for disarmament.

While the Sub-Committee feel that a limitation of armaments is an object which might be achieved with comparative ease, they are not prepared to make positive recommendations with respect to the formula which should govern the subsequent process of reduction. While many members of the Sub-Committee expressed the view that a scheme of proportionate and simultaneous reduction in the existing military budgets of the Members of the League might, with all due and proper qualifications, be found to provide the simplest and most practical formula for reduction, it was realised, on the other hand, tha in a period of unsettled prices, and while great military Powers stand outside the orbit of the League, a hard and fast scheme of budgetary reduction is encompassed with difficulties which are not indeed insuperable, but are certainly real. The Sub-Committee conclude by presenting to the Committee the following resolutions.*

ANNEX 14 (A) :—Report on the Arms Traffic Convention.

1. Arms of precision in the hands of individuals in the less civilised areas of the world may constitute a great danger to the peace, order, and security of those areas, and unless a rigid control over the traffic in firearms can be maintained the task of governing those areas is gravely complicated. This fact has been recognised for many years past, and found expression in the Brussels Act, 1890, which instituted a strict control of the Arms Traffic over a large portion of the continent of Africa.

* Not reprinted here. For the Resolutions and Recommendation adopted by the Assembly, see Appendix II., Resolutions Nos. 24-26, and Recommendation No. 2.

2. There is another element of which account must be taken. Experience in all civilised countries during the last few decades has shown the use which persons of evil disposition, such as anarchists and criminals, can make of high explosives, automatic pistols, and similar commodities; commodities of which vast quantities must be manufactured and used in time of war.

3. One of the inevitable consequences of a great war is that on its conclusion the belligerent Governments will find themselves in possession of large stocks of arms and munitions of all kinds, and unless some measures of control are taken these stocks may be dissipated as soon as peace is concluded, and may become a source of great danger to other States. It was for this reason that at an early date the Allied Governments decided that it would be well to agree upon a common policy with regard to the disposal of such stocks, and to the control of the traffic in arms and munitions.

4. The Convention signed at St. Germain on 10th September 1919 for the control of the trade in arms and munitions embodies the conclusions of a Special Commission appointed by the Allied Governments to study this question during the Peace Conference in Paris. It deals with the difficulties referred to in the earlier paragraphs of this Report in two ways: firstly, by provisions relating to the control of exports of arms and munitions from the territories of the contracting parties; and, secondly, by defining the areas within which the arms traffic constituted an especial danger and instituting a very stringent control of imports of arms into such areas.

5. By the terms of this Convention exports of weapons of war (defined as "artillery of all kinds, apparatus for the discharge of all kinds of projectiles, explosive or gas-diffusing, flame-throwers, bombs, grenades, machine guns and rifled small-bore breech-loading weapons of all kinds") and of ammunition for such weapons are to be prohibited absolutely, subject only to one exception, viz., that licences can be granted for exports of such arms for the use of the Government itself or of the Government of another contracting party. Exports of firearms and ammunition not covered by the term "weapons of war" are prohibited to the danger zones referred to above, except under licence. Licences may be granted only if and when the Government granting the licence has satisfied itself that the arms will not be used in a manner which involves any violation of the Convention.

Particulars of all export licences are to be published and also to be communicated to a central office, which will be under the control of the League of Nations. This office will also receive statistical information from the Governments of each of the contracting parties as to all exports of arms which under the provisions summarised above do not entail a licence. Publicity is therefore ensured.

6. The areas within which the trade in firearms is subjected to strict control consist of: Africa (excluding Algeria, Libya, and the Union of South Africa), Trans-Caucasia, Persia, the Arabian Peninsula, and the Asiatic territories which formerly belonged to Turkey, together with a maritime zone, including the Red Sea, the Gulf of Aden, and the Persian Gulf.

Within these areas arms and ammunition can only be imported at specified ports. They must be deposited in warehouses unless they are required for Government use, or are going to localities in which the inhabitants are allowed to have arms in order to protect themselves, or are being moved to other depôts authorised by the Government, or are for use by authorised individuals.

No person can trade in arms without a licence, his premises must fulfil certain conditions, and an exact register must be kept of every item in his stock. A special licence is required if any arms or ammunition are to be moved from one place to another. No person may give or transfer arms or ammunition to another without a licence. Manufacture of arms in these areas is prohibited, except in Government workshops, and repairs of arms are prohibited, except in licensed workshops.

There are also provisions prohibiting the transport of arms in dhows or other native vessels of less than 500 tons, except between ports of the same State; in the latter case, arms can be transported with a licence.

7. The Convention was signed by all the Allied Powers at Paris, and contained a clause pledging the parties to use their utmost efforts to induce all Members of the League of Nations to adhere to it. As between the parties the Convention replaces the provisions of existing international conventions on the subject, i.e., the arms traffic portion of the Brussels Act.

8. In addition to the general prohibition of the exports of arms, munitions and war material by the ex-enemy Powers which is provided for in the various treaties of peace (e.g., Versailles, Article 170, para. 2) each of these Powers undertakes to accept and observe any Convention made by the Allied Powers relating to the trade in arms (Versailles, Article 126, St. Germain 373, Neuilly 290, Trianon 356, Sèvres 9).

9. It should also be remembered that under Article 23 (d) of the Covenant the League of Nations is entrusted with the general supervision of the trade in arms and ammunition with the countries in which the control of this traffic is necessary in the common interest, that is to say with the zones referred to in para. 6 of the present Report, and is given the supervision of the Central Office referred to in Article 5 of the Convention.

10. Such are in outline the provisions relative to the arms traffic which formed part of the Peace settlement effected in 1919.

At the time when the Convention of St. Germain was drawn up it was realised that in certain countries the complete execution of its provisions might necessitate legislation, and that some delay might therefore ensue before all the signatory Powers were ready to deposit their ratifications, but it was considered that the control of the export of arms during the period between signature and ratification was a pressing matter. For this purpose a Protocol was drawn up and signed by all the plenipotentiaries on the same day as the Convention to the effect that they would regard it as contrary to the intention of the High Contracting Parties and to the spirit of the Convention that pending its coming into force any measures should be taken by one of the Parties which were contrary to its provisions.

[APP. III, ANNEX 14—contd.] 100

This Protocol was understood to mean that pending the coming into force of the Convention exports of arms ought not to be allowed which violate the Convention, but on the other hand it was not intended to prevent exports which would be permissible after the Convention came into force. The Protocol therefore constituted no obstacle to exports of weapons of war to a Government which expressed its readiness to adhere to the Convention as soon as such adhesion could be accepted.

11. Up to the present time only two Powers have ratified the Convention, viz., Siam and Greece. Brazil, Chile, Esthonia, Finland, Colombia, the Netherlands, Persia and Venezuela have signified their willingness to adhere to the Convention when the opportunity occurs, and in the meantime to observe the provisions of the Convention and the Protocol. Spain has made a corresponding announcement, but has indicated a desire to arrange for the exclusion of the Spanish possessions in North Africa, other than the Spanish zone in Morocco, from the operations of the Convention. Guatemala, Haiti and Peru figure among the list of the signatory parties to the Convention, but their plenipotentiaries did not sign it ; these three Governments have, however, now indicated their intention to adhere to the Convention.

12. The full execution of the Convention and the Protocol has been hindered by the absence of the necessary statutory authority over the control of exports of arms in the United States of America, a country where arms are manufactured on a large scale. In the case of arms which belonged to the American Government the executive authorities were in a position to carry out the provisions of the Convention, but the export of arms and munitions by private firms could not be controlled except to certain destinations, e.g., Mexico, Turkey and Soviet Russia. This circumstance has rendered it impossible to obtain the enforcement of the provisions of the Convention and Protocol by the other signatory Powers, as their Governments did not feel justified in inflicting severe losses on the manufacturing industries of their country by prohibiting manufacture and export, when the effect of such action would not terminate the trade in arms, but would merely divert it into other hands.

13. An understanding has now been arrived at between the various States which have accepted the obligations imposed by the Convention that until it is ratified they will take no action which is contrary to the provisions relating to export and control of arms in the areas mentioned in para. 6 of this Report. No formal Protocol embodying this understanding has been drawn up, but it has been acted on since July 1920.

14. No one can fail to recognise the importance of securing the universal acceptance and execution of the policy of bringing the arms traffic under the strict control which was provided for by the Convention of St. Germain. Unfortunately it is equally true that powerful interests in each country will oppose with success the introduction of such control until it can be made universal. No State is likely to sacrifice the interests of its traders when the sole result of doing so would be to divert the trade to their rivals. It must therefore be the object of the League of Nations, which is charged with special duties in connection with the traffic in arms, to secure the early and universal ratification of the Convention.

ANNEX 15.—Report of Sub-Committee C of Committee No. VI. on Mandates.

The Sub-Committee has held five meetings and has arrived at the following conclusions.

There was considerable difference of opinion amongst the members of the Committee as to the proper construction to be placed upon the penultimate paragraph of Article 22. Some of them held that this paragraph gave to the Assembly the first right of dealing with Mandates. Others went even further, and considered that the League was entitled to settle what countries should be mandatories. Others, again, held that it was the intention of this paragraph to give to the Council the exclusive right of settling the terms of the Mandates unless they had been settled by the Allied and Associated Powers. The Sub-Committee decided not to enter into any of these questions. They took as a basis of their consideration of the subject the fact that the question of Mandates was already in the hands of the Council, and in the interests of orderly administration they did not feel that it would be desirable to attempt to take it out of their hands. At the same time they desire to suggest that the whole question of the position and powers of the League in regard to Mandates and the relations of the Council and the Assembly in this respect should be a matter for consideration and possibly for further action by the Assembly at some future date.

The matter actually considered by the Sub-Committee therefore divides itself into two parts : the Mandate Commission and the Mandates themselves.

With regard to the Mandate Commission, the Sub-Committee generally approves of the plan adopted by the Council. But some members of the Sub-Committee, on the strength of the grounds set forth in the Secretary-General's Memorandum to the Council of the 12th October 1920, expressed their regret that the Council had taken its decision in this respect at a time when the Assembly was sitting without availing themselves of its assistance.

As things stand only one or two special questions can be touched. Since no part of the Commission will be nominated by the Assembly it seems to be the more important that its members should be elected for a definite period or, if elected for an indefinite time, should not be dismissed without the assent of the majority of the Assembly. The Sub-Committee further desire to urge upon the Council the importance of having at least one woman member of the Commission in view of the great importance of questions affecting women and children in the administration of the mandated countries. Further, they desire to suggest that the mandatories should be asked forthwith to present a report as to the administration of the countries now given to them under a Mandate, of which generally speaking they have already been in armed occupation.

As to the Mandates, the Sub-Committee have found themselves in considerable difficulty. They felt that, particularly with regard to A Mandates, they could scarcely make any recommendations of value without being put in possession of the draft Mandates on which the Council were working. They were informed that the Council had before them draft Mandates for Syria, Mesopotamia and Palestine, and they accordingly asked that these drafts might be shown to them. As will be seen from the annexed correspondence,* the Council refused to allow them to see the drafts, except upon the condition that they should make no reference to their provisions in their Report, a decision which, the Sub-Committee regret for the reasons which appear in the correspondence. They ought, perhaps, to point out that, though the last letter from the Council is not very explicit on the point, they enquired from the Secretary-General whether the Council intended to uphold their decision as to the confidential nature of the drafts, and were informed that that was the Council's intention. The Sub-Committee are not aware whether any drafts for Mandates B or C have been submitted to the Council. None have been furnished to them.

As to the C Mandates, the Sub-Committee are of opinion that since the mandated countries are to be administered as part of the territory of the mandatory, the terms of the C Mandates can be very little more than a repetition of the conditions already contained in the Covenant, and there does not seem much room for difference of opinion as to what these Mandates should contain.

The same is, to some extent, true of B Mandates, where the conditions in the Covenant are also pretty clearly defined. While in both Mandates the general intention of the Covenant that the mandated territories should be administered for the well-being and development of their inhabitants as a sacred trust of civilisation is of the utmost importance, in the B Mandates it may be necessary to enter into greater detail. The Sub-Committee have not had time to examine this question properly, but they have had before them a draft B Mandate prepared by the British League of Nations Union, which seems to contain provisions well worthy of the consideration of the Council in settling the form of Mandates of this class. The Sub-Committee accordingly annex a copy of this draft.*

With regard to A Mandates, it is evident that the theory on which they are based, namely, that of independent States assisted by the mandatory, leaves roof for a much greater variety of terms than in the other two classes. And the Sub-Committee felt that the only way in which they could be of any real assistance would be by way of criticising drafts which were under the consideration of the Council. As the Council have declined to avail themselves of this assistance, the Sub-Committee do not think that they could usefully make any detailed recommendations on the subject. They desire, however, to make some general observations.

In the first place, they feel that the mandatory should not be allowed to make use of its position in order to increase its military strength. Secondly, they feel that the mandatory must not be allowed to use its power under the Mandate in order to exploit for itself or its friends the natural resources of the mandated territory. Thirdly, they are of opinion that the objects of the Covenant can only be fully achieved by the proper working out of the Mandate under an organic law. They therefore think that such a law should be passed in the mandated territories as soon as possible, and that before coming into force it should be submitted to the League for examination.

Finally, they regret that, owing to the course the Council have taken, there has been no opportunity for the public consideration of the draft mandates before they come into force and they trust that if any further delay should unfortunately take place, the draft mandates will be forthwith published.

ANNEX 16.—Situation in Armenia. Report presented to the Assembly by the Special Committee on Armenia.

The Armenian Committee appointed by the General Committee of the Assembly of 23rd November has met six times, with the object of enquiring into the situation in Armenia, in consequence of the invasion of that country by the troops and irregular bands acting under the authority of Mustapha Kemal Pasha, and of finding the best means to assist the Armenians in their struggle for independence, and eventually in their attempt to place the Armenian State on a sound basis.

According to the information which the Committee was able to obtain, it appears :—

That the Armenians had been unable to defend themselves from the Turkish attack, not because they were overwhelmed by the numerical superiority of the enemy, but because they were wholly lacking in organisation, military or political. As a matter of fact it is doubtful whether the Armenian Army is not larger than that of Kemal.

If, therefore, it is desired to come effectively to the assistance of the Armenians, there can be no doubt that it must be done not by sending a military expedition, or anything of that kind, but by giving to the Armenians the means of helping themselves. Without going into details, which it would be obviously improper at the present stage to discuss, the Committee is of opinion that for a comparatively moderate sum this object might be attained, provided that the right man can be found for the purpose of directing the necessary assistance.

The Committee are glad to note that considerable efforts are being made in the United States to raise a fund which should be applied for purposes of this kind.

The expenditure of such a fund should obviously be controlled by someone having the confidence of the donors, and your Committee have some reason to believe that other material assistance would be available for any serious enterprise such as is indicated.

Unfortunately, the present session of the Assembly will have come to an end before any definite result has been reached, and the Committee think it desirable that some agency of the League should remain in existence after the close of the Assembly, which would have full cognisance of all that has hitherto occurred and be able to keep in touch with further efforts in this direction.

They, therefore, recommend that the Assembly should ask the Council to re-appoint a Committee as from the end of the present session of the Assembly. The Committee would naturally be left at liberty to reorganise its work in the way it thought best having regard to the difficulty of frequent meetings of its members.

It is understood that the Committee would not be able in any way to pledge the responsibility of any Member of the League without their consent.

APPENDIX IV.

Certain Speeches delivered by the Delegates of India at Plenary Meetings of the Assembly.

ANNEX 1.—Speech delivered by His Highness the Maharaja Jam Saheb of Nawanagar, 7th December 1920, in the Debate on Typhus in Poland.

It is not necessary in addressing the Assembly of the League of Nations, the best informed and most cultured Parliament that has ever met, containing, too, a number of eminent scientists, to remind you that in this unhappy matter India is absolutely disinterested. Terrible as the present danger to Europe may be, terrible as it undoubtedly is, though it is a danger of dire infection which may easily spread into the adjoining countries of Western and Southern Europe—for instance, Germany, Italy, possibly France and even England—though the danger is terrible, India is, humanly speaking, immune from it, because climatic conditions do not favour the typhus germ as they do other epidemics. India has indeed her difficulties in respect of other maladies such as bubonic plague and famine,—in fact, India has enough and to spare. India, I repeat again, is disinterested in this matter. My subject is an unhappy one, no less unhappy than the horrors of Armenia, but I think myself happy that I am permitted to support a case so completely in harmony with the great and disinterested spirit of the Assembly of Nations, to support such a case before an audience which, by its essential character, is necessarily sympathetic to the cause I plead.

Under the inspiring sincerity of Lord Robert Cecil we saw this great Assembly, after months, nay years, of inaction by other bodies, rise as one man to aid helpless Armenia against her enemies. For myself, I can only speak with the tongue of men and not with the tongue of angels, but I beseech you to rise again now in aid, not of one people alone, but of many peoples attacked or in danger of being attacked by a more terrible and more destructive foe than a rebellious brigand, attacked by a fell pestilence and by all the train of social and economic perils which accompany such a pestilence. Let us not be under any misconception. It is not a matter alone of the disease and death of unhappy men, women and children in a central plague spot in Europe. It is a matter of grave and enduring social unrest and economic disruption in the very corridor of Europe, a region vital to the peace of Europe and of the world. Let me emphasise this social and economic danger. As I have said before, India is disinterested in this matter, but India is by no means ignorant of its bearings and its consequences. My country, nearly equal to all Europe in area, with its 315,000,000 inhabitants, with its 100,000,000 of labourers and industrials, with its scores of great and populous cities, has had terrible experiences of the social and economic consequences of plague and pestilence. Unfortunately India has recently been the home of great epidemics. I have seen in past years the plague camps in Bombay, in Delhi, in Ahmedabad, in Poona, and in other scattered regions of my country. Even in my own province of Kathiawar I have seen the horrors of bubonic plague and of cholera. I know the aftermath of political, social and economic dangers and difficulties. Famine and pestilence are close allies, and both of them are bosom friends of political turmoil. India in the past has had many experiences of such dangers and difficulties, but we have countered and overcome them. Prompt, energetic, and skilful action has always conquered.

Gentlemen, we are faced with a great emergency, no less an emergency than in the case of Armenia—a chronic emergency, mark you, which not only affects, and affects vitally, the well-being of the peace of Europe now and hereafter, but also concerns, and concerns vividly, the honour and reputation of the League of Nations itself. To what are we pledged by the Treaty of Versailles and the Covenant ? The nations of the world here assembled in your persons, Gentlemen, are solemnly and specifically pledged to endeavour to take steps in matters of international concern, for the prevention and control of disease. They are pledged to encourage and promote the success of all such efforts as are directed to the prevention of disease and the mitigation of the suffering of humanity throughout the world. Is not the condition of Eastern Europe a matter of international concern ? Manifestly it is, assuredly it is. Is not there disease in Eastern Europe ? Cannot we counter and prevent it ? Is not there suffering in Eastern Europe ? Cannot we mitigate it ? I maintain we can prevent it and we can mitigate it, and it is our bounden duty to try our utmost to do so. We are faced with the prospect of a great emergency, one of the very kind which this League was created to meet. Let us examine the position in which we find ourselves. At the instance of the International Health Conference, surely a supreme authority, the Council of the League last May instructed the Typhus Commission to deal with what was clearly a great emergency and to frame a scheme of action. The Conference advised wisely. The Council decided wisely. The Commission carried out its instructions well. Everything is ready, but—and it is a great "but" —the absense of funds holds up that which alone in these matters counts, namely, effective action. As we have just heard, three appeals were issued by the Council of the Great Powers to all other nations strongly urging the responsibilities of all countries from the point of view of economic, humanitarian, and direct danger. These appeals up to the present time have, it is to be regretted, met with little response, and it is for this reason that the Council decided to refer this matter to this Assembly, and it is up to us to act. Poland in her fight against typhus is fighting for all Europe, and not only for herself. All Europe, at any rate, should stand by her. Better still would it be were all the nations of the world here assembled to join in and take their full share. Let us realise that if we act we shall be acting not only in kindness and humanity, but also according to our primary function, that, is, to end war and clear the remnants of war—those remnants which the Treaty could not clear up. Though you can sign away the existence of hostilities, you cannot sign away their continuous consequences. Our duty bids us to clear them away, else we fail in the very object of our being. We must break this vicious circle, which is composed of economic disruption, social unrest, and disease : disease, social unrest, and economic disruption. The centre of this vicious circle is war and death. Break this circle and the centre must disappear.

[APP. IV., ANNEX 1—contd.] 103

Now let us ask ourselves what our specific task is. The specific necessity on the part of the Typhus Commission, and the associated Red Cross organisations, is to render into concrete reality, into effective operation, the excellent scheme which, thanks to equally excellent preparation, stands ready. Eastern Europe must be cleared and cleansed, especially Poland. Russia, we have just heard from the report, is sodden with disease. There is a great coming and going of infected persons. A barrier, and a stable barrier of defence must be established. We must fend off the dreaded pestilence as the ancient Romans fended off the barbarian hordes beyond the Rhine. Remember, Gentlemen, what great plagues did in the history of the past. The plague in the time of Justinian destroyed a large part of civilised humanity and uprooted the settlement of the ancient world. Remember, again, the plague of the Middle Ages and the dire political, social and economic effects. Remember that in India in 1918, quite near to us in time, the influenza epidemic in a few months, nay, in an incredibly short time, destroyed ten million lives, no less than three times the population of the whole of Switzerland. We must erect a barrier ; we must carry out the scheme—in fact, realise it. But in order that the scheme may be realised, and realised now, we must produce the necessary funds. Sir George Foster's Report cites the promises made, but unfortunately indicates that up to now but little has been done except by Siam. I am indeed glad to see the East at the front, at any rate in this. Surely those great countries and generous countries whose names appear in the report will remove their conditions and make good as early as possible their offers of aid. Conditional promises do not even cure an individual cold, much less do they control a widespread typhus epidemic. Therefore, for goodness sake, let us cease being hypothetical in face of such grave facts. But, although I may appear illogical and even inconsistent after what I have said, please permit me a little time within which to be hypothetical myself. I only heard of this matter four days ago, and you will all readily admit that in a task of such gigantic magnitude this is indeed short notice. Had I known before I left England perhaps it would have been possible for me to have done something substantial. As it is, my position is this :—On this Indian Delegation I represent the interests of the Ruling Princes of India, and as such I am unable to act in this matter without their previous sanction. But I will appeal to them as soon as I can. I will lay the matter fully, and with all the sympathy that I can command, before the Chamber of Princes which is shortly going to be opened, I think I am right in saying, in February next, and I trust and I hope and I sincerely believe that you will not be disappointed. I may also add that His Excellency the Viceroy of India is our President and he will also hear my appeal. Myself, I must frankly admit I am disappointed that I am unable to act in this matter to-day. I have in this matter no use for anything but action. I will do my best when and where I can, and as early as I can ; but I must in my final word emphasise to this distinguished and powerful Assembly one thing, and one thing only : Whatever happens, let us act.

ANNEX 2.—Speech delivered by Sir William Meyer, 15th December 1920, on his Report on the Traffic in Opium and other dangerous Drugs.

I do not propose to read again the somewhat full Report that I submitted upon the question of opium and kindred drugs—for kindred drugs are also provided for in Article 23 (c) of the Convention. I do not propose to take up your time by reading that Report now. It is printed in English and French, and those who are interested in the matter have the opportunity of perusing it. I only want to make a few supplementary remarks. I would point out, in the first place, that The Hague Convention of 1911-12 sifted and expanded the preliminary conclusions that had been arrived at at Shanghai in 1909, and formulated them in definite and carefully conceived terms, marking a great step in advance. It indicated the precious principle of international co-operation, which is specially necessary in regard to opium and kindred drugs, since these, being of small compass and great value, can be very easily smuggled. The country, therefore, which desires to keep out opium, for example, in order to do so effectively must obtain the assistance of those countries where opium is produced. This has been laid down definitely by Article 3 of The Hague Convention, which says that where a country has forbidden the import of opium, opium-producing countries shall not permit the export of opium to that country. Similarly, too, if a country, though not absolutely forbidding the import of opium, only allows it under very severe restrictions, the producing countries, in allowing their opium to be exported, are bound to see that these restrictions are complied with.

Then The Hague Convention laid down certain very important and valuable rules as regards the future of the Opium Traffic. I will just give a summary of these from my Report :—

(1) Raw Opium.—The contracting Powers undertake to enact laws for the control of the production and distribution of raw opium and to limit the number of ports through which export and import shall be permitted.

(2) Prepared Opium (which is used, for example, for smoking).—The contracting Powers will take measures for the gradual and effective suppression of the manufacture of, internal trade in, and use of prepared opium. They will prohibit the import and export of prepared opium, except as regards those Powers which are not ready to prohibit it immediately ; and even they undertake strictly to regulate the traffic and prohibit it as soon as possible.

(3) Medicinal Opium, Morphine, Cocaine, Heroin, etc.—The contracting Powers will enact pharmacy laws to confine the manufacture, sale and use of such drugs to medicinal and legitimate purposes. They will co-operate with one another to prevent the use of these drugs for any other purposes. Every effort will be taken to regulate the import and export, and to prevent these drugs coming into the possession of unauthorised persons ; they will not be exported from the territories of one contracting Power to those of another, except when consigned to persons furnished with the licences or permits provided for by the laws or regulations of the importing countries.

A special chapter is devoted to the trade with China, in which the contracting Powers undertake to reduce pari passu with measures taken by China itself the opium shops and dens in foreign territories, concessions and settlements in China ; and to prevent smuggling and illegal use of postal facilities in that country.

The contracting Powers were to examine the possibility of making it a penal offence to be found in illegal possession of opium and kindred drugs.

These measures, when they could be carried out, marked an enormous step in advance. There was, however, a serious difficulty in the carrying out of the Convention. The Conference which had been summoned by the United States Government, contained representatives of only 12 Powers, and in order to make the arrangements which it had approved really effective, it was necessary to obtain a world-assent; otherwise, for example, if Germany decided to put severe restrictions on the manufacture and export of cocaine and Austria did not adhere to the Convention, the cocaine producers in Germany could simply move across the border into Austria. To obtain such world-assent gave rise to many difficulties and required the holding of two supplementary Conferences, and when these difficulties were, as was hoped, in the way of being surmounted, war broke out and delayed everything for five years. It had, however, this compensation, that by the Treaty of Versailles and the corresponding Articles in other Treaties, signatories which had not already adhered to The Hague Convention undertook the obligation to do so. We have thus practically solved the difficulty of world co-operation, the only Powers still outside being Soviet Russia and other States which have arisen from the ruins of the old Russian Empire. These States are at present occupied with other matters; but Finland, at any rate, may be expected to adhere to the Opium Convention on her entry into the League.

I would remark, however, that certain States, which have already adhered to the Convention, either directly or through signing Peace Treaties, have not yet ratified. Among these are Switzerland, Chile, Salvador, Colombia, and Paraguay, and I would ask my colleagues from these States to influence their Governments to obtain speedy ratification, and Turkey, having not yet ratified the Treaty of Sèvres, has not yet ratified the Convention.

We have, however, on the whole every reason to be satisfied with the amount of world adhesion obtained, but now a good deal more remains to be done in other directions. In most States the full carrying out of the obligations imposed by the Convention will require the passing of fresh laws and regulations or expansion of some already existing, and it is necessary that this work should be taken in hand as soon as possible. I have already indicated in my Report what has been done in this connection in Great Britain and the British Empire generally. Article 21 of the Convention provided that all information in respect of such laws and regulations should be handed to the Netherlands Government, as also all necessary statistical information. Article 24 also provided that the Netherlands Government should act as intermediary in dealing with any questions that might arise hereafter as to the application of the terms of the Convention. Here, then, we have the main point on which the Netherlands Government requests relief from the arduous and honourable task which has hitherto been imposed on it. It is now for the League to act with reference to Articles 23 (c) and 24 of the Covenant. As to that I think there will be no doubt.

There remains, however, the question of how the League can best carry out its functions which it will take over. As I said in my Report, there are two alternatives :—

(1) That it should work through the Council and the Secretariat;

(2) That the Council and the Secretariat should be assisted by an Advisory Committee, consisting of the Members most closely interested in the opium traffic.

After full discussion in No. 2 Committee, the latter alternative was adopted, and the Resolution proposed by my right hon. friend, Mr. Barnes, was carried, subject to certain minor amendments. That Resolution has already been read to you by the Chairman of No. 2 Committee, so I need not read it again. It is the Resolution which you are asked to pass to-day. I venture to think that in passing this Resolution, making the League directly responsible for the carrying out of the beneficient Articles of The Hague Convention, we shall have taken a further step in advance in dealing with the pernicious traffic in opium and drugs, and shall have shown our earnest desire to co-operate in getting this traffic reduced to the smallest possible compass.

ANNEX 3.—Speech delivered by Sir William Meyer, 15th December 1920, in the Debate on India's Claim to Representation on the Governing Body of the International Labour Office.

I do not propose to move any Amendment or Resolution on this subject, but my Government wishes the Assembly to be in possession of the reasons for which India has felt and still feels aggrieved by her exclusion from the eight Powers of chief industrial importance contemplated in Article 393 of the Treaty of Versailles. A note stating the grounds on which India claims this position has been circulated as Assembly Document No. 226, and I need only add a very few remarks to the points there set forth.

The eight chief industrial Powers were to be selected by the Council of the League, but as that Council was not in existence at the time that the Washington Conference met towards the close of last year, the selection of the eight States of chief industrial importance was left to a special Organising Committee which contained representatives of the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan, Belgium and Switzerland. It is a somewhat remarkable coincidence that this Committee proposed all the seven States to which they collectively belonged as great industrial Powers. The eighth selected was Germany. India has never been able to understand on what valid principles some of the selections were made. For instance, why was Switzerland, whose population is about one-hundredth part of that of India, preferred to her? When the United States of America decided not to be for the present on the Governing Body of the Labour Office, Denmark was put in to replace her,—a selection which, with all respect to Denmark, was still less intelligible to India. It may be added that when it was a question of contribution to the funds of the League, India's importance was at once recognised. She was put into the first class of assessees, while Belgium and Switzerland were relegated to the third and Denmark to the fourth.

Among the documents which have already been furnished to the Assembly, are statistics which show India's pre-eminent claim, and I would merely mention here a few salient figures illustrating her industrial importance :—

Excluding peasant proprietors, there are nearly 28,000,000 agricultural workers who come within the scope of the International Labour Office. She has 141,000 maritime workers, lascars, etc., and in this respect comes second only to the United Kingdom. She has over 20,000,000 workers in industries, including cottage industries (in which the "industrials" of Japan are also largely employed), mining and transport. Factories, mines and railways provide employment for nearly 2,000,000 people. The mileage of her railway system is in excess of every country except the United States. Her export of manufactured goods, in itself very considerable, would be much greater were it not for the huge size of the country and the resultant large home consumption. The export test, of course, favours countries whose home area is relatively small.

The results of the actual constitution of the Governing Body were that out of a total of 24 Members, it included no less than 20 representatives of European countries. I think that it will be admitted that this was a very unsatisfactory allocation considering that the Governing Body has to deal with questions of world-wide interest materially affecting non-European countries. In fact, the Conference at Washington last year felt this so strongly that it passed a Resolution expressing its disapproval on this ground of the composition of the Governing Body.

The Council of the League, having now come into definite existence, India lodged a protest with it, the result of which is set forth in the Council Report of 5th August 1920. The Council expressed itself as fully conscious (to use its own words) of the magnitude of India's industrial output, the large number of her population engaged in industrial pursuits, the international importance of her overseas trade, and other circumstances which might be urged in favour of her claim to be one of the eight States of chief industrial importance. The Council considered itself, however, precluded from taking any immediate action in support of India's claim, for reasons set forth in its Report of 5th August last, already referred to. I will not discuss these in detail now, but will merely say that they seem to India to savour too much of technical pleading, as, for instance, that the Council was not in existence when the Governing Body was organised ; that the composition of the Governing Body was endorsed by the Conference at Washington—I have already indicated that the Conference passed what may be called a vote of censure on the composition of the Governing Body—that recognition of India's claim would involve the elimination of some other State ; that the Council did not know the principles on which the Organising Committee had acted and found some difficulty as to the exact meaning of the words "industrial importance." Surely it is not more difficult to come to a conclusion as to what are the most important industrial Powers of the world than to specify what are the Great Powers with reference to other matters.

The Council, therefore, held that the existing Governing Body should sit on till 1922, and in the meantime proposed to investigate the methods of coming to a decision on the "industrial importance" question, and directed the Secretary-General to take this matter up with the International Labour Office.

It may be urged that, after all, consideration of India's claim was only delayed for two years more, but it is just those early years that are of importance having regard to the fact that principles will be evolved and precedents created, and that a great Oriental country with its special labour conditions, deserves special consideration.

One more point I may mention, having regard to the penultimate paragraph of Article 4 of the Covenant, which states that any Member of the League not represented on the Council should be invited to send a Representative to sit as a Member at any meeting for the consideration of matters specially affecting the interests of that Member. It seems to me that India ought to have been asked to send a special Representative to the Council Meeting which resulted in the Report of 5th August.

I quite realise that, although the decision arrived at has been a bitter disappointment to India and to her intellectual and industrial classes, who are apt to look suspiciously on procedure which in their view subordinates the interests of Asia to Europe, Committee No. 2 were technically justified in holding that the Assembly was not in a position to over-ride the Council's decision. We had not, in fact, asked for this. What we did hope was that a sympathetic reception of our representations might nevertheless lead to some solution which would have been welcomed by us. For instance, the resignation of the Governing Body on the ground that it had been selected, if I may say so, in a somewhat irregular way, and its replacement at the Conference of 1921 by a body which would be more regularly constituted under the Council's decision as to what the eight industrial Powers are, would have effected a satisfactory solution.

It was for these reasons that my Government desired that the matter should be ventilated before the Assembly, and the fact that the claim was included in the Assembly's Agenda seemed to us to show that it was regarded as prima facie suitable for discussion. But as I have said, though disappointed with the decision of Committee No. 2, we must for the moment endure it. We can only wish that the Governing Body were constituted in a manner which would render it more capable of giving full consideration not merely to India's interests but, generally, to those of countries outside Europe.

Annex 4.—Speech delivered by Sir Ali Imam, 15th December 1920, in the Debate on India's Claim to Representation on the Governing Body of the International Labour Office.

The hour is late, and I should be guilty of trespassing on the attention of the Assembly if I were to say one word more than is necessary. The case has been so admirably put before the Assembly by my colleague Sir William Meyer that it is not necessary for me to point out the importance of India from the point of view of labour. With regard to a country where we have got over 60,000,000 of people employed in labour, if a voice is raised for representation on the Governing Body of the International Labour Bureau I suppose that there is some justification for it. But there is one point in connection with this that I would like to mention, and that is this. I heard it said, and I think that there is a certain amount of impression abroad, that because India is within the British Empire, therefore her membership of that Empire is sufficient for the protection of her interests. I would like to mention in this Assembly that so far as fiscal, economic and labour conditions are concerned there is not always necessarily identity between her interests and the interests of the rest of the British Empire. Therefore there is an additional reason why India should be given a certain amount of recognition. I know that the Assembly cannot decide this question : perhaps the Assembly cannot deal with this question, but when a voice is raised here that voice is heard in quarters where the appeal can be answered. Therefore I entirely support the views which have been put forward by my colleague Sir William Meyer.

ANNEX 5.—Speech prepared by His Highness the Maharaja Jam Saheb of Nawanagar and delivered on his behalf (owing to His Highness's absence through illness) by Sir Ali Imam, 17th December 1920, in the Debate on the Staff and Organisation of the Secretariat.

Mr. President, my colleague, His Highness the Maharaja of Nawanagar, having unfortunately fallen ill, I propose at his request to read to you the text of his speech which he intended to deliver in connection with the questions now before the Assembly. His Highness says this :—

Mr. President and Gentlemen, India has been prominent in criticism of the finances of the League, but, Gentlemen, please understand that from our point of view, what we most hope for is a sound system of external control over the spending departments. Why? Because, first, such control is the strongest means of winning confidence in our economical working, and, secondly, and above all, because such control defends us entirely from unjust criticism.

In our Indian finance we have first the Budget, second the Treasury Officers. Now, in the League of Nations we have, or shall have hereafter, the Budget, but I see no equivalent in the League of Nations of the Treasury check and control. Please, however, note this. In the League of Nations control of expenditure is specially and peculiarly necessary. Why? I will tell you. One strong motive for economy present in a State is absent in the League. In a State expenditure is reflected, automatically and sensibly, in taxation. The people and the Government feel expenditure acutely, because of taxation and political resentment of taxation. Taxation touches the spot.

In the Secretariat here this motive for economy is absent. There is no taxation on the League of Nations itself. The burden is transferred, far away, to the constituent States.

Now, it is quite certain that if our expenditure is not well controlled, if the method of that control is not patently effective and fully visible, the League will become unpopular in the constituent States. Therefore, for the sake of the League itself we must have well-proved and demonstrable control.

I further hold it as of paramount importance that the organ of control should be appointed by the Assembly. First, because the Assembly contains all the Members and the Council does not. Secondly, because the Council, which at present is supposed to exercise certain supervision, is too much occupied with other matters, and also, I would remark, is too closely connected—inevitably so—with the Secretariat.

It might in particular be a function, among others, of such an organ as I suggest, to sanction all new expenditure or reappropriation, either in excess of prescribed amounts or as between certain scheduled heads, provided, of course, that the Assembly had not already laid down a total which is not to be exceeded.

Another function I would allot to the organ is the framing and execution of a set of rules equivalent to our Civil Service Regulations and Code in India. These rules control all expenditure that can be mechanically controlled. They serve not only as an effective cure for leakages in ordinary departmental expenditure, but also, in a large measure—and this is of great value—as a system of pre-audit.

And such a system of pre-audit is of much assistance in framing an accurate budget. In general I would like to see this organ exercise the Treasury check and control as we know it in India.

This proposed organ or committee of three financial experts would have to sit permanently, and it would involve a certain cost. But I think the cost would be amply justified by results. The Treasury Officers are always well worth their cost. Crede experto.

I do make suggestions as to details. I put forward the idea of such a committee as one means of giving effect to the principle of control by the Assembly.

The underlying and relevant motive of my proposal is this :—I have a strong and definite objection to the Secretary-General or anyone else being in a position of uncontrolled freedom or of freedom merely nominally controlled, in regard to expenditure. Such a position is not fair to him and it is not fair to public opinion. And I consider that control by the Council—which has so much other work to do and necessarily is not technically expert—at best is in danger of being intermittent and even cursory, and at worst may become nominal and illusory.

After all, the money we spend is derived from all Members of the League—and the Assembly alone represents all Members of the League.

I feel that much depends upon a full and clear appreciation of this important truth.

One final point—a point on which I would lay great stress. Throughout our discussions in Committee 4 there ran an ever-recurring note, a kind of Wagnerian refrain.

We kept on saying—we kept on excusing ourselves by saying that, after all we are as yet in the chrysalis stage.

But—we keep on hoping, I take it, that we shall not be ephemeral. We distinctly hope not to emerge as butterflies.

Now, if we do not, here and now, take a determined stand on radical matters, such as financial control by the Assembly—then, I say, we risk failure and even dissolution.

ANNEX 6.—Speech delivered by Sir Ali Imam, 17th December 1920, in the Debate on the Staff and Organisation of the Secretariat.

I entirely agree with the views that my colleague, the Maharaja, has put forward in the speech I have just read out to the Assembly : in fact, the Indian point of view in regard to this matter is so strong that an amendment on behalf of the Indian Delegation has been taken. I trust that when the consideration of that amendment is taken up the view that there should be strong control by the Assembly of the finances of the League will be borne in mind. The Indian Delegation feels strongly on the subject, not only because in principle it is absolutely right that finances should be under control, but because so far—I do not know what will happen hereafter—for the purposes of payment India has been regarded as a first-class Power, although she may not have been regarded in other respects as such. There is one remark I should like to make with reference to the observation made by Sir James Allen in regard to the representation of various nationalities on the Secretariat. I entirely endorse the view put forward by Sir James, and congratulate the Secretary-General and the authorities of the Secretariat on giving due consideration to the claims of various nationalities, but I regret to find that in the whole long list of appointments made to the Secretariat I have failed to discover a single Indian. I feel sure that when greater publicity is given to the fact that no Indian is at present serving on the Secretariat or in a post in the patronage of the Assembly, this will be considered as a fair ground in filling appointments in the future.

ANNEX 7.—Speech delivered by Sir William Meyer, 17th December 1920, in the Debate on the League's Budgets.

I desire in the first place to congratulate my right hon. friend Sir George Foster on the splendid speech which he delivered in introducing the Report of Committee No. 4. It showed the great business acumen which one would expect from a distinguished statesman, and closed with a note of rare eloquence. The Report itself is also an exceedingly useful one, and Committee No. 4 deserves much credit for having dealt in such an excellent way with the very unsatisfactory position in which they find themselves. I had not an opportunity myself of sitting on that Committee, but I was in constant contact with my friend the Maharaja of Nawanagar, who did very useful work there, and whose absence to-day Sir George Foster has so feelingly deplored. Had he been here it would have been for him to speak on many of the points which I have now to take up in his absence. It is stated in the Report that the Committee were not satisfied with the way in which the Budget estimates had originally been presented, and it is quite right that they should have stated such dissatisfaction. The Secretariat and the Labour Organisation appear to have thought at first that the Assembly's endorsement of the Budget was a mere formality, and adequate information was not furnished in the first instance. So I have understood from my friend the Maharaja. There was considerable difficulty found in getting the requisite information, such as that relating to establishments. The Labour Office again absolutely failed at the outset to give any details of the very large sum of 7,000,000 gold francs which we are asked to vote, and I see to my surprise that there are no such details in the Report yet. I have received through the courtesy of Sir George Foster a summary of details which I understand are provisionally put forward by the Director-General because the governing body have not yet passed them. But I would ask that this summary, on which I shall comment presently, should be put on the record. There was also an incident referred to at the top of page 3 of the Report, namely, the Secretary-General's appropriation of the balance for a working capital fund without previous approval. Things are better now, and it has been distinctly recognised by Committee No. 1 in dealing with the Rules of Procedure that this Assembly is supreme in matters of finance. The proceedings in Committee No. 4 in its frequent meetings and the Report that has been submitted have shown that the Committee was determined to get to the root of things as far as it could. If I may condense the gist of the Report and of Sir George Foster's speech into a few words and read between the lines I should say that the meaning was : "We have found a very unsatisfactory state of things ; we have taken steps to prevent their recurrence and we hope that next year matters will be much better."

I may say here that I fully associate myself with Sir George Foster's claim for economy, and also with the corollary that true economy does not consist in merely cutting down estimates ; it consists in getting the best value for your money. I also entirely concur with the warning he gave that the purse of the League is not illimitable ; it has to be supplied by a number of States some of whom are not at all in good financial condition, and it is necessary therefore to go slowly and very often to abstain from voting things which might themselves be desirable because you would do harm in that way by making the League unpopular, as unduly expensive. The representatives of the British Empire especially acted on Committee No. 4, and it is right that they should have done, for I do not think it is generally realised that under the present allocation the British Empire, taken in its widest sense, pays over a quarter of the total expenses of the League.

I wish to pay my humble tribute to the Report of the Committee. With reference to the amendments which we tabled which are now before the Assembly, I may say that those amendments were drawn up before we had had the advantage of hearing Sir George Foster's speech to-day, and before the final version of his Report, and that now it will be possible for me to withdraw several of them. I entirely associate myself with the remarks just made by Sir James Allen as to salaries. We owe a great deal to the Secretariat. They have worked unremittingly and ungrudgingly. They have given us of their best. They have spared themselves in no way. I can imagine the sigh of relief with which they will hail the breaking up of this Assembly. But it is possible to pay too much even for a first-class article. I cannot help thinking that the original salaries were fixed at a time when people's thoughts were still occupied with war finance, when people were thinking in scores of millions and when 100,000*l.* here or 200,000*l.* there did not greatly matter. You have the reaction now. It is being felt in every part of the world—the desire to cut down expenditure and not lavishly to promote it. That was one of the points which we felt very strongly about. I shall deal, however, with this matter in regard to one of my amendments. We also had the Labour Organisation salaries. They, too, are very large. In a very ingenious memorandum by M. Albert Thomas which I had the pleasure of reading, he let us into the secret of how the salaries were fixed. He said : "We had to get people from Great Britain and America and Canada. These are countries which are notoriously extravagant in the methods of the payment of their officials ; but we had to get some men from these countries and we had therefore to pay them what they would have got in their native lands, and more also, for expatriation. Then we had to draw people from other countries whose pay as Civil Servants would be far less than the pay of those in the extravagant Anglo-Saxon countries, people from Latin countries, and others. But," says M. Thomas, "although the market value of those people would have been much lower, it would have been very undesirable to make differences. We must, therefore, give them also the same pay as if they had been drawn from Canada and Great Britain and Australia." That illustrates one of the dangers of an International Organisation.

Now I will take my first amendment. I need not read my amendments because you have all got them in your hands. In view of the explanation given by Sir George Foster, I withdraw that amendment. I withdraw the third amendment also.

I come to the fourth amendment, which proposed a reduction of expenditure. Our object in bringing that forward was to call attention to the large expenses which were being incurred in salaries, and of which I spoke just now. Having regard to the fact that the Report proposes the setting up of this Committee, and having regard to the supplementary fact that it was not stated in the first edition of the Report that the Assembly specifically reserves to itself, after having obtained the Report of this Committee, the right to cut down, if necessary, the existing scales of salaries, and not desiring to provoke any regrettable differences of opinion in this Assembly I withdraw No. 4 also. We now come to No. 5. No. 5 was passed at my instance in Committee No. 2 as a means of conciliation with the Canadian Delegation, who, it will be remembered, had made on the flour of this House some objections, partly on the matter of principle and partly in regard to expense, with reference to the Technical Organisations dealt with in the Report of Committee No. 2. The Canadian Delegation professed themselves satisfied in the matter of expense with this Resolution that Committee No. 2 passed at my instance. Having regard to what Sir George Foster said, and observing that he says he has put something in the Committee's Report to the same effect, I do not press No. 5 either.

I now come to No. 6. That is a very important Resolution. It raises an important question of principle, which was emphasised by His Highness the Maharaja in the speech made for him by Sir Ali Imam this morning. We welcome the appointment of the Special Committee that the Report proposes to set up ; but we hold that that is not enough. It is not enough to have an ad hoc Committee : but you must have some means of definite financial control sitting constantly, corresponding to the control exercised by the Finance Ministry of every country in regard to expenditure. Without that control every department, if we may compare the League to a Government Department for a moment, will soon become extravagant. I know that it may be said that the Council has control ; but, as the Maharaja observed, the Council is very much occupied with other matters. On the same principle, therefore, I maintain Resolution No. 6, but I will withdraw it for this year. I am satisfied with one thing at a time, and I am satisfied with the great advance in the way of adequate control that has been obtained through Sir George Foster's Report and by means of his explanations. Therefore, I repeat that while I entirely hold to the principle of No. 6 as a matter of expediency I will withdraw it.

Now I will come back to No. 2. That I reserved. It is as follows :—

"That with reference to recommendation (1) attached to the Committee's second Resolution, the Special Committee to be appointed to consider modifications in the Covenant should also consider what steps should be taken with reference to States which have not paid their quotas within a specified period."

Sir George Foster referred to a State which he said had played a prominent part in the League, but which had not paid its contribution.

That must be remedied. Let us compare the League for a moment to a club ; every well-organised men's club has a rule that members who deliberately abstain from paying subscriptions shall be suspended, and if they continue contumacious they shall be expelled. The object of my amendment is to ask the Committee, which is being set up to consider modifications in the Covenant, at the same time to consider what steps should be taken to deal with perpetual defaulters. One method suggested to me is that such States should not be eligible to send their representatives to serve on special Committees or to sit in the Assembly.

Now I come to No. 7. I think one of the greatest mistakes of the Covenant was this attachment of the expenses of the League to the Postal Union. The Postal Union is a relatively small affair ; its total expenses now do not exceed 300,000 francs a year, while ours run into millions. I think the proposal made is a waste of time.

That, Mr. President, is all I have to say, and you will see that out of my seven children I have only two left, and I desire that the arguments with regard to those two shall be taken into consideration by the Assembly.

APPENDIX V.

Miscellaneous Annexes.

ANNEX 1.—Rules of Procedure of the Assembly.

Rule 1.—1. The Assembly shall meet in General Session every year, at the seat of the League of Nations, commencing on the first Monday in September.

2. Sessions may also be held at such times as the Assembly at a previous meeting decides, and at such times as the Council, by a majority vote, decides.

3. If a Member of the League considers a Session to be desirable, it may request the Secretary-General to summon a Special Session of the Assembly. The Secretary-General shall thereupon inform the other Members of the League of the request, and enquire whether they concur in it. If within a period of one month from the date of the communication of the Secretary-General, a majority of the Members concur in the request, a Special Session of the Assembly shall be summoned.

Rule 2.—The Sessions of the Assembly shall be held at the seat of the League, or, in exceptional circumstances, at such place as is designated by the Assembly or by a majority of the Council, or approved by a majority of the Members of the League.

Rule 3.—1. The Sessions of the Assembly shall be summoned by the President of the Council, acting through the Secretary-General.

2. The summons shall be addressed to the Members of the League not less than four months before the date fixed for the opening of the Session. In exceptional circumstances, however, the Council, by a majority vote, may sanction a shorter period.

3. Nothing contained in para. 2 of this Rule shall affect the provisions, concerning special cases, contained in the Covenant.

Rule 4.—1. The agenda shall be drawn up by the Secretary-General with the approval of the President of the Council. The complete agenda shall be circulated as nearly as possible four months before the date fixed for the opening of the Session.

2. The agenda of a General Session shall include :—

(a) A report upon the work of the Council since the last Session ;

(b) A report by the Secretary-General upon the work of the Secretariat and upon the measures taken to execute the decisions of the Assembly ;

(c) All items whose inclusion has been ordered by the Assembly at a previous Session ;

(d) All items proposed by the Council ;

(e) All items proposed by a Member of the League ; and

(f) The Budget for the next fiscal period, and the report on the accounts of the last fiscal period.

3. Any Member of the League may, at least one month before the date fixed for the opening of the Session, request the inclusion of additional items in the agenda. Such items shall be placed on a supplementary list, which shall be circulated to the Members of the League at least three weeks before the date fixed for the opening of the Session. The Assembly shall decide whether items on the supplementary list shall be included in the agenda of the Session.

4. The Assembly may in exceptional circumstances place additional items on the agenda ; but all consideration of such items shall, unless otherwise ordered by a two-thirds majority of the Assembly, be postponed until four days after they have been placed on the agenda, and until a committee has reported upon them.

Rule 5.—1. Each Member shall communicate to the Secretary-General, if possible, before the date fixed for the opening of the Session, the names of its Representatives, of whom there shall be not more than three. The names of Substitute-Representatives may be added.

2. Each Representative shall, as soon as possible, and preferably before the opening of the Session, present his credentials to the Secretary-General.

3. A committee of eight members for the examination of the credentials shall be elected by the Assembly by secret ballot. The Committee shall report without delay.

4. Any Representative to whose admission objection has been made shall sit provisionally with the same rights as other Representatives, unless the Assembly decides otherwise.

Rule 6.—1. In addition to the Substitute-Representatives mentioned in para. 1 of Rule 5, the Representatives of a Member of the League attending the Assembly, acting together as a Delegation, may appoint substitutes. Any such appointment shall be communicated in writing to the President.

2. A Substitute-Representative appointed by a Member of the League may take the place of a Representative without nomination by the Representatives.

3. A Substitute-Representative or substitute may take the place of a Representative who is absent from a meeting of the Assembly, or is temporarily prevented from taking part in its deliberations, but if the Representative is present at the meeting the Substitute-Representative or substitute is only entitled to assist him.

4. A Delegation may appoint for service on a committee a deputy or technical adviser other than those referred to in the above paragraphs of this Rule; but a deputy or adviser so appointed shall not be eligible for appointment as Chairman or Rapporteur, or for a seat in the Assembly.

Rule 7.—1. The officers of the Assembly shall consist of a President and of six Vice-Presidents, together with the Chairmen of the main Committees of the Assembly, who shall be ex officio Vice-Presidents of the Assembly. These officers shall form the General Committee.

2. The President and the six Vice-Presidents shall be elected at the beginning of each Session.

3. Until the election of the President, the President of the Council shall act as President of the Assembly.

Rule 8.—1. The President shall announce the opening, suspension and adjournment of the meetings of the Assembly, direct the work of the Assembly, ensure the observance of the Rules of Procedure, accord the right to address the Assembly, declare the debates to be closed, put questions to the vote, and announce the result of the voting.

2. In the general direction of the work of the Assembly, in the constitution of such committees as the Assembly decides to create, in deciding on the communications to be made to the Assembly, in the framing of the agenda for each meeting, and in the determination of the order of priority for its various items, the President shall be assisted by the General Committee.

Rule 9.—1. The Secretary-General shall be responsible for the organisation of the Secretariat of the Assembly and of the Secretariat of any committees set up by the Assembly.

2. The Secretary-General may be assisted or replaced at the meetings of the Assembly by a deputy or deputies. The Secretary-General, or one of his deputies, may at any time, on the invitation of the President, bring before the Assembly reports concerning any question which is being considered by the Assembly, and may be invited by the President to make verbal communications concerning any question under consideration.

Rule 10.—1. It shall be the duty of the Secretariat, inter alia, to receive, print, circulate and translate documents, reports and resolutions; to translate speeches made at the meetings; to draft, print and circulate the Minutes of the Session; to have the custody and proper preservation of the documents in the archives of the Assembly; to publish the reports of the meetings; and generally, to perform all other work which the Assembly thinks fit to entrust to it.

2. All documents emanating from the Assembly shall be circulated to the Governments of the Members of the League.

Rule 11.—1. The public shall be admitted to the plenary meetings of the Assembly, by cards distributed by the Secretary-General.

2. The Assembly may decide that particular meetings shall be private.

3. All decisions of the Assembly upon items on the agenda, which have been taken at a private meeting, shall be announced at a public meeting of the Assembly.

Rule 12.—A list of the attendance at each meeting of the Assembly shall be kept by the Secretariat.

Rule 13.—At the beginning of each meeting the President shall present to the Assembly all communications addressed to the Assembly or to the League, the importance of which appears to him to warrant such action.

Rule 14.—1. The Assembly shall establish such committees as it thinks fit, for the consideration of the items on the agenda. Items of the same nature will be referred to the same committee.

2. The Assembly shall not decide items on the agenda in full meeting until the report of a committee upon them has been presented and circulated, unless the Assembly itself, by a two-thirds majority, determines otherwise.

3. Each Delegation may designate one member, and may nominate technical advisers for each committee.

4. Each committee shall appoint its Chairman and Rapporteur.

5. Each committee may appoint sub-committees, which shall elect their own officers.

6. Each committee shall meet in private unless it decides otherwise. It shall keep a Register of its discussions, and Minutes, which shall be published at the earliest possible date, but not until they have been approved by the committee. They may at any time be consulted by any member of the Assembly.

7. Every Representative shall have the right to place before any committee any communication which he considers should be made to it, but no Representative may, without special leave from the Chairman, speak at a meeting of any committee of which he is not a member.

8. The Secretary-General or his deputies may make to any committee or sub-committee any report or verbal communication which he or they may consider desirable.

Rule 15.—1. No Representative may address the Assembly without having previously obtained the permission of the President.

2. Speakers shall be called upon in the order in which they have signified their desire to speak. The Chairman and the Rapporteur of a committee may be accorded precedence for the purpose of defending or explaining the conclusions arrived at by their committee. The same principle shall apply to any member of the Council.

3. The President may call a speaker to order if his remarks are not relevant to the subject under discussion. If necessary he may direct the speaker to resume his seat.

[APP. V., ANNEX 1—contd.] 111

4. When a motion is under discussion, a Representative may rise to a point of order, and such point of order shall be immediately decided by the President in accordance with the Rules of Procedure.

5. The Assembly may limit the time allowed to each speaker.

Rule 16.—1. Speeches in French shall be summarised in English, and vice versa, by an interpreter belonging to the Secretariat.

2. A Representative speaking in another language shall provide for the translation of his speech into one of these two languages.

3. All documents, resolutions and reports circulated by the President or the Secretariat shall be rendered in both French and English.

4. Any Representative may have documents circulated in a language other than French or English, but the Secretariat will not be responsible for their translation or printing.

5. Any Member of the League, or any group of Members, may require that all documents and publications of the League shall be regularly translated into, and printed and circulated in a language other than French and English, but shall in such case defray all the necessary expenses.

Rule 17.—1. Resolutions, amendments and motions must be introduced in writing and handed to the President. The President shall cause copies to be distributed to the Representatives.

2. As a general rule, no proposal shall be discussed or put to the vote at any meeting of the Assembly unless copies of it have been circulated to all Representatives not later than the day preceding the meeting.

3 The President may, however, permit the discussion and consideration of amendments, or of motions as to procedure, without previous circulation of copies.

Rule 18.—1. During the discussion of any question, any Representative may move the previous question or the adjournment. Any such motion shall have priority in the debate. In addition to the proposer of the motion, two Representatives may speak in favour of, and two against, the motion.

2. Parts of a proposal shall be voted on separately, if a Representative requests that the proposal be divided.

3. A Representative may at any time move the closure of the debate, whether any other Representative has signified his wish to speak or not. If application is made for permission to speak against the closure, it may be accorded to not more than two speakers.

4. The President shall take the sense of the Assembly on a motion for closure. If the Assembly decides in favour of the closure, the President shall declare the closure of the debate.

5. When a number of proposals are before the Assembly, the proposal furthest removed in substance from the principal one shall be voted on first.

6. If an amendment striking out part of a proposal is moved, the Assembly shall first vote on whether the words in question shall stand part of the proposal. If the decision is in the negative, the amendment shall then be put to the vote.

7. When an amendment adds to a proposal it shall be voted on first, and if it is adopted the amended proposal shall then be voted on.

Rule 19.—1. Except where otherwise expressly provided in the Covenant or by the terms of a treaty, decisions of the Assembly shall be taken by an unanimous vote of the Members of the League represented at the meeting.

2. All matters of procedure at a meeting of the Assembly, including the appointment of committees to investigate particular matters, shall be decided by a majority of the Members of the League represented at the meeting.

3. All decisions taken in virtue of these Rules shall be considered as matters of procedure.

4. A majority decision requires the affirmative votes of more than half of the Members of the League represented at the meeting.

5. For the purposes of this Rule, Representatives who abstain from voting shall be considered as not present.

Rule 20.—The Assembly shall vote by "Appel Nominal," except when the Members of the League represented at the meeting agree that the method of voting shall be by heads of Delegations rising in their seats, and except in the cases provided for in Rule 12. The "Appel Nominal" shall be taken in the following manner :—

The Delegation of each Member of the League represented at the meeting shall be provided with two voting tickets, on which the name of the country is written, one red and one blue, the former being "Aye," the latter "No." The voting tickets shall be deposited in an urn placed near the President's platform. When all the votes have been collected, the President shall declare the ballot closed, and the General Committee shall proceed to count the votes. The individual votes shall be communicated to the Assembly and the result shall be announced by the President.

Rule 21.—1. All decisions relating to individuals shall be taken by a secret ballot.

2. If, when one person only is to be selected, no one person obtains at the first ballot an absolute majority of votes, an entirely new ballot shall be taken ; but on this occasion the voting shall be confined to the two candidates who obtained the largest number of votes at the first ballot. If there is at this ballot an equality of votes for the two candidates, the elder candidate shall be declared elected.

3. When a number of elective places of the same nature are to be filled at one time, those persons who obtain an absolute majority at the first ballot shall be elected. If the number of persons obtaining such majority is less than the number of persons to be elected, there shall be a second ballot to fill the remaining places, the voting being restricted to the unsuccessful candidates who obtained the greatest number of votes at the first ballot, not more than double in number the places remaining to be filled. Those candidates, to the number required to be elected, who receive the greatest number of votes at the second ballot shall be declared elected.

Rule 22.—In case of equality in any voting other than that referred to in Rule 21, in which a majority is required, a second vote shall be taken in the course of the next meeting; this meeting shall be held within 48 hours from the date on which the first vote was taken, and it shall be expressly mentioned on the agenda that a second vote will be taken on the matter in question. Unless there is at this subsequent meeting a majority in favour of the proposal, it shall be considered as lost.

Rule 23.—1. The President may declare a meeting to be adjourned or suspended, if a proposal for adjournment or suspension made by him does not meet with objection from the Assembly.

2. The President shall declare an adjournment or suspension of the meeting upon a vote to this effect by the Assembly.

Rule 24.—The General Committee, in cases where it deems it necessary, may revise the resolutions adopted by the Assembly, changing their form but not their substance. Any such changes shall be reported to the Assembly.

Rule 25.—The verbatim report of each meeting shall be drawn up by the Secretariat and submitted to the Assembly after approval by the President.

Rule 26.—The resolutions adopted by the Assembly shall be circulated by the Secretary-General to the Members of the League within 15 days after the termination of the Session.

Rule 27.—These Rules of Procedure shall apply to the proceedings of committees of the Assembly.

Rule 28.—These Rules of Procedure may be altered by a decision of the Assembly; but no such alteration shall be made except upon a majority vote of the Assembly, taken after a committee has reported on the proposed alteration.

ANNEX 2.—Report of MM. Professeur Th. Madsen, Director of the State Serum Institute, Copenhagen; Le Senateur Dr. Pottevin, Directeur adjoint de l'Office International d'Hygiene publique, Paris; Dr. F. Norman White, C.I.E., Medical Commissioner, Typhus Commission, League of Nations; invited by the Council of the League of Nations to proceed at once to Poland and to present in person a Report to the Assembly as to the exact position of the epidemic in Poland.

Our Commission entrusted with the task of studying existing sanitary conditions in Poland with special reference to the prevalence of typhus fever and cholera arrived in Warsaw on the 1st and 4th of November.

In view of the limited time at our disposal anything in the nature of a comprehensive investigation was out of the question.

We had therefore to limit our enquiry to a small number of representative places, which we submitted to as full investigation as possible.

The two areas visited were the northern part of the eastern territories (as represented by the towns of Lida, Grodno and Wolkowysk) and Galicia, where we visited Lemberg, Zolkiew, Nadworna, Zuraki, Bohorodczany, Stanislawow, Cracow, Wadowice, Sucha and Zakopane. In both cases we travelled by railway to the chief centres, from which we motored to smaller towns and villages in the neighbourhood.

A resume of our observations concerning typhus fever and cholera respectively is given below.

I.—Typhus Fever.

The area visited in the northern part of the eastern territory is poor and has suffered heavily as a result of the war which has been waged there almost incessantly since 1914. The retreat of the Bolshevik forces had taken place only a few weeks before the time of our visit. The destruction of a large number of houses, especially in the villages, has brought about an almost incredible amount of overcrowding. In one place we saw the entire population of a village which had been completely destroyed, and which had formerly consisted of a hundred houses, herded together in a single building which was itself in an advanced state of disrepair.

Requisitions have impoverished the country. Information given us by the local authorities indicates that food reserves for the winter are non-existent. The number of horses and cattle are reduced to a quarter of the pre-war standard.

Strictly speaking, this part of the country has never possessed a sanitary organisation. Before the war there was no zemstvos in these districts, and the elements of organisation insufficient in number which had been created by the Polish Government had been evacuated or destroyed during the course of the recent military operations: at the time of our visit these were in course of reconstruction.

In spite of the impossibility of obtaining epidemiological statistical data of any value, it is known that typhus existed in endemic form in this part of the country. Although the time of our visit did not coincide with the season of maximum incidence of typhus fever, we saw sufficient to indicate that the disease is extremely widespread and of a severe type.

In the towns, hospitals that had only been re-opened a few days already contained typhus patients. At Grodno, for example, the epidemic hospital, which had been re-opened three weeks previously, contained 150 patients suffering from either typhus or relapsing fever, in addition to which a further 70 typhus patients were accommodated in an annexe.

In the villages, typhus cases were found in large numbers, sometimes in every house visited. On one occasion we found in a single house eight patients in various stages of the disease in addition to two bodies of persons who had died of typhus, one on the day of our visit, the other the previous evening.

In Eastern Galicia, as in the area described above, warlike operations, which have continued with slight intermissions since 1914 almost up to date, have been responsible for very extensive destruction of dwellings. The resulting conditions of poverty and overcrowding are specially favourable to the propagation of epidemic disease, notably typhus fever.

The sanitary organisation, evacuated or destroyed during the course of the recent campaign, is in process of reconstruction, but at the moment it is impossible to obtain statistical data regarding the present prevalence of typhus fever. As an example of the lack of information we may cite our experience at Zuraki. This small village in the Bohorodczany district had reported no cases of typhus to the sanitary authorities : all the same, half-an-hour's house to house inquiry in a portion of the village resulted in the discovery of two typhus patients in one house, three in another, five in a third, and in a fourth we found all the occupants convalescent from a recent attack of the disease.

At the present time typhus is not prevailing in Eastern Galicia in the acute form in which it prevailed last spring. Nevertheless, the disease is very widespread and we found cases in every place visited, though in most instances few in number. Before the war typhus fever was endemic in a few well-defined areas of Galicia : to-day the whole of Eastern Galicia must be regarded as an endemic focus of the disease.

The results of the personal observations that we have been able to make do not permit of an opinion as to the course of typhus fever in Poland or the dangers that are likely to accrue to other countries. Abundant information concerning these matters is contained in the publications of the Polish Ministry of Health ; in the reports made in 1919 to the League of Red Cross Societies by M. M. Buchanan, Cummins, Castellani and Wisbeck, and in 1920 by Dr. Chodzko to the London Conference ; in the reports of Médecin principal Gauthier, Director of the Health Service of the French Military Mission, &c.

Here we would direct attention to the fact that the year 1919 and 1920 were both characterised by extremely severe epidemics. The number of cases notified—it is hardly necessary to point out that such figures are only an approximation very much below the actual numbers—were most numerous in 1919 in the months of April and May, when 34,875 and 34,807 cases respectively were reported, and in 1920 in February, 27,984 cases.

In June 1920, the last month for which statistics are available, 3,550 cases were notified in Congress Poland, 1,795 in Western Galicia, and 5,850 in Eastern Galicia ; these figures concern the civil population only. The incidence of the disease in the army of the interior varied in different cantonments between 0.01 and 0.60 per cent. (Lwow) with a mean incidence of 0.09 per cent. In prisoners' camps the typhus incidence amounted to 1.38 per cent.

The reports indicate that typhus is very unequally distributed in Poland. The north-western districts are practically free from the disease, as is also the district of Posen ; the southern and eastern districts are most seriously affected.

We may conclude that though typhus may not exist at the present time in the form of an acute epidemic (the present is the season of low incidence of the disease), it is very widespread throughout large areas notably in the south and the east. The areas we visited are infected to a degree of which official documents give no indication.

It is impossible to frame a forecast of the future course of an epidemic of disease now endemic over wide areas, but our knowledge of the epidemiology of typhus enables us to foresee that seasonal outbreaks will continue to occur the gravity of which will be chiefly determined by all social and economic conditions which are likely to create a state of physical depression among the population submitted or exposed to infection. In any case its persistence institutes a permanent danger to the rest of Poland and for all other countries.

In countries with a high standard of personal hygiene there is not much to fear in the way of extensive outbreaks of typhus fever. But even in such countries there are groups of individuals and communities where lack of cleanliness presents all the conditions necessary for the spread of the disease. The report of the League of Red Cross Societies rightly calls attention to the recent epidemic in Holland as a case in point.

The eradication of typhus in the areas described appears to us therefore to be a question of international importance. Its continued prevalence constitutes a standing menace to other countries according to the intensity of the epidemic. Measures taken at the frontiers of other countries can diminish the danger but they cannot obviate it altogether.

The measures necessary for the eradification of the disease have been studied and defined, notably at the Conference in London.

The Polish Government are alive to the urgency of the work to be accomplished. The organisation that they have created to fight epidemic disease, notably typhus fever, is excellent and has already achieved results that do them much credit. But the material at their disposal is altogether inadequate for the intensive and extended campaign that it is necessary to wage without delay.

II.—Cholera.

At the end of September cholera appeared in territory reoccupied by the Polish forces in the neighbourhood of Lida and Grodno. Previously there had been a large incidence of this disease in Soviet Russia. Thus an official Soviet statement dated 30th August 1920, reported extensive prevalence of cholera in parts of Soviet territory adjacent to the Russo-Polish armistice line as well as in other parts of Russia. In the first six months of 1920, 5,675 cases of cholera were notified in Russia. By the middle of October 1920, soldiers and prisoners of war had carried infection to various parts of Poland. Up to date (17th November 1920) 21 foci of infection have been reported and new foci are still being discovered. In Poland proper reported cases number 299 in addition to which 119 carriers have been discovered. Of the 299 cases 30 were civilians; the great majority of the remainder were prisoners of war. In addition to the above, 461 cases of cholera have been notified in the eastern territory now under Polish military administration; of these 100 were civilians.

The occurrence of cholera cases in 21 widely separated places in Poland, their very high carrier rate, and the extremely defective nature of most of the water supplies combine to make the situation full of danger. An unpleasant fact in this connection is the very high incidence of enteric or typhoid fever now prevailing in most parts of Poland. Cholera and typhoid fever are propagated in a similar manner, the one to the other.

The Polish Health Administration is alive to the dangers of the situation; inoculation with a cholera vaccine is being widely carried out. The whole army and all the prisoners of war have now been inoculated as well as large numbers of the civil population.

On our tour of inspection we encountered cholera at Lida, Warsaw, Wadowice, and Zakopane.

At Wadowice we inspected the prisoners' camp. At the time of our visit there were 4,500 prisoners of war in very poor condition. The Polish authorities are obviously finding it extremely difficult to provide adequate food and clothing for their prisoners. There were 90 cholera cases in the prisoners' hospital at Wadowice as well as 30 cases of relapsing fever and 36 of typhus.

We are informed that there are 80,000 prisoners of war in Poland at the present time. Half of these are in prisoners' camp, the remainder being scattered about the country in working parties. The presence of this large number of prisoners of war with very enfeebled power of resistance to disease is a most unwelcome complication of the already sufficiently difficult health problems of Poland.

Conclusions.

We are of opinion that it is both necessary and urgent to afford effective material assistance to Poland in her struggle against epidemic disease, especially against typhus fever.

We recommend that the League of Nations render this assistance on the basis elaborated by the London Conference and by the Council Meeting at Rome.

F. NORMAN WHITE.

ANNEXURE 3.—Statement by the Delegate of Portugal, M. de Andrade, on the Opium Question.

Sir W. Meyer, the delegate of India, in his resumé of the history of the restrictions on the trade in opium and other narcotics, makes two alternative proposals for the Second Committee to chose from.

In the first, the control of the carrying out of the international agreement on opium would be entirely entrusted to the Council of the League of Nations, with the assistance of the Secretariat-General, reports being submitted to the Assembly from time to time.

In the second a special Advisory Committee would be appointed. Those Members of the League most interested in questions relating to opium would be represented on it, and would assist the Council and the Secretariat.

Mr. Barnes, delegate of the British Empire, appears from the Resolution which he has submitted to support this second proposal.

The Portuguese Delegation, which I have the honour to represent here, would agree to this Resolution if Mr. Barnes would add the name of Portugal to those of the countries specially indicated for representation on the Committee which it is proposed to form, seeing that it is one of the States specially interested in all decisions made relating to opium, owing to its Colonies of Macao, India, and the Far East.

Portugal was one of the first countries to ratify the Opium Convention on 9th August 1913, having registered its ratification at The Hague on 15th December of the same year, and has carried out all the engagements undertaken by those Conventions.

Owing to the geographical position of one of its colonies, situated near Hong Kong, Portugal concluded an agreement with Great Britain on 14th June 1913, in order, in view of the decisions of The Hague Convention, and taking into consideration the geographical position of the colonies Macao and Hong Kong, to establish on similar lines the control of opium within these territories in all matters relating to the restriction of consumption, sale and export of prepared opium, and the suppresion of smuggling. This agreement was to be valid for 10 years; it could be cancelled at the end of five years and would remain in force unless cancelled by either party.

[App. V., Annex 3—contd.] 115

In spite of the restrictions adopted by The Hague Convention, the trade in opium is still carried on in several places in the East. In 1919, the Portuguese Government received proposals, which it did not accept, to grant an opium monopoly to Timor.

The opium trade at Macáo has considerably decreased within the last few years, which points to the efficacy of the results of the agreement between the Portuguese and British Governments. The Customs revenue reaches to-day a total scarcely more than half that of two years ago.

The Portuguese Government has therefore fulfilled, as completely as possible, the duties which it undertook in signing The Hague Convention, and is always prepared to put into force the restrictive measures which the League of Nations may consider necessary to achieve the humanitarian purpose in view, that is to say, the restriction or prohibition of trade in opium and other narcotics, a trade which, moreover, only exists in Portugal for medical purposes, and is only carried on in one of its colonies with very considerable restrictions. But, in a question which deeply affects the interests of this Colony, the solution proposed by Sir W. Meyer and supported by Mr. Barnes could only be accepted on the basis of its recognition as being one of the States interested, and as such to be represented on the Committee proposed in Mr. Barnes' Resolution.

I quite understand that this draft Resolution does not exclude from the Committee States not specially mentioned. It says :—

"It shall include representatives of the countries chiefly concerned, in particular, Holland, Great Britain, France, India, Japan, China, and shall, subject to the general directions of the Council, meet at such times as may be found desirable."

But the Portuguese Delegation desires that there should be no room for doubt in the future, and that its country should be considered as particularly interested in the Resolution under discussion, which attitude is moreover entirely justified by the facts given above.

Annex 4.—Amendments proposed by the Indian Delegation to the Report on the budget submitted by Committee No. 4.

1. In the Secretariat Report it is stated that a sum of 1,725,000 gold francs allocated "for the creation of working capital or reserve" in the latter part of 1920 is being applied to other objects. The Assembly desires further information as to the actual diversion of expenditure thus effected.

2. That with reference to Recommendation (1) attached to the Committee's second Resolution, the special Committee to be appointed to consider modifications in the Covenant should also consider what steps should be taken with reference to States which have not paid their quotas within a specified period.

3. That in Recommendation (2) attached to the same Resolution the words "also to prepare in due course a draft Resolution for the Assembly upon this subject" shall be omitted.

4. That the total budget estimates for 1921 shall be reduced from 21,000,000 gold francs to 20,000,000 gold francs, this being effected by reducing 500,000 gold francs under the expenses of the Secretariat, and 500,000 gold francs under the expenses of the Labour Organisation.

5. That the total expenditure on Technical Organisations for (a) Economic and Financial organisation, (b) Transit, and (c) Health shall not exceed without the special and previous sanction of the Assembly the total sum of 2,000,000 gold francs, this provision including the cost of the Sections of the Secretariat primarily concerned with the work of these organisations. In this total it shall, as a special measure for the year 1921, be open to the Council to transfer expenditure from one head to another, while all sums not expended shall lapse at the close of the year.

Provided, however, that if no special Economic and Financial Conference is held in the year 1921, the total figure of 2,000,000 gold francs above referred to shall be reduced to 1,800,000 gold francs.

6. That the Council be asked to consider more adequate control of expenditure by the appointment of a Standing Committee, independent of the Secretariat and the Labour Organisation, to consider all items of fresh expenditure before these are submitted to the Council.

7. That the special Committee appointed to consider amendments to the Covenant shall also consider an amendment to Article 6 which shall make future contributions of States to the League expenditure depend not on the quotas adopted for the purpose of the Universal Postal Union, but on some independent principle, such as net revenue.

(Signed) W. S. MEYER.

Annex 5.—Extract from Speech by Viscount Ishii on 30th November 1920, at a plenary meeting of the Assembly of the League of Nations.

Japan had an opportunity, when the Covenant of the League of Nations was originally formulated, to declare her firm belief that equality before the law should be assured to all men irrespective of their nationality, race or religion; that that principle should be established so that the various merits and geniuses of mankind should be emancipated and given free play in the interests of human civilisation; that that principle of equal opportunity should be one of the bedrocks of the great Peace organisation, in order that all nationals owing allegiance to the League should, to a man, be loyally willing to make their sacrifice in blood and treasure when occasion arises, in order that all should know that the League is unfailingly for right, not might; in order that a lasting peace should be doubly assured.

It was to the poignant regret of the Japanese Government and people that the orginal framers of the Covenant found themselves unable to accept the Japanese proposal in this matter, and the Japanese delegates declared that they would continue in their insistence for the adoption of their just demand by the League in the future. In view, however, of the present circumstances, Japan is strongly persuaded that the League is as yet in a stage where the consolidation of its organisation and its actual working based upon the present Covenant should be accorded greater attention and deeper deliberations than the questions relating to the fundamental principle which might involve the revision of the Covenant and deliberation of which should be deferred for some time yet. From that point of view, Japan is refraining from making any concrete proposal at this Assembly as to the question of equal opportunity and treatment, and will, patiently bide her time until the opportune moment will present itself.

ANNEX 6.—Declaration made before the Assembly by Mr. V. Wellington Koo, First Delegate of the Republic of China, on 18th December 1920.

"On behalf of and with the authority of my Government, I have the honour to inform the Assembly that there are certain subjects of vital interest to China affecting international relations, which under the provisions of the Covenant of the League of Nations the Republic of China intends to bring to the attention of the Assembly or of the Council. In view, however, of the fact that at this first session of the Assembly it has been devoting, and in the opinion of the Chinese Delegation should devote, itself to the perfecting of the organisation of the League and to the definition of its rights and duties as set forth in the Covenant, the Chinese Delegation will not lay these subjects before the Assembly at the present Session. But I respectfully declare in the name of the Chinese Delegation that in thus refraining from bringing these subjects to the attention of the Assembly, I reserve the full right of the Republic of China as a Member of the League to present the subjects to the Assembly or to the Council at a more appropriate time in the future, and do not waive any right to which the Republic of China may be entitled."

APPENDIX VI.

Permanent Court of International Justice.

ANNEX 1.—Statute of the Court.

Article 1.—A Permanent Court of International Justice is hereby established, in accordance with Article 14 of the Covenant of the League of Nations. This Court shall be in addition to the Court of Arbitration organised by the Conventions of The Hague of 1899 and 1907, and to the special Tribunals of Arbitration to which States are always at liberty to submit their disputes for settlement.

CHAPTER I.—ORGANISATION OF THE COURT.

Article 2.—The Permanent Court of International Justice shall be composed of a body of independent judges, elected regardless of their nationality from amongst persons of high moral character, who possess the qualifications required in their respective countries for appointment to the highest judicial offices, or are jurisconsults of recognised competence in international law.

Article 3.—The Court shall consist of fifteen members : eleven judges and four deputy judges. The number of judges and deputy judges may hereafter be increased by the Assembly, upon the proposal of the Council of the League of Nations, to a total of fifteen judges and six deputy judges.

Article 4.—The members of the Court shall be elected by the Assembly and by the Council from a list of persons nominated by the national groups in the Court of Arbitration, in accordance with the following provisions.

In the case of Members of the League of Nations not represented in the Permanent Court of Arbitration, the lists of candidates shall be drawn up by national groups appointed for this purpose by their Governments under the same conditions as those prescribed for members of the Permanent Court of Arbitration by Article 44 of the Convention of The Hague of 1907 for the pacific settlement of international disputes.

Article 5.—At least three months before the date of the election, the Secretary-General of the League of Nations shall address a written request to the members of the Court of Arbitration belonging to the States mentioned in the Annex to the Covenant or to the States which join the League subsequently, and to the persons appointed under para. 2 of Article 4, inviting them to undertake, within a given time, by national groups, the nomination of persons in a position to accept the duties of a member of the Court.

No group may nominate more than four persons, not more than two of whom shall be of their own nationality. In no case must the number of candidates nominated be more than double the number of seats to be filled.

Article 6.—Before making these nominations, each national group is recommended to consult its Highest Court of Justice, its Legal Faculties and Schools of Law, and its National Academies and national sections of International Academies devoted to the study of law.

Article 7.—The Secretary-General of the League of Nations shall prepare a list in alphabetical order of all the persons thus nominated. Save as provided in Article 12, para. 2, these shall be the only persons eligible for appointment.

The Secretary-General shall submit this list to the Assembly and to the Council.

Article 8.—The Assembly and the Council shall proceed independently of one another to elect, firstly the judges, then the deputy judges.

Article 9.—At every election, the electors shall bear in mind that not only should all the persons appointed as members of the Court possess the qualifications required, but the whole body also should represent the main forms of civilisation and the principal legal systems of the world.

Article 10.—Those candidates who obtain an absolute majority of votes in the Assembly and in the Council shall be considered as elected.

In the event of more than one national of the same Member of the League being elected by the votes of both the Assembly and the Council, the eldest of these only shall be considered as elected.

Article 11.—If, after the first meeting held for the purpose of the election, one or more seats remain to be filled, a second and, if necessary, a third meeting take place.

Article 12.—If, after the third meeting, one or more seats still remain unfilled, a joint conference consisting of six members, three appointed by the Assembly and three by the Council, may be formed, at any time, at the request of either the Assembly or the Council, for the purpose of choosing one name for each seat still vacant, to submit to the Assembly and the Council for their respective acceptance.

If the conference is unanimously agreed upon any person who fulfils the required conditions, he may be included in its list, even though he was not included in the list of nominations referred to in Articles 4 and 5.

If the joint conference is satisfied that it will not be successful in procuring an election, those members of the Court who have already been appointed shall, within a period to be fixed by the Council, proceed to fill the vacant seats by selection from amongst those candidates who have obtained votes either in the Assembly or in the Council.

[APP. VI., ANNEX 1—contd.] 118

In the event of an equality of votes amongst the judges, the eldest judge shall have a casting vote.

Article 13.—The members of the Court shall be elected for nine years.

They may be re-elected.

They shall continue to discharge their duties until their places have been filled. Though replaced, they shall finish any cases which they may have begun.

Article 14.—Vacancies which may occur shall be filled by the same method as that laid down for the first election. A member of the Court elected to replace a member whose period of appointment had not expired will hold the appointment for the remainder of his predecessor's term.

Article 15.—Deputy judges shall be called upon to sit in the order laid down in a list.

This list shall be prepared by the Court and shall have regard, firstly, to priority of election, and, secondly, to age.

Article 16.—The ordinary members of the Court may not exercise any political or administrative function. This provision does not apply to the deputy judges except when performing their duties on the Court.

Any doubt on this point is settled by the decision of the Court.

Article 17.—No member of the Court can act as agent, counsel or advocate in any case of an international nature. This provision only applies to the deputy judges as regards cases in which they are called upon to exercise their functions on the Court.

No member may participate in the decision of any case in which he has previously taken an active part, as agent, counsel or advocate for one of the contesting parties, or as a member of a national or international Court, or of a Commission of enquiry, or in any other capacity.

Any doubt on this point is settled by the decision of the Court.

Article 18.—A member of the Court cannot be dismissed unless, in the unanimous opinion of the other members, he has ceased to fulfil the required conditions.

Formal notification thereof shall be made to the Secretary-General of the League of Nations, by the Registrar.

This notification makes the place vacant.

Article 19.—The members of the Court, when engaged on the business of the Court, shall enjoy diplomatic privileges and immunities.

Artice 20.—Every member of the Court shall, before taking up his duties, make a solemn declaration in open Court that he will exercise his powers impartially and conscientiously.

Article 21.—The Court shall elect its President and Vice-President for three years; they may be re-elected.

It shall appoint its Registrar.

The duties of Registrar of the Court shall not be deemed incompatible with those of Secretary-General of the Permanent Court of Arbitration.

Article 22.—The seat of the Court shall be established at The Hague.

The President and Registrar shall reside at the seat of the Court.

Article 23.—A session of the Court shall be held every year.

Unless otherwise provided by rules of Court, this session shall begin on the 15th of June, and shall continue for so long as may be deemed necessary to finish the cases on the list.

The President may summon an extraordinary session of the Court whenever necessary.

Article 24.—If, for some special reason, a member of the Court considers that he should not take part in the decision of a particular case, he shall so inform the President.

If the President considers that for some special reason one of the members of the Court should not sit on a particular case, he shall give him notice accordingly.

If in any such case the member of the Court and the President disagree, the matter shall be settled by the decision of the Court.

Article 25.—The full Court shall sit except when it is expressly provided otherwise.

If eleven judges cannot be present, the number shall be made up by calling on deputy judges to sit.

If, however, eleven judges are not available, a quorum of nine judges shall suffice to constitute the Court.

Article 26.—Labour cases, particularly cases referred to in Part XIII. (Labour) of the Treaty of Versailles and the corresponding portions of the other Treaties of Peace, shall be heard and determined by the Court under the following conditions :—

The Court will appoint every three years a special chamber of five judges, selected so far as possible with due regard to the provisions of Article 9. In addition, two judges shall be selected for the purpose of replacing a judge who finds it impossible to sit. If the parties so demand, cases will be heard and determined by this chamber. In the absence of any such demand, the Court will sit with the number of judges provided for in Article 25. On all occasions the judges will be assisted by four technical assessors sitting with them, but without the right to vote, and chosen with a view to ensuring a just representation of the competing interests.

If there is a national of one only of the parties sitting as a judge in the chamber referred to in the preceding paragraph, the President will invite one of the other judges to retire in favour of a judge chosen by the other party in accordance with Article 31.

The technical assessors shall be chosen for each particular case in accordance with rules of procedure under Article 30 from a list of "Assessors for Labour cases" composed of two persons nominated by each Member of the League of Nations and an equivalent number nominated by the Governing Body of the Labour Office. The Governing Body will nominate, as to one half, representatives of the workers, and as to one half, representatives of employers from the list referred to in Article 412 of the Treaty of Versailles and the corresponding Articles of the other Treaties of Peace.

In Labour cases the International Labour Office shall be at liberty to furnish the Court with all relevant information, and for this purpose the Director of that Office shall receive copies of all the written proceedings.

Article 27.—Cases relating to transit and communications, particularly cases referred to in Part XII. (Ports, Waterways and Railways) of the Treaty of Versailles and the corresponding portions of the other Treaties of Peace shall be heard and determined by the Court under the following conditions :—

The Court will appoint every three years a special chamber of five judges, selected so far as possible with due regard to the provisions of Article 9. In addition, two judges shall be selected for the purpose of replacing a judge who finds it impossible to sit. If the parties so demand, cases will be heard and determined by this chamber. In the absence of any such demand, the Court will sit with the number of judges provided for in Article 25. When desired by the parties or decided by the Court, the judges will be assisted by four technical assessors sitting with them, but without the right to vote.

If there is a national of one only of the parties sitting as a judge in the chamber referred to in the preceding paragraph, the President will invite one of the other judges to retire in favour of a judge chosen by the other party in accordance with Article 31.

The technical assessors shall be chosen for each particular case in accordance with rules of procedure under Article 30 from a list of "Assessors for Transit and Communications cases" composed of two persons nominated by each Member of the League of Nations.

Article 28.—The special chambers provided for in Articles 26 and 27 may, with the consent of the parties to the dispute, sit elsewhere than at The Hague.

Article 29.—With a view to the speedy despatch of business, the Court shall form annually a chamber composed of three judges who, at the request of the contesting parties, may hear and determine cases by summary procedure.

Article 30.—The Court shall frame rules for regulating its procedure. In particular, it shall lay down rules for summary procedure.

Article 31.—Judges of the nationality of each contesting party shall retain their right to sit in the case before the Court.

If the Court includes upon the Bench a judge of the nationality of one of the parties only, the other party may select from among the deputy judges a judge of its nationality, if there be one. If there should not be one, the party may choose a judge, preferably from among those persons who have been nominated as candidates as provided in Articles 4 and 5.

If the Court includes upon the Bench no judge of the nationality of the contesting parties, each of these may proceed to select or choose a judge as provided in the preceding paragraph.

Should there be several parties in the same interest, they shall, for the purpose of the preding provisions, be reckoned as one party only. Any doubt upon this point is settled by the decision of the Court.

Judges selected or chosen as laid down in paras. 2 and 3 of this Article shall fulfil the conditions required by Articles 2, 16, 17, 20, 24 of this Statute. They shall take part in the decision on an equal footing with their colleagues.

Article 32.—The judges shall receive an annual indemnity to be determined by the Assembly of the League of Nations upon the proposal of the Council. This indemnity must not be decreased during the period of a judge's appointment.

The President shall receive a special grant for his period of office, to be fixed in the same way.

The Vice-President, judges, and deputy judges shall receive a grant for the actual performance of their duties, to be fixed in the same way.

Travelling expenses incurred in the performance of their duties shall be refunded to judges and deputy judges who do not reside at the seat of the Court.

Grants due to judges selected or chosen as provided in Article 31 shall be determined in the same way.

The salary of the Registrar shall be decided by the Council upon the proposal of the Court.

The Assembly of the League of Nations shall lay down, on the proposal of the Council, a special regulation fixing the conditions under which retiring pensions may be given to the personnel of the Court.

Article 33.—The expenses of the Court shall be borne by the League of Nations, in such a manner as shall be decided by the Assembly upon the proposal of the Council.

[APP. VI., ANNEX 1—contd.] 120

CHAPTER II.—COMPETENCE OF THE COURT.

Article 34.—Only States or Members of the League of Nations can be parties in cases before the Court.

Article 35.—The Court shall be open to the Members of the League and also to States mentioned in the Annex to the Covenant.

The conditions under which the Court shall be open to other States shall, subject to the special provisions contained in treaties in force, be laid down by the Council, but in no case shall such provisions place the parties in a position of inequality before the Court.

When a State which is not a Member of the League of Nations is a party to a dispute, the Court will fix the amount which that party is to contribute towards the expenses of the Court.

Article 36.—The jurisdiction of the Court comprises all cases which the parties refer to it and all matters specially provided for in treaties and conventions in force.

The Members of the League of Nations and the States mentioned in the Annex to the Covenant may, either when signing or ratifying the protocol to which the present Statutes is adjoined, or at a later moment, declare that they recognise as compulsory ipso facto and without special agreement, in relation to any other Member or State accepting the same obligation, the jurisdiction of the Court in all or any of the classes of legal disputes concerning :—

(a) The interpretation of a treaty.

(b) Any question of International Law.

(c) The existence of any fact which, if established, would constitute a breach of an international obligation.

(d) The nature or extent of the reparation to be made for the breach of an international obligation.

The declaration referred to above may be made unconditionally or on condition of reciprocity on the part of several or certain Members or States, or for a certain time.

In the event of a dispute as to whether the Court has jurisdiction, the matter shall be settled by the decision of the Court.

Article 37.—When a treaty or convention in force provides for the reference of a matter to a tribunal to be instituted by the League of Nations, the Court will be such tribunal.

Article 38.—The Court shall apply :—

1. International conventions, whether general or particular, establishing rules expressly recognised by the contesting States.

2. International custom, as evidence of a general practice accepted as law.

3. The general principles of law recognised by civilised nations.

4. Subject to the provisions of Article 59, judicial decisions and the teachings of the most highly qualified publicists of the various nations, as subsidiary means for the determination of rules of law.

This provision shall not prejudice the power of the Court to decide a case ex aequo et bono, if the parties agree thereto.

CHAPTER III.—PROCEDURE.

Article 39.—The official languages of the Court shall be French and English. If the parties agree that the case shall be conducted in French, the judgment will be delivered in French. If the parties agree that the case shall be conducted in English, the judgment will be delivered in English.

In the absence of an agreement as to which language shall be employed, each party may, in the pleadings, use the language which it prefers ; the decision of the Court will be given in French and English. In this case the Court will at the same time determine which of the two texts shall be considered as authoritative.

The Court may, at the request of the parties, authorise a language other than French or English to be used.

Article 40.—Cases are brought before the Court, as the case may be, either by the notification of the special agreement, or by a written application addressed to the Registrar. In either case the subject of the dispute and the contesting parties must be indicated.

The Registrar shall forthwith communicate the application to all concerned.

He shall also notify the Members of the League of Nations through the Secretary-General.

Article 41.—The Court shall have the power to indicate, if it considers that circumstances so require, any provisional measures which ought to be taken to reserve the respective rights of either party.

Pending the final decision, notice of the measures suggested shall forthwith be given to the parties and the Council.

Article 42.—The parties shall be represented by agents.

They may have the assistance of counsel or advocates before the Court.

Article 43.—The procedure shall consist of two parts : written and oral.

The written proceedings shall consist of the communication to the judges and the parties of cases, counter cases and, if necessary, replies; also all papers and documents in support.

These communications shall be made through the Registrar, in the order and within the time fixed by the Court.

A certified copy of every document produced by one party shall be communicated to the other party.

The oral proceedings shall consist of the hearing by the Court of witnesses, experts, agents, counsel and advocates.

Article 44.—For the service of all notices upon persons other than the agents, counsel and advocates, the Court shall apply direct to the Government of the State upon whose territory the notice has to be served.

The same provision shall apply whenever steps are to be taken to procure evidence on the spot.

Article 45.—The hearing shall be under the control of the President, or, in his absence, of the Vice-President; if both are absent, the senior judge shall preside.

Article 46.—The hearing in Court shall be public, unless the Court shall decide otherwise, or unless the parties demand that the public be not admitted.

Article 47.—Minutes shall be made at each hearing, and signed by the Registrar and the President.

These minutes shall be the only authentic record.

Article 48.—The Court shall make orders for the conduct of the case, shall decide the form and time in which each party must conclude its arguments, and make all arrangements connected with the taking of evidence.

Article 49.—The Court may, even before the hearing begins, call upon the agents to produce any document, or to supply any explanations. Formal note shall be taken of any refusal.

Article 50.—The Court may, at any time, entrust any individual, body, bureau, commission or other organisation that it may select, with the task of carrying out an enquiry or giving an expert opinion.

Article 51.—During the hearing any relevant questions are to be put to the witnesses and experts under the conditions laid down by the Court in the rules of procedure referred to in Article 30.

Article 52.—After the Court has received the proofs and evidence within the time specified for the purpose it may refuse to accept any further oral or written evidence that one party may desire to present unless the other side consents.

Article 53.—Whenever one of the parties shall not appear before the Court, or shall fail to defend his case, the other party may call upon the Court to decide in favour of his claim.

The Court must, before doing so, satisfy itself not only that it has jurisdiction in accordance with Articles 36 and 37, but also that the claim is well founded in fact and law.

Article 54.—When, subject to the control of the Court, the agents, advocates and counsel have completed their presentation of the case, the President shall declare the hearing closed.

The Court shall withdraw to consider the judgment.

The deliberations of the Court shall take place in private and remain secret.

Article 55.—All questions shall be decided by a majority of the judges present at the hearing.

In the event of an equality of votes, the President or his deputy shall have a casting vote.

Article 56.—The judgment shall state the reasons on which it is based.

It shall contain the names of the judges who have taken part in the decision.

Article 57.—If the judgment does not represent in whole or in part the unanimous opinion of the judges, dissenting judges are entitled to deliver a separate opinion.

Article 58.—The judgment shall be signed by the President and by the Registrar. It shall be read in open Court, due notice having been giving to the agents.

Article 59.—The decision of the Court has no binding force except between the parties and in respect of that particular case.

Article 60.—The judgment is final and without appeal. In the event of dispute as to the meaning or scope of the judgment, the Court shall construe it upon the request of any party.

Article 61.—An application for revision of a judgment can be made only when it is based upon the discovery of some fact of such a nature as to be a decisive factor, which fact was, when the judgment was given, unknown to the Court and also to the party claiming revision, always provided that such ignorance was not due to negligence.

The proceedings for revision will be opened by a judgment of the Court expressly recording the existence of the new fact, recognising that it has such a character as to lay the case open to revision, and declaring the application admissible on this ground.

The Court may require previous compliance with the terms of the judgment before it admits proceedings in revision.

The application for revision must be made at latest within six months of the discovery of the new fact.

No application for revision may be made after the lapse of 10 years from the date of the sentence.

Article 62.—Should a State consider that it has an interest of a legal nature which may be affected by the decision in the case, it may submit a request to the Court to be permitted to intervene as a third party.

It will be for the Cour to decide upon this request.

Article 63.—Whenever the construction of a convention to which States other than those concerned in the case are parties is in question, the Registerar shall notify all such States forthwith.

Every State so notified has the right to intervene in the proceedings ; but if it uses this right, the construction given by the judgment will be equally binding upon it.

Article 64.—Unless otherwise decided by the Court, each party shall bear its own costs.

ANNEX 2.—Protocol of Signatures.

The members of the League of Nations, through the undersigned, duly authorised, declare their acceptance of the adjoined Statute of the Permanent Court of International Justice, which was approved by a unanimous vote of the Assembly of the League on the 13th December 1920 at Geneva.

Consequently, they hereby declare that they accept the jurisdiction of the Court in accordance with the terms and subject to the conditions of the above-mentioned Statute.

The present Protocol, which has been drawn up in accordance with the decision taken by the Assembly of the League of Nations on the 13th December 1920, is subject to ratification. Each Power shall send its ratification to the Secretary-General of the League of Nations ; the latter shall take the necessary steps to notify such ratification to the other signatory Powers. The raification shall be deposited in the archives of the Secretariat of the League of Nations.

The said Protocol shall remain open for signature by the Members of the League of Nations and by the States mentioned in the Annex to the Covenant of the League.

The Statute of the Court shall come into force as provided in the above-mentioned decision.

Executed at Geneva, in a single copy, the French and English texts of which shall both be authentic.

16th December 1920.

Optional Clause.

The undersigned, being duly authorised thereto, further declare, on behalf of their Government, that from this date they accept as compulsory ipso facto, and without special Convention, the jurisdiction of the Court in conformity with Article 36, para. 2, of the Statute of the Court under the following conditions.

CALCUTTA UNIVERSITY.

NOTICE.

The Senate will proceed in the month of August, 1922, to the election of a Tagore Professor of Law for a term of one year, to commence on the 1st of August, 1923.

The salary of the Professorship is Rs. 9,000 per annum and the Professor will be expected to deliver a course of not less than twelve lectures on one of the following subjects:—

(i) The History of Hindu Law in the Vedic Age and in Post-Vedic Times down to the Institutes of Manu.

(ii) A Critical, Historical and Comparative Survey of the System of Administration of Justice in Muslim Law.

(iii) The History of the law of Primogeniture with special reference to India, ancient and modern.

The salary of the Professor will be paid in twelve equal monthly instalments, the first instalment to be paid on the first day of the month following that in which the first lecture is delivered.

Candidates for the Professorship are required to forward their applications to the Registrar on, or before, the 1st May, 1922, stating on which of the above-named three subjects they are prepared to lecture. Each candidate will forward with his application one hundred copies of a brief Synopsis of his proposed lectures; and, if he so pleases, the same number of copies of his Introductory Lecture.

The Professor will, not later than the month of August following his election, forward to the Registrar a complete copy (manuscript or type-written) of the lectures which he proposes to deliver. The copy will be forthwith referred to Committee of the Faculty of Law, consisting of not more than three Members to be chosen by the Faculty, who will examine the same, and before the expiry of two months from the date of the submission of the copy by the Professor to the Registrar, report to the Faculty whether the work is complete and ready for the Press. If, upon such report, the Faculty are satisfied that the work is complete, the Professor will commence to deliver his lectures within three months from the date of the resolution of the Faculty and shall complete the delivery thereof in another three months. The copy of the lectures delivered will remain in the custody of the Registrar and shall be sent to Press, as soon as practicable after delivery thereof.

If the Professor fails to submit the copy of the lectures, or if the copy submitted be found, on examination, to be incomplete and not ready for the Press, the matter will be referred to the Faculty of Law, upon whose recommendation the Senate may either extend the time or cancel the appointment.

K. B. Mir Muhammad Khan, a candidate for Election to the Legislative Assembly for the East Punjab (Muhammadan) Constituency, has called in question the Election of Lieutenant Nawab Muhammad Ibrahim Ali Khan, the returned candidate for that constituency, by petition dated 21st December, 1920, for the trial of which this Commission has been appointed by Government of India, Legislative Department Notification No. 20, dated the 27th January, 1921. The petitioner further claimed a declaration that he himself had been duly elected and, in recrimination, the respondent charged the petitioner with corrupt practices in respect of votes obtained by him, alleging connivance by the petitioner or his agents at personation by a voter in Simla.

The questions which arise on the petition are :—

(1) whether a declaration of appointment of an election agent was made on or before the date on which the respondent was nominated, as required by Legislative Assembly Electoral Rule 11 (2),

(2) whether, if such declaration was made, it was duly deposited with the Returning Officer, as required by Regulation II in P. G. Notification No. 9, dated the 31st July 1920,

(3) whether a corrupt practice had been committed by the respondent in issuing lithographed post-cards having reference to the election, such post-cards not bearing on their face the name and address of the printer and publisher thereof (Rule 8 of Part II of Schedule IV of the Legislative Assembly Electoral Rules).

The case for the petitioner has been argued on technical points only and the relevant facts which follow are not in dispute.

The respondent's nomination paper, containing a declaration dated 3rd November, 1920, by the respondent to the effect that he had appointed an election agent, was delivered at the Returning Officer's office on 5th November 1920. It was accompanied by a declaration on plain paper dated 12th October 1920, by which the respondent appointed Muhammad Ismail Khan his election agent. This declaration was returned by the Head Clerk of the Returning Officer's office (the Returning Officer, who was the Commissioner of the Ambala Division, being on tour) to the presenter, who was Muhammad Ismail Khan himself, on the ground that it should be on a stamped paper. The respondent was away on a visit to Maler Kotla and there was delay in obtaining another declaration from him, but one was eventually made by him, on stamped paper, at about 9 A.M. on 8th November 1920 and sent to Ambala where it was deposited at the Returning Officer's office the same day at a time which is stated in the Returning Officer's order to have been 12-40 P.M. The latest time for delivery of nomination papers to the Returning Officer was, in the case of this Constituency, noon on 8th November 1920.

Various arguments have been advanced by the petitioner's Counsel upon these facts, but the crucial issue is admittedly whether the declaration dated 12th October 1920 is required by law to be on a stamped paper or not. If it was not, then the nomination of the respondent was complete and in order, for we have no hesitation in finding that the provision of the last sentence of Regulation II in Punjab Government Notification No. 9, dated 31st July 1920, directing that the declaration required by Rule 11 (2) shall be deposited by the candidate or his agent with the Returning Officer was duly fulfilled. It was delivered to the Returning Officer's office by the candidate's Election agent and the fact that it was thereafter returned to him does not impair the validity of the deposit, as such. Moreover, no date for the deposit of the declaration is fixed by the Rules or Regulations, and, in the absence thereof, we are not prepared to fix any date arbitrarily or to hold that any such date has been fixed by implication.

In paragraph 7 of a circular of instructions issued by the Provincial Reforms Commissioner under date 4th October 1920 it is said that the declaration must be stamped with a fee of Re. 1 but no reason is given for the view that a stamp is required, and we cannot hold that the direction in this Circular has any binding force. As it happens, the question has already been the subject of a decision by an Election Commission; in a case dealt with in the province of Bihar and Orissa (Notification No. 273-A., dated 14th January 1920), the Commissioners held that no stamp was required. There, however, it appears to have been argued that the declaration now in question fell under Article 4 of Schedule I of the Indian Stamp Act (II of 1899) whereas here the petitioner's Counsel has urged that it is as a power-of-attorney falling under Article 48 (c) or (g) of the Schedule that it requires a fee. He admits that the reasoning of the Bihar and Orissa Commissioners is incontrovertible on the application of Article 4. His position amounts to this that the declaration must be a power-of-attorney because it authorises a person to act for another and we understood him to adduce no other argument.

Now we are by no means satisfied that the declaration in question can properly be classed as a power-of-attorney. It is true that the definition of that term in section 2 (21) of the Stamp Act merely says that power-of-attorney includes any instrument empowering a specified person to act for and in the name of, the person executing it, and is therefore not exhaustive but, as it is sought to impose a disability on the respondent by invoking the provisions of the Stamp Act, we should, on the ordinary rule for the construction of Statutes, require the petitioner strictly to show, without the possibility of doubt, that the respondent is so disabled.

The applicability of a power-of-attorney [as it is to be understood from section 2 (21) and Article 48 of the Stamp Act] to the relation of a candidate and his election agent is at least open to doubt. The rules allow a candidate to act as his own election agent and, should he choose so to act, the execution of a power-of-attorney would be clearly inappropriate. We are not impressed with the argument that in such cases no stamp would be required, whereas, if a candidate appointed another person as his election agent, it would be required. Again, there are duties imposed by the rules on an election agent which he performs in propria persona; thus under Rule 19 of the Electoral Rules, every election agent has to keep regular books of account and this duty is not one which the candidate authorises him to perform. Further, the rules do not specifically lay down that a power-of-attorney is to be executed, as we should have expected to find if such was required and, on the principle already alluded to, we should be reluctant to import into them any liability not specified in them and tending to disable a candidate. The word 'declaration,' as used in the rules, is itself also a legal term; it appears in Article 4 of Schedule I of the Stamp Act and we incline to the view that, if it is sought to impose a fee upon a document which is called by the Legislature a 'declaration' it should only be imposed under an Article in which that word is used. On a reasonable construction it would appear to us that the declaration in question is intended to be an intimation to the authorities on the part of the candidate that a certain person will be responsible for carrying out the duties of an election agent, although the framers of the Rules have chosen to combine the declaration with the actual appointment as the wording of Rule 11(2) shows; 'appointment' is also a legal term—it appears, for instance, in Article 7 of Schedule I of the Stamp Act, but it is not argued that an appointment, as such, is liable to a fee.

Lastly, petitioner's Counsel has been unable to satisfy us that, even if the declaration should have been on a stamped paper, it could not be validated for the purpose of the Stamp Act by subsequent affixing of a stamp, with or without penalty.

For the above reasons we are unable to hold that the declaration in question was required to be stamped; the respondent's nomination would therefore appear to have been in order and valid as it had been made before the date of such nomination. As we have thus decided in favour of the declaration of 12th October 1920 any discussion of the declaration of 8th November 1920 would be superfluous.

If we had held against the declaration, we should then have had to consider whether the declaration dated 3rd November 1920 on the nomination paper, to the effect that the candidate had appointed an election agent, was to be held a false one, whether it could be held to be validated by the subsequent declaration of 8th November 1920, and whether the deposit of that declaration with the Returning Officer after noon on that date was sufficient compliance with Regulation IX already referred to. As it is, we think it unnecessary to discuss these questions.

It is admitted by the respondent that lithographed post-cards to electors soliciting votes, such post-cards not bearing on their face the name and address of the printer and publisher, were issued at his direction. This is a corrupt practice under Rule 8 part II of Schedule IV of the Rules, but can have the effect of avoiding the election only if it be proved that the Election of the returned candidate has been procured or induced, or the result of the Election has been materially affected thereby [Rule 42 (1) (a)]; no such proof is forthcoming and the petitioner's Counsel has not pressed the point. We hold accordingly that the Election cannot be avoided on this ground.

The recriminatory charge has not been argued before us, probably because there is no shadow of suspicion that the petitioner connived at any personation by a voter and we desire to record our opinion that so grave a charge should not have been so recklessly made. It is indeed proved that one voter, Miraj Din, a house proprietor in Simla, voted twice for the petitioner, passing as voters Nos. 23 and 29 in the Electoral Roll, in one case signing his name on the identity voucher in English and in the other in vernacular, in the first case signing his correct name and in the second making small alterations so as to bring the signature into accord with the name as entered the second time in the roll. Under No. 23 in that roll appears the name of Miraj-ud-din, son of Muhammad Sultan, aged 30, profession money-lending; under No. 29 the entry reads Miraz Din, son of Muhammad Sultan, aged 24, profession shop-keeping. It has been conclusively shown to us that Miraj Din must have entered the polling booth twice on separate occasions during the polling day and voted on one occasion as voter No. 23 and on the other as voter No. 29. When he denies that he went twice to the polling station, he is guilty of a patent falsehood for not only are his identity vouchers not consecutive but they are taken from two different books, being No. 5 in Book No. 120/10 and No. 4 in Book No. 99/5. Further, it would have been impossible for him to have obtained two identity vouchers and two voting papers for this constituency at one and the same time and have run the gauntlet of all the polling station officials while so doing. If it be taken that both entries in the Electoral Roll refer to the same person, then on these facts his action is not susceptible of explanation on the hypothesis that he was under the bona fide impression that he had two votes, even if it could be assumed that a voter of his substance and education was unaware that no voter could have two votes for the same constituency. If it be taken that the entries relate to two different persons, then it is clear that this man personated one of them. The definitions of personation in Rule 3 of part I of Schedule IV of the Electoral Rules make it a corrupt practice for any one to apply "for a voting paper in the name of any other person" or for any one "who has voted once at an election (to apply) for a voting paper in his own name at the same election." Miraj Din's action—which the method he adopted shows was not bona fide—thus amounts to personation under one or other of these definitions.

In accordance with Rule 43 (1) we shall therefore humbly advise His Excellency the Governor-General by this Report.

(1) that the returned candidate for this constituency has been duly elected,

(2) that a corrupt practice under Rule 8 of part II of Schedule IV of the Legislative Assembly Electoral Rules has been proved to have been committed by the returned candidate in the matter of the lithographed post-cards circulated by him, but that, in the circumstances, and in view of the novelty of the election procedure in this country, it is recommended that he be exempted from any disqualifications which he may have incurred under the Electoral Rules, and

(3) that the corrupt practice of personation, as defined in Rule 3 of part I of Schedule IV of the Electoral Rules, read with Rule 1 of part II of the same Schedule, has been committed by Miraj Din of Simla.

As regards costs, we direct that the petitioner do bear all costs of these proceedings with the exception of those assignable to the recriminatory case, the whole of which will be borne by the respondent. We make no order as to the costs of the Government Advocate.

After entry No. 77, The Indian Electricity Act, 1910 (IX of 1910), the following shall be inserted, namely :—

"77 (A) The Indian Factories Act, 1911 (XII of 1911)."

The 9th August, 1921.

No. 513-R.—In pursuance of Regulation (5) of the 'Regulations for the appointment of Representative Members' forming Part IV of the First Regulations appended to the Constitution of the Chamber of Princes. published with the Notification of the Government of India in the Foreign and Political Department, No. 262-R., dated the 8th February 1921, and amended by Notifications No. 3[illegible]1-R., dated the 16th March 1921, and No. 353-R., dated the 13th April 1921, His Excellency the Viceroy has approved of the following Rules for the election of Representative Members by the Rulers of States specified in Part IV of the Appendix to Regulation IV, being Ruling Chiefs of the Central Provinces, namely :—

(1) Each of the Ruling Chiefs specified in Part IV of the Appendix to Regulation IV shall, provided that he is ruling over his own State, be (i) eligible for election as a Representative Member, and (ii) entitled to vote at an election of Representative Members. Such Ruling Chiefs are hereinafter referred to as 'electors.'

(2) When it becomes necessary to hold an election the Governor of the Central Provinces shall appoint a date (hereinafter referred to as the appointed date) before which nomination papers must be presented to the Political Agent, and also a date (hereinafter referred to as the polling date) on which a poll shall be taken, should one be necessary under the provisions of rule (8). The appointment of these dates shall be notified in the Central Provinces Gazette and copies of the notifications shall be sent to each elector.

(3) (i) Nomination papers in form I shall be supplied by the Political Agent to each elector.

(ii) Nominations shall be made by means of nomination papers in the prescribed form.

(iii) Every nomination paper shall be subscribed by two electors as proposer and seconder and shall be signed by the candidate in token of his assent to the nomination.

(iv) An elector may subscribe as many nomination papers as there are vacancies to be filled.

(v) There shall be a separate nomination paper for each candidate.

(4) Every nomination paper shall be presented duly subscribed and signed to the Political Agent at his office, either by the proposer or the seconder before the appointed date, provided that a candidate may be nominated by means of a nomination paper duly subscribed and signed and sent by registered post so as to reach the Political Agent before the appointed date.

(5) Nomination papers which are not received by the Political Agent before the appointed date shall be rejected.

(6) On the appointed date, and at a time to be fixed and notified to the electors by the Political Agent at least a week beforehand, any candidate, proposer or seconder may attend at the office of the Political Agent for the purpose of scrutinising the nomination papers which have been received.

(ii) After such scrutiny any candidate, proposer or seconder may, on the appointed date, lodge an objection in writing to any nomination on the ground that it is not valid under the rules.

(iii) The Political Agent shall decide all objections which may be made in accordance with clause (ii) of this rule and shall himself examine the nomination papers and may, on his own motion, reject any nomination paper on the ground that it is not valid under the rules. The decision of the Political Agent shall in every case be endorsed by him on the nomination paper in question.

(7) (i) If the number of duly nominated candidates is equal to or less than the number of vacancies, all such candidates shall be declared duly elected.

(ii) In the latter case, proceedings under these rules shall commence afresh in respect of the remaining vacancy or vacancies.

(8) If the number of duly nominated candidates is more than the number of vacancies, the Political Agent shall forthwith publish in the Central Provinces Gazette and at his own office the names of the candidates and a poll shall be taken at his office on the polling day between hours to be fixed by the Political Agent, and notified by him to the electors at least a week beforehand.

(9) If, in the event of a poll becoming necessary under rule 8, any duly nominated candidate should die before the polling date, all proceedings taken with reference to the election shall be annulled and proceedings under these rules shall commence afresh.

(10) The Political Agent shali preside over the poll and voting shall be by ballot.

(11) Votes shall be recorded on voting papers in form II which shall be supplied to each elector by the Political Agent. The names of the candidates shall be entered in the voting papers before they are issued.

(12) Each elector shall have as many votes as there are vancancies but shall not give more than one vote for any candidate. Electors shall make a cross in the voting paper against the name of each candidate for whom they desire to vote.

(13) Any elector may send his vote by registered post. In such cases the voting paper shall be enclosed in a sealed cover addressed to the Political Agent by name, and this cover shall be accompanied by a separate letter signed by the elector. The sealed cover and the accompanying letter shall be enclosed in an outer cover which shall be addressed to the Political Agent.

(14) On the polling day between the hours fixed by the Political Agent for the poll,

(i) the electors who attend and desire to vote shall place their voting papers in the ballot-box in the presence of the Political Agent, and

(ii) in the case of voting papers received by post, the Political Agent shall examine the letter accompanying the inner sealed cover, and shall permit any elector, who desires to do so, to examine the said letter, and shall, if satisfied that it is genuine, endorse it as "accepted," open the sealed cover and place the voting paper in the ballot-box.

(i) open the ballot-box,

(ii) examine the voting papers and reject any paper—

(a) which is not duly marked,

(b) on which the elector has (1) recorded more votes than he is entitled to, or (2) given more votes than one to any candidate, or

(c) which bears any mark by which the elector might be identified,

and shall endorse the word "rejected" on any voting paper so rejected together with the grounds for rejection,

(iii) count the valid votes given to each candidate and declare the election of the candidate or candidates to whom most valid votes have been given, provided that any elector present shall be entitled to claim a scrutiny in which case the electors present shall appoint one of their number who shall, with the assistance of the Political Agent, recount the votes recorded,

(iv) upon the completion of the counting, seal up in separate packets the accepted and the rejected voting papers,

(v) prepare and certify a return setting forth—

(a) the names of the persons for whom the valid votes were given,

(b) the number of valid votes given for each person,

(c) the number of voting papers rejected,

(vi) permit any candidate to take a copy of or an extract from the return.

(16) In the event of a tie between two or more candidates for one or more vacancies, lots shall be drawn between them in the presence of the Political Agent and in such manner as he may determine and the candidate or candidates successful in the drawing shall be declared elected.

(17) The Political Agent shall without delay report the result of the proceedings under rules (7) (i), (15) (iii) or (16) to the Governor and the name or names of the candidate or candidates elected shall be published in the Gazette.

(18) The Political Agent after making the report under rule (17) shall retain in his custody the packets referred to in rule 15 (iv), and the return referred to in rule 15 (v).

(19) While in the custody of the Political Agent the packets of voting papers shall not be opened except under the orders of the Viceroy in connection with an objection lodged under rule 21.

(20) The Political Agent shall retain the packets for a year and shall then, unless otherwise directed by the Viceroy, cause them to be destroyed.

(21) Any candidate or elector may, within 14 days from the date on which the result of the election has been published in the Gazette, present an objection to the Political Agent for submission to the Viceroy on any matter connected with the election.

REWARDS.

No. 1638.—His Excellency the Governor General of India has been pleased to confer the Volunteer Officers' Decoration upon the undermentioned officers :—

Major Charles Henry Browne, } late 1-32nd Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway Major John Frederick Fawcett, } Rifles, Indian Defence Force.

No. 1639.—The following rewards have been granted for conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty in the field while serving with the Waziristan Force :—

Awarded the Indian Order of Merit, 2nd Class.

No. 3170 Sepoy Farman Ali, 28th Punjabis.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty on the 5th June 1921. During an attack by the enemy on the garrison of Fig Picquet, this sepoy was the signaller of the garrison. Seeing that four of the garrison had been wounded, he immediately joined the remainder of the men in their fight with the enemy. He took up his position on the perimeter beside the picquet commander and, by his cool and resolute behaviour, greatly assisted in the beating off of the enemy. He showed absolute disregard for danger and rendered great assistance in the defence of the picquet at a critical time.

No. 3557 Lance-Naik Diwan Ali, 28th Punjabis.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty on the 4th-5th June 1921. On the night of the 4th June 1921, a picquet under the command of this non-commissioned officer repulsed repeated attacks by the enemy. On the morning of the 5th June, the enemy rushed the outer wire under heavy covering fire and threw two bombs into the picquet, which wounded three of the garrison, including the Lewis gunner. At this juncture, Lance-Naik Diwan Ali, calling on his men to fight to the end, rushed to the gate of the post and held the enemy at bay at the point of the bayonet. After hand to hand fighting, the enemy were driven off; the victory was due to the splendid example of Lance-Naik Diwan Ali.

Awarded the Indian Distinguished Service Medal.

No. 1813 Lance-Dafadar Buldan Singh, 27th Light Cavalry.
No. 2089 Sepoy Ahmed Khan, 28th Punjabis.
No. 2252 Sepoy Jiwan Khan, 28th Punjabis.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 hours on Wednesday, the 10th August 1921, based on the Indian Daily Weather Reports of the period.

1. During the past week the monsoon has been stronger than usual, but the distribution of rainfall has again been uneven: thus while heavy rain has fallen in the United Provinces, the Punjab and Malabar, the week's total has been more than 40 per cent in defect in Rajputana, the Bombay Deccan, Mysore and the Madras Deccan. A western disturbance passed over the extreme north, and by stimulating the monsoon gave widespread and abundant rain in Kashmir and the Punjab.

2. Burma.—In Lower Burma rainfall was nearly general throughout the week; in Upper Burma rain fell locally on the 3rd and between the 5th and 8th, and at a few stations on the remaining days.

Northeast India, including Orissa—Rainfall was nearly general in Assam and Bihar on the 4th and 8th, in Bengal on the 4th and 5th, in Orissa between the 6th and 8th, and in Chota Nagpur between the 7th and 9th; it occurred locally or at a few stations on three other days in Orissa, and on the remaining days in all the other subdivisions.

The United Provinces, Central India and the Central Provinces.—There was nearly general rain in the United Provinces West between the 3rd and 8th, in the United Provinces East between the 3rd and 6th, and on the 8th and 9th, in the west of Central India and of the Central Provinces between the 7th and 9th, in Central India East on the 3rd, 7th, 8th and 9th, and in the east of the Central Provinces on the 3rd, and between the 5th and 8th; rainfall occurred locally or at a few stations on the remaining day in the United Provinces, on the remaining days in the west of the Central Provinces, on one other day in Central India West and the east of the Central Provinces, and on two other days in Central India East.

Northwest India.—Rain fell at Delhi on six days in the week, at Rawalpindi and Lyallpur on five days, and between two and four days at the other stations in the Punjab. Nearly general rain fell in Kashmir on the 8th, and in Gujarat on the 3rd, 6th and 9th; there were local or individual falls on the other days in both the areas. In the North-West Frontier Province rain fell locally between the 5th and 7th, and at a few stations on one other day. In Rajputana excluding the hills there was local rain on the 9th, with a few falls on two other days. In northeast Baluchistan a few scattered falls occurred during the week.

The Peninsula.—Rainfall was nearly general in the Konkan and Malabar throughout the week, in Hyderabad North on the 3rd, 7th, 8th and 9th, and on the north Madras coast on the 6th and 7th; it occurred locally or at a few stations on one other day in Hyderabad North and on the remaining days on the north Madras coast. Rain fell locally in the Bombay Deccan on the 3rd, 7th and 9th, in Hyderabad South on the 3rd, 4th and 7th, in Mysore on the 3rd and 9th, and in southeast Madras on the 4th and 6th; there were few falls on two other days in southeast Madras and Hyderabad South, and on the remaining days in the other two areas. In the Madras Deccan rain was limited to two light falls during the week.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday, 6th August, 1921.

Burma.—The rainfall during the week was general in Lower Burma and scanty in Upper Burma with no rain at Pakokku, Shwebo, Kyukse and Myingyan. Cultivation of the main rice crop is progressing normally in both Upper and Lower Burma. In Upper Burma sowing of groundnut, maize, sesamum and juar continues but more rain is needed in seven districts. Elsewhere standing crops are fair. Cattle are generally healthy. The price of unhusked rice is Rs. 232 to 235, and that of white rice (specials) Rs. 580 per hundred baskets.

Assam.—The weather is seasonable. Harvesting of autumn rice and jute, plucking of tea and transplanting of winter rice continue. The outturn and prospects of autumn rice and jute are not hopeful. Other crops are fair to good. Cattle disease is reported from five districts. The price of common rice continues to fall slightly.

Bengal.—Light to moderate rain fell generally throughout the Province. Transplantation of winter paddy is progressing briskly but more rain is required to facilitate the operation. Harvesting of autumn paddy and cutting, steeping and washing of jute are going on. Owing to the rise of river level standing crops have been damaged to some extent in lowlying tracts of north and east Bengal. The average price of common rice has risen by 0·90 per cent.

Bihar and Orissa.—The rainfall during the week was general over the Province, the fall being heavy in parts of Shahabad, Saran and Monghyr and light to moderate in the rest of the Province. Transplantation of winter paddy is going on. More rain is wanted for the purpose in Patna and in parts of Shahabad, Muzaffarpur and Purnea. Standing crops are doing well. 6,043 persons received gratuitous relief in Puri, including 96 persons on relief from district Charitable Relief Fund. The price of common rice has risen in 8 districts, fallen in 4 and remained stationary in the remainder. The average price of local common rice at headquarters was 5·71 seers a rupee against 5·79 seers in the preceding week and that of maize was 6·60 seers against 6·73 seers in the preceding week. Cattle disease is reported from twelve districts. The condition of standing crops in the Feudatory States of Orissa and Chota Nagpur is good.

United Provinces.—During the week good and general rain fell throughout the Province. Preparation of land for autumn crops, sowing of spring crops and transplantation of late rice continue. Standing crops are in good condition. Prospects are favourable. The condition of agricultural stock is fair, though cattle disease still exists in some districts. Fodder, water and market supplies are sufficient. Prices are generally stationary but have risen in some districts.

The weekly report on scarcity in Mirzapur, Garhwal and Almora is as follows:—The rainfall was good in Almora and Garhwal but more rain is required in Mirzapur. Standing crops are well. Prospects are favourable. Agricultural stock is in a satisfactory condition, though some cattle disease exists in Almora and Garhwal. Fodder and water are sufficient. Importation of grain, the demand for which is great in Garhwal and Almora, is going on. Prices are almost stationary. The price basis in Almora is 2½ to 3, in Garhwal 2 to 3½ and in Mirzapur 4 to 7 seers per rupee. Advances for importation of grain and subsistence takavi are being distributed in Almora and Garhwal. Crime is normal. No wandering is noticeable. Distress is fairly severe in the south of Mirzapur where the labouring and cultivating classes are especially affected. Cases of emaciation are noticeable in the south of Mirzapur. The physical condition of the people on relief is good and medical arrangements are sufficient. In Mirzapur no relief work is needed at present. In Garhwal and Almora a few cases of cholera have been reported but measures are being taken to localize the disease. Otherwise the public health is good. Numbers relieved:—Mirzapur—test works 3, poor-house 164, gratuitous 10,218, total 10,385; Garhwal—gratuitous 1,500; Almora—gratuitous 416; grand total 12,301. Private charity is insufficient in Garhwal to meet the demand for clothing. There is no private charity in Almora. Funds are being raised in Mirzapur for clothing and for running charges of the private poor-houses.

Punjab.—Light or moderate rain fell in all the reporting districts and was useful for standing crops and for sowings. The condition of cotton, sugarcane, and other standing crops is generally normal. Autumn crops are being sown. The area sown is normal on irrigated and below normal on unirrigated lands. Germination is good. Dry fodder is scarce. Green grass is available. Cattle are generally weak owing to overwork and scarcity of fodder. Water is sufficient. Prices have risen slightly in some districts and are stationary in others. They are generally at or above scarcity rates. No relief work, so far, has been considered necessary. Stocks of foodgrains are sufficient except in a few districts. Price of wheat:—Rawalpindi $4\frac{1}{2}$, Ambala $4\frac{1}{16}$ and Ferozepore, Lahore and Lyallpur 5 seers per rupee.

North-West Frontier Province.—Copious rain fell throughout the Province. Sowings of autumn crops are in progress. Great scarcity of fodder prevails in some parts. Wheat is selling in Peshawar at $4\frac{1}{16}$ seers and in Dera Ismail Khan at $4\frac{3}{4}$ seers per rupee.

Jammu.—The rainfall during the week was sufficient. Prices are stationary. Fodder is insufficient.

Kashmir.—The weather was generally wet. Paddy and maize corps are in good condition. No cattle desease is reported. Prices are high.

Baluchistan.—During the week ending 30th July good rain fell in parts of the Quetta and Pishin tahsils also in the Shorarod sub-tahsil. Good showers were received in the Shahrig tahsil and Kohlu in the Sibbi District. More rain fell all over the Loralai district except a portion of the Barkhan tahsil. Good rain was received practically everywhere in Zhob. No rain, so far, has, however, been received in the Chagai district where conditions of cattle are bad and distress is increasing. The people are taking their cattleand flocks to rain fallen areas for grazing. Prospects of autumn crop are good but necessarily limited for want of plough bullocks and seed grains for which takavi loans are being granted. Grazing has improved but distress is expected to continue till autumn crops are harvested. Immigrants into the Quetta sub-division are badly off and are being helped both by private charity and Government. Relief work is just being opened for them. 608 men were employed on relief works in the Pishin and Chaman sub-divisions. Marri kitchen had 236 men and Bugti kitchen about 700. Work at Kahan has been temporarily stopped. 92 persons were employed on the Kohlu work, 140 in Loralai, 460 in Zhob and 497 in Chagai districts. Prices are unchanged. Cholera has broken out at Chaman where 15 cases and 5 deaths are reported, also at Gulistan where 7 cases and 6 deaths are reported.

Rajputana.—The rainfall during the week was general throughout Rajputana and Ajmer-Merwara. The maximum fall was 13 inches 28 cents in the Sirohi State. The weather remained cloudy. Sowing operations are in full swing. Weeding of autumn crops has commenced in places. Agricultural stock has emaciated in Tonk and Jhalawar owing to insufficiency of fodder. Cholera exists in parts of Kotah. Prices are stationary with a tendency to fall.

Central India.—The rainfall during the week was general. It was insufficient only in parts of Indore, Malwa and Khilchipur. Sowing and weeding continue. The condition of crops and of agricultural stock is fair to good but cattle disease is reported from Rewa and Jaso. Fodder is insufficient in the Rampura-Bhanpura district of Indore. Prices are high.

The weekly report on famine in Rewa is as follows:—The number of persons in receipt of gratuitous relief was 8,210 and in poor-houses 864. Distribution of takavi loan continues. Cholera prevails in Deosari and Dehari. Prices have risen.

Gwalior.—Rainfall sufficient. Agricultural operations including cotton sowing and weeding are in progress. Prices of foodgrains are high.

Central Provinces.—The weather has been cloudy and rainy. The heaviest quantity registered at headquarters was about $11\frac{1}{2}$ inches at Narsingpur. Germination of autumn crops is successful everywhere. Transplantation and thinning of rice and weeding are in full swing. The condition of standing crops is decidedly good throughout the Province and prospects are favourable. Agricultural stock is generally in good condition. No deficiency of fodder and water is reported anywhere. Juar fell by one seer per rupee in Akola. Elsewhere prices remained steady or fluctuated slightly.

Feudatory States:—Rainfall sufficient. Autumn sowings are nearing completion. Transplantation, thinning and weeding are proceeding.

The weekly report on famine and scarcity not received.

Bombay.—The rainfall during the week was general and beneficial throughout the Presidency and Sind except in Ahmednagar and Sholapur where partial and heavy rain was received. A break is generally necessary. Sowing and transplantation generally continue. Germinated seedlings are thriving. The fodder supply is generally sufficient as green grass becomes available. Drinking water is sufficient. Water for irrigation is improving. Cattle are in good condition except in Thar and Parkar. Prices are fluctuating.

The weekly report on famine and scarcity is as follows:—Distress is generally decreasing owing to satisfactory rain and relief works are being closed as field labour is becoming available. Numbers of works in progress:—Broach one, the Panch Mahals six, Ahmednagar four, Poona one, Sholapur one and Bijapur eleven. Gratuitous relief to the decrepit and needy and doles to inferior village servants continue. Numbers on relief:—Workers—the Panch Mahals 2,447, Broach 143, Ahmednagar 8,001, Poona 1,220, Sholapur 976 and Bijapur 9,165; dependants—Ahmednagar 3,228, Sholapur 250 and Bijapur 1,648; gratuitous—the Panch Mahals 3,077, Broach 1,307, West Khandesh 1,488, Ahmednagar 17,822, Poona 3,892. Sholapur 6,962, Satara 3,239, Bijapur 6,489 and Belgaum 3,629. The condition of the people on works and in receipt of doles is good. The fodder supply is improving as green grass is coming in. Cattle camps have been closed. Drinking water supply is improving.

Hyderabad.—Reports not received.

Mysore.—The rainfall during the week was good in Kadur and Shimoga and light to fair elsewhere. Prices of food-grains are fluctuating. Markets are well supplied. Ragi and paddy are being sown in parts. Prospects of the season are generally good. Cattle are generally healthy. Water and fodder are available.

Coorg.—The rainfall during the week was heavy. Ploughing for rice and transplanting continue. Water and fodder for cattle are available. Cattle are generally healthy. The public health is fair. Prices of foodgrains are high.

Madras.—The rainfall during the week was very heavy on the west coast and the hills; heavy in the Agency division, Godavari, Kistna and Madras; light in Salem and Trichinopoly and fair to moderate elsewhere. Standing crops are fair generally. The outturn of the harvested paddy and dry crops in parts of sixteen districts is generally fair. Sowing of paddy and dry crops is proceeding in most districts. The condition of cattle is good generally. Water is insufficient in parts of sixteen districts but is improving. Pasture and fodder are sufficient generally except in parts of the Deccan. Prices are tending to rise. Prospects are improving in parts of Kurnool and Tinnevelly and are fair elsewhere. Three test works are in progress in Kurnool with an attendance of 1,541 units. The number of persons on gratuitous relief was 481.

The weekly report on famine in Bellary and Anantapur is as follows:—Four relief works in Bellary and five in Anantapur are in progress. Distress is moderate but is tending to decrease owing to recent rains. Coolie classes are mostly affected The people are freely resorting to works. There is no marked foreign influx. The condition of the people on relief and the public health are generally fair. No emaciation is noticeable. Relief measures are adequate. No special relief to weavers and artizans is necessary now. Cooked food and grain doles are distributed by private charity in Bellary. State loans are being advanced. Prices of cholam:—Bellary $6\frac{5}{16}$ and Anantapur $6\frac{3}{8}$ seers per rupee. Numbers on relief:—Bellary—works 11,188 and gratuitous 2,489, total 13,677; Anantapur—works 6,677 and gratuitous 3,491, total 10,168.

Nepal.—Report for the quarter ending 15th July 1921.—The rainfall in the Nepal valley for the period was 13·35 in inches against 14·96.

April 1921.—The second crop of potatoes was dug and the outturn was good.

May 1921.—Wheat, barley and peas (small) were harvested in the hills and the Nepal valley. The outturn was good. Early rice, Indian corn and chillies were sown.

June 1921.—Millet was sown in the hills. Plums and peaches commenced to ripen in Nepal.

July 1921.—Plums and peaches were gathered and the crop was good. Pears and apples commenced to ripen. Transplantation of rice has been delayed owing to late rainfall. The health of live stock is reported to be good. Market rates have risen above normal.

Memorandum on the rainfall of June and July and the probable amount during August and September 1921.

Weather in India during June and July.

The monsoon appeared over the various parts of the country at about the normal times; but the rainfall in June, though in large excess in the United Provinces East, the Central Provinces and Hyderabad North, was greatly in defect in northwest India. In July there was an improvement in the Punjab, Sind, Rajputana and Gujarat; and rainfall in northeast India was in slight excess, while in the Peninsula it was on the whole normal. But there was a material deficiency in the United Provinces, the North-West Frontier Province and Central India.

The combined rainfall of June and July over the plains of India as a whole was nearly normal, the deficiency being only an inch or five per cent; but there was a deficiency of over twenty per cent in the United Provinces West, the Punjab East and North, the North-West Frontier Province, Baluchistan, Central India East and Malabar.

2. The following tables give the actual rainfall for June and July, the departure from normal and the percentage departure from normal for the fifteen chief political divisions and the thirtythree sub-divisions of India.

CONDITIONS AFFECTING THE RAINS OF AUGUST AND SEPTEMBER 1921.

3. The recent data regarding the conditions most likely to have influence on the rains of August and September 1921 are :—

India.

4. In June pressure was in defect by ·032", the greatest deficiency being between the North-West Frontier Province and Assam. On the other hand in July pressure was, relatively to the normal, highest in northeast India and lowest in the Konkan and south Madras ; on the mean of the plains of India pressure in July was in excess by ·004".

Snowfall in the mountain regions to the north and west of India.

5. (a) North-West Frontier Province.—Light snow fell in the Chitral Agency, and at heights exceeding 13,000 feet in the Kagan valley; the accumulations in these areas at the end of July appear to have been either normal or below it. A foot of snow fell about the end of June on the high hills of the Lowarai range and about 3 inches on the high peaks in upper Swat. No snow fell in the Khyber Agency and the accumulations there at the end of the period were about normal. There was no snowfall in June or July near Parachinar, and there is at present only a comparatively small amount on the hills.

(b) Kashmir.—No snow fell in the mountains near Srinagar, but there were light falls in June on the mountains near Skardu, Sonamarg, Gulmarg and Dras. The accumulations in these regions at the end of July were much less than usual. One fairly heavy and two light falls occurred on the Ladakh mountains, and the accumulations there at present are greater than the average, but the passes are open.

(c) Punjab.—Snow fell on several days in the Kulu district at heights of 12,000 feet and over, and the accumulations there are normal. In the Bushahr State snowfall occurred at places as low as 10,000 feet on two days in June and at 14,000 feet on one day in July. The accumulations at present are however below normal.

(d) Kumaon hills.—The snowfall of the period in the Almora district has been below the average. Very little snow fell in the Garhwal district in the two months and the accumulations at present are below the average.

The present accumulation of snow on the hills of the North-West Frontier Province as well as on the western and central Himalayas are on the whole less than usual.

The Indian Ocean.

6. (a) Mauritius.—Pressure was in defect by ·030" both in June and in July.

(b) Zanzibar.—Wind velocity was below the average in June and well above it in July ; the direction was slightly more westerly than usual in both months.

(c) Seychelles.—Wind velocity was slightly below the average in June and was above it in July, the direction being more easterly than usual in June and more southerly in July.

(d) Logs of vessels.—Judged by the scanty marine information that is available, conditions in the western half of the equatorial belt were roughly normal.

Northeast Africa.

7. The White Nile is rising almost normally and the Blue fluctuating slightly. Pressure in Egypt in June was half a millibar below normal, and in July a millibar.

South America.

8. Argentine Republic.—Pressure was in excess by 0·1 mm. in June and by 2·6 mm. in July.

Chili.—Pressure was in excess by 2·1 mm in June and by 1·2 mm. in July.

EFFECTS OF THE VARIOUS FACTORS.

9. Pressure in South America had been in defect and therefore unfavourable in May, but was in moderate excess in June and in large excess in July. This factor is important for northwest India and to a smaller extent in the south of the Deccan.

10. Though some snow has fallen the accumulation of snow now lying on the hills to the northwest of India is still below normal, and unless an unseasonable fall occurs within the next two months there should be no unfavourable result on the monsoon in northwest India. The distribution of pressure in India in July was not very abnormal; but the excess in northeast India is favourable for the Peninsula and slightly so for northwest India; while the deficiency along the west coast of the Peninsula is favourable generally except for Burma and northeast India. The result of low pressure in Mauritius is beneficial except for Burma and parts of northeast India. The interest in the data of the Nile flood lies in the similarity between its abundance and that of the monsoon in western India; both were below normal early in the season and both have improved. The high pressure in South America is strongly marked and is decidedly favourable for northwest India though less so for the Peninsula. On the whole the outlook for the Peninsula is decidedly promising, and that for northwest India almost equally so. For northeast India and Burma the indications are too uncertain to justify a forecast.

Summary.

(a) In northwest India, including the west of the United Provinces, and in the Peninsula it is likely that the total rainfall of August and September will exceed the average.

(b) For northeast India and Burma the conditions are too uncertain to justify a forecast.

REMARKS.

In 83 of the principal towns in the various provinces in India with a population of over 30,000 and with an aggregate population of 7,942,780, 6,954 deaths were recorded during the week ending the 12th February, 1921. This corresponds to an annual death rate of 45·5 per mille.

77 of the towns for which figures are available registered 3,731 births corresponding to an annual birth rate of 30·3 per thousand. In the same towns 5,236 deaths were recorded.

The following of the towns returned a death rate of over 50 per mille :—

Howrah (58·3), Multan (64), Nagpur (58·21), Jubbulpore (56·60), Raipur (72·11), Amraoti (57·66), Madras (58·5), Kumbakonam (94·5), Negapatam (54·4), Madura (66·7), Salem (186·6), Bombay (68·0), Poona (63·42) and Sholapur (71·52).

In Howrah, Lahore, Amritsar, Nagpur and Sholapur the chief mortality was from fevers; in Delhi, Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, Poona, Ahmedabad, and Rangoon from respiratory diseases; in Kumbakonam from Cholera and in Madura and Salem from plague.

Cholera was responsible for 183 deaths, small-pox for 44 and plague for 393. Of the total mortality from cholera 64 deaths were reported from ten towns in Bengal Presidency and 114 from seven towns in Madras Presidency, and of the total mortality from plague 289 deaths were recorded in five towns in Madras Presidency and 56 deaths in three towns in Bihar and Orissa.

Provided that nothing in this sub-rule shall apply to import from, or export to, Berar.

(2) (a) Where under the authority of the licence granted under sub-rule (1), the arms, ammunition or stores are to be transported across British Indian territory entirely by rail, a copy of the licence shall forthwith be sent by the Political Officer granting it to the other Political Officer concerned, and to the railway authorities at the place from which the consignment is to be despatched.

(b) The railway authorities shall not receive for despatch any case or package containing arms, ammunition or military stores unless accompanied by the original licence and shall satisfy themselves—

(i) that the arms, ammunition or stores correspond with the description given in such licence, and

(ii) that such licence is identical with the copy sent to them :

(c) where in any case—

(i) the consignment is not accompanied by the original licence, or

(ii) the arms, ammunition or stores contained therein do not correspond with the description given in such licence, or

(iii) the licence is not identical with the copy sent to them, the railway authorities shall not receive the consignment for despatch and shall forthwith inform the Political Officer granting the licence.

(3) Where under the authority of a licence granted under sub-rule (1) arms, ammunition or stores are to be transported across British Indian territory and re-exported by road or river—

(i) a copy of the licence shall forthwith be sent by the Political Officer granting it to the District Magistrate of the district out of which the consignment is to cross the frontier of British India into the State to which it is exported ; and

(ii) the licence shall within 6 days of the arrival of the consignment in the district out of which it is to cross the frontier of British India into the State to which it is exported, and before it so crosses, be delivered to the District Magistrate of such district, or to such other officer as the District Magistrate may appoint for this purpose.

(4) Every officer to whom a licence is delivered under clause (ii) of sub-rule (3) shall satisfy himself—

(a) that such licence is identical in substance with the copy sent to him under clause (i) of that sub-rule, or to the District Magistrate in case he is not the District Magistrate himself ;

(b) that the arms, ammunition or stores correspond with the description given in the licence; and

(c) that any deficiency is properly accounted for."

2. In sub-rule (1) of rule 21 of the said rules, clauses (c) and (d) shall be omitted.

3. In sub-rule (1) of rule 31 of the said rules, for the words " A licence " the words " Save as provided by rule 25-A, a licence " shall be substituted.

4. In Schedule VII to the said rules—

(a) in Form VII, the words " $\frac{\text{Resident}}{\text{Assistant Resident}}$ in Baroda.

Agent to the Lieutenant-Governor for Benares State " shall be omitted; and

(b) after the said Form the following Form shall be inserted, namely :—

RESOLUTION.

Simla, the 16th, August, 1921.

No. 1559-E.A.—A number of memorials regarding their pay, pensions and conditions of service generally has during the past two years been addressed to the Government of India and His Majesty's Secretary of State for India by members of the following imperial services :—

the Indian Civil Service ;

the Indian Police Service ;

the Indian Forest Service ;

the Indian Educational Service ;

the Indian Service of Engineers ;

the Superior Telegraph Branch of the Post and Telegraph Department ;

the State Railway Engineering Service ;

the Superior Revenue Establishment of State Railways ;

the Imperial Customs Service ; and the Civil Veterinary Department.

These memorials have had the most full and careful consideration from the Governor General in Council and have been forwarded with his recommendations to the Secretary of State whose orders on certain of the points raised have now been received. This resolution will set forth the decisions on the requests in the memorials in so far as they relate to pay. Orders in connection with other requests not bearing directly on pay will be announced at a later date.

2. After considering the memorials the Governor General in Council decided that he could not contemplate any general readjustment of the scales of pay fixed for the imperial services. These scales have recently been revised after careful consideration by a Royal Commission appointed for the purpose. The recommendations of the Commission were most minutely examined by the Government of India and the Secretary of State in the light of the changed conditions existing after the war. The revised rates, as finally announced, were designed to secure a reasonable wage to every officer of every department in every year of his service. The Government of India are aware that there was a further rise in the cost of living after the revision was announced and that prices have not yet returned to the level which then prevailed; but they regret that the financial circumstances of the country make it impossible for them to contemplate any further general readjustment of pay, and they desire to announce their definite decision that they are not prepared to take any steps in this direction.

3. Representations have also been received by Government regarding the difficulties experienced by officers of European domicile, whose home remittances as measured in rupees have been largely increased by the low rate of exchange for the time being prevailing. While conscious of the hardships caused to officers thereby, the Government of India regret that the present financial conditions do not permit them to make any concession in this respect. They do not, however, consider it to be proper that the emoluments of any individual officer of a service from which exchange compensation allowance has been withdrawn should suffer an actual reduction owing to such withdrawal; and are accordingly pleased to announce, with the approval of the Secretary of State, that any individual officer who is now holding, substantively or in an officiating capacity, a post the pay of which has not been increased, and who drew exchange compensation allowance while holding the same post at any time before the revision, will be granted, so long as he continues to hold the same post or a similar post on the same scale of pay, a personal allowance equal in amount to the exchange compensation allowance for which he would from time to time have been eligible had it not been withdrawn. In case an increase of pay has been given but is insufficient to counterbalance the loss of exchange compensation allowance, a reduced personal allowance, sufficient to make up the deficiency, will be granted.

4. Although it has been decided that no general revision of pay will be undertaken, a detailed comparison of the scales of pay sanctioned for the various services has revealed the existence of certain inequalities of treatment, due to the fact that the cases of different departments were considered at different times and that conditions changed while revision was proceeding. Certain of these inequalities have already been removed by the issue of orders revising the pay of the Indian Police Service and of existing members of the Indian Educational Service. In order to remove the remainder, the Secretary of State has agreed to the issue of the following orders, which will take effect from the 30th April 1921.

5. The first inequality which it is considered necessary to rectify is connected with the years of service in which increments of overseas pay are admissible in the various departments. Owing to the comparatively late stage at which overseas pay was introduced, the scales sanctioned for the various services are not uniform when considered on a basis either of the length of service or of the approximate ages of the officers drawing overseas pay. The Secretary of State has therefore decided to substitute for the existing scales the five scales of overseas pay shown in Appendix A to this Resolution. The new scales are based on the approximate ages of officers employed in the various services. Except, however, in the case of the Indian Educational Service, which enjoys a time-scale of pay based upon age, no pledge is given to any officer that he will draw a definite rate of overseas pay in a definite year of his age. An officer has a claim in each year of his service to the rate of overseas pay laid down in the appropriate scale and to no more.

6. It has further been decided to alter the rule under which officers of Indian domicile in the Indian Police Service, the Indian Customs Service and the Geological Survey Department, who were in these services at the time when the revised rates of pay were introduced, are denied overseas pay; although this has been conceded in a modified form to officers of the Indian Forest Service and allowed to officers similarly situated in all other services. The Secretary of State has been pleased to order that, with effect from the 30th April 1921, the officers of Indian domicile who were in the Indian Police Service, the Indian Customs Service, the Geological Survey Department and the Indian Forest Service on the dates on which overseas pay was sanctioned for these services, including Forest probationers then under training, shall be eligible for overseas pay on the same terms and at the same rates as officers of European domicile.

7. The Secretary of State has decided to equalize the pay drawn by Superintending Engineers, Conservators of Forests and Deputy Inspectors-General of Police. The pay of these three classes of administrative posts will in future be Rs. 1,750—100—2,150.

8. Finally, the Secretary of State has ordered that all temporary or officiating service in an administrative post in any of the imperial services, and all service and leave during which a Government servant held a lien on such a post, or would have held a lien had it not been suspended, shall count for increments in the time-scale applicable to that post, whether such service be continuous or not. This rule should be so applied to officers at present holding administrative posts as to permit them to draw, with effect from the 30th April 1921, pay in the time-scale now applicable to those posts calculated on the assumption that all service of the kinds in question has counted for increments.

Ordered that the Resolution be published in the Gazette of India.

J. E. C. JUKES,

Joint Secretary to the Government of India.

SIR,

ptem- 1920, -38

With reference to the circular letter from this Department, No. 1170, dated the 17th September 1920, communicating the decision of the Secretary of State that probationers for the Imperial Forest Service should be trained at the Forest Research Institute, Dehra Dun, as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made, I am directed to forward a copy of a subsequent despatch from the Secretary of State, No. 113-Revenue, dated 30th September 1920, in which, for reasons given, it is directed that the whole matter should be reconsidered.

I am now therefore to invite a reference to chapters III and IV of annexure VIII of the Public Services Commission's Report, 1916, concerning the Forest Department, and to forward copies of relevant extracts from the papers on the subject as noted in the accompanying schedule.

2. It will be seen that the Government of India, when consulting local Governments regarding the proposals of the Public Services Commission, were inclined to favour the project of training both Indian and European recruits in India as soon as the necessary arrangements could be made at Dehra Dun, but, being subsequently convinced by the arguments adduced in the almost unanimous opposition of the local Governments to this project, they recommended to the Secretary of State that both classes of recruits should be trained at one selected University in Great Britain. The Secretary of State, however, decided that probationers both British and Indian should ordinarily be trained at Dehra Dun in future. On receipt of this decision the Government of India, after considering a note recorded on the 18th May 1920, by their Inspector-General of Forests, Sir George Hart, an extract from which is included among the papers enclosed, asked the Secretary of State to leave open the whole question temporarily. The Secretary of State declined at first to do so, but in view of a resolution unanimously adopted by the Empire Forestry Conference advocating the establishment of a central training institution, he has now asked for a full reconsideration of the whole matter and lays special emphasis on the desirability of ascertaining Indian opinion thereon. The Government of India have since received a copy of the Report of the Inter-departmental Committee on Imperial Forestry Education, which was appointed to prepare a scheme for giving effect to the resolution of the Empire Forestry Conference. It will be observed that that report does not deal specially with the subject of training for the Indian Forest Service but, as will be shown later, its recommendations, which, in brief, contemplate a course of higher training in forestry for students who have already received preliminary education in that subject, are capable of adoption whether the preliminary education be given in England or in India.

3. The various proposals regarding the training of probationers for the Imperial Forest Service may be summarised as follows :—

(i) Training in England and on the Continent for both classes of recruit, i.e., British and Indian, as at present.

(ii) Training at Dehra Dun for both classes of recruit with subsequent visits to Continental forests. This is the scheme adopted by the Secretary of State before he recently decided to have the whole matter considered afresh.

(iii) Selection in England and India of recruits who have already undergone a preliminary education in forestry in England and India respectively, and higher training in England and Europe of all recruits together for one year at a central institution. This represents the method by which the recommendations of the Inter-departmental Committee would be applied to recruitment for India.

4. The present system.—Selection in England (60 per cent.) and in India (40 per cent.). Candidates in England required to possess an honours degree in science; those in India a first class degree of any Indian University in any subject. Candidates in India are required to pass a qualifying examination in English, Mathematics and two Science subjects, the standard of the examination in the latter being that of the honours science degree of the Madras University. Training in England for two years at either Oxford, Cambridge or Edinburgh University, the choice of University being left to the probationer. During the practical course of instruction the students are all together. Probationers are not finally appointed as members of the Forest Service until they join their appointments in India. The cost of this method is about £450 per candidate (a stipend of £200 per annum is given to each), but in addition those selected in England are given a free passage to India and those selected in India are given free passages to England and back.

5. The Dehra Dun scheme.—Adopted by the Secretary of State in his Despatch No. 14-Revenue, dated the 12th February 1920. Selection and qualifications as at present. Training for both classes of probationers at Dehra Dun Practical instruction in European forestry to be arranged for by requiring that after three to six years service officers should spend a short period in European forests. Probationers appointed in England to become members of the Forest Service at once and, when confirmed, to count service for pay, promotion and pension, from date of arrival in India to commence training. Owing to paying the students during their course of instruction and to the necessity of providing at Dehra Dun a properly equipped educational institution and a full staff of competent teachers for auxiliary sciences as well as for forestry proper, the cost per recruit under this method is likely to be very high and is estimated, for a two years' course only, at £2,000, exclusive of the cost of travelling in India, which is bound to be expensive and also of the cost of visits to European forests after training and a period of service in India. This method might be modified by selection at school-leaving age by examination tempered by nomination. This would necessitate a three year course at Dehra Dun instead of a two year course and the expense would be almost proportionately higher.

The objections to training in India are fully dealt with in the papers forwarded. The proposal was met by almost unanimous and strong opposition from local Governments when it was first put forward, and local Governments' opinions are entitled to the highest consideration, since it is they who will pay and employ the staff recruited. The principal objections may be summarized here. They are:—

(i) Indian forests do not and cannot, for many years to come, possess the educational value which has been claimed for them by the Secretary of State; with the exception of small areas of artificial plantations India does not possess any forests such as exist in France, and other continental countries besides Germany, which exhibit the results of continuous scientific management over long periods of time.

(ii) Indian officers trained in England, in addition to the general advantages which must result from sojourn at an English University, acquire a status which they could not secure if trained in India.

(iii) The social assimilation of Indian and British recruits will be more easily secured in England than in India, however short the period of joint training may be.

(iv) The general atmosphere of India is not the best place for British adolescence; while, moreover, the general education, as opposed to the purely training side of the question, obtainable at a British University is incontestably more likely to fit a British, and for that matter, an Indian recruit, for his duties of administration later, than training at a specialized institution in India.

(v) The cost of training in India must greatly exceed that of training in England.

Against the disadvantages which may be urged it must not, however, be forgotten that many Indians would prefer their sons to be trained where some degree of parental supervision could be exercised, and that there may be advantage to the Government of India in having the training of probationers under their direct control. It must also be remembered that the deficiency in India of large forest areas which exhibit the results of continuous management over long periods of time is an argument that may be pushed too far, inasmuch as it must mean that, if such areas are a necessary complement of an institute for higher training in forestry, India can never be equipped with such an institute within a reasonably short period of time. Further the defect might be cured by sending young officers to the Continent for a short period, in the same way as it may be necessary or desirable to send them to America for training as forest engineers. Finally I am to invite attention to the following passage in paragraph 9 of the Secretary of State's Despatch No. 14-Rev., dated the 12th February 1920, in which he sets forth his reasons for preferring this scheme:—

"I am entirely in accord with the opinion that the joint training of European and Indian recruits at one centre is essential; but the practical difficulties in securing this in England are so great that I see no alternative to the immediate selection of Dehra Dun as the training centre. For many reasons it would probably be impossible to train the Indian Forest Service probationers at one institution in England; and, if training there were decided upon, the students would necessarily be distributed, according to their choice, among three or more Universities. The conditions which Your Excellency's Government and I regard as essential could not, therefore, be fulfilled. I have considered the question of establishing a Forest College for India, analogous to Cooper's Hill; but such a scheme would be very costly, and it would, I consider, be unjustifiable unless the proposal to train at Dehra Dun were definitely abandoned. Training at Dehra Dun offers, however, certain advantages which as you recognise, are so important that the definite abandonment of that proposal would clearly be inadvisable. The position as regards training in England has also changed materially as a result of the war; it will be impracticable for many years to come to utilise the German forests as a training ground, and I am advised that this will withdraw one of the most valuable of the educative elements in the system of training hitherto in force here. There are no forests in the United Kingdom suitable for the more advanced practical instruction of the probationers, and the forests of France and Switzerland are probably less useful as a training field than the Indian forests. Officers trained at Dehra Dun could be taught their practical work in the provincial forests, where their theoretical instruction would afterwards be applied in practice. While these considerations point to Dehra Dun as the most suitable centre from the point of view of the existence of an adequate training ground, the facilities for theoretical instruction, and particularly for instruction in the practical management of forests, are also superior to those now obtainable in England. The decision to maintain the existing age limits substantially unaltered will remove the objection that Dehra Dun might prove an undesirable centre for English youths of 18 to 20; and Indian parents will, I anticipate, welcome an arrangement which will admit of the continuance of parental supervision and control over their sons during the period of training.

"For these reasons I have decided that probationers for the Indian Forest Service will ordinarily be trained at Dehra Dun in future, and I desire that Your Excellency's Government will now take steps to give effect to this decision at the earliest possible date. In a few exceptional cases, where probationers of unusual scientific ability or attainments are recruited, it may be desirable to arrange for their training in Europe with the object of qualifying them for research work, or for appointments which demand a high degree of scientific knowledge and skill. Future recruits to the Indian Forest Service will have no practical experience of European systems of forest administration; and as that experience has proved valuable in the past, it will be desirable to supplement the course of training at Dehra Dun by a short period spent in the Continental forests. I suggest that this should be arranged when the officer has from three to six years' practical experience in India, and leave it to Your Excellency's Government to settle the details of the scheme. Study leave might be granted for the purpose; but whatever system be adopted, I hope that every directly recruited officer of the Indian Forest Service will ordinarily be required to spend at least six months in studying Continental systems of forestry before he has completed six years' service in India."

6. The scheme of the Inter-departmental Committee.—The receipt of the Report of Lord Clinton's Inter departmental Committee may lead to a revision of previous opinions on this important subject. At the British Empire Forestry Conference held in England in 1920, it was brought to notice that whereas the Empire contains 1,200,000 000 acres of forest land, the possibilities of the development of which are very great indeed, there exists within the Empire no institution for the higher training of forest officers The Conference therefore considered that a central institution of this kind was essential, and, as a result, the Inter-departmental Committee was appointed and has made its recommendations. After visiting the Universities in Great Britain the Committee, in view of the amount of education in forestry, up to the standard of the present Imperial Forest Service training, already being provided for, has not felt justified in disregarding it altogether or in recommending that all forestry education be confined to a central institution, but has recommended that the functions of the central institution should be confined to giving an advanced course of training to men who have already received the education in forestry which the Universities provide. The preliminary education, the Committee considers, should be up to the standard required at present, the Universities co-operating in a joint scheme to ensure as nearly as possible a common standard, while a central institution should be formed at Oxford for the higher training of those who have undergone the education in forestry obtainable at the Universities. The consensus of evidence before the Committee appears to have justified the belief that forestry education in England has reached a stage which will provide an ample field for the selection of candidates for the various forest services of the Empire, and it was urged to the Committee that the selection of candidates from among those who had completed a prior education in forestry would possess the following advantages :—

(i) Candidates appointed as probationers would ordinarily commence their service two, and in some cases three, years earlier than they are able to do at present.

(ii) The Governments concerned would not have to bear the cost of the preliminary education, which the students themselves will have acquired by taking the forestry course at the Universities.

At present the only qualification for a probationership in the Indian Forest Service is the possession of an Honours degree in science, and the Government of India have at present to bear the cost of providing a training in forestry.

(iii) The Services will obtain better officers. The evidence received by the Committee justified the conclusion that young men who have taken up and persisted in the study of forestry from an earlier age, and at their own expense, will have done so because it appealed to them and that they are more likely to be interested in their profession than men who have primarily devoted themselves to the study of science, especially since the best science graduates are attracted by openings other than those to be found in forestry. In short, the argument is that the man who has taken up the study of forestry with a view to making it his profession is likely to do better than one who has adopted it later in life as an after thought and after acquiring a bias for a particular science.

7. The course of higher training at the Central Institution would last for one year, and the proposal thus involves the selection of probationers from among men who have already received, at their own expense, an approved vocational education in forestry and their subsequent higher training, at the expense of Government for one year at the Central Institution. The cost of this training would be approximately £ 450 per probationer exclusive of passages.

8. It is evident that if this scheme is adopted, provision must be made in India for a course of education in forestry so as to enable Indian students to obtain, before selection for training at the Central Institution, a qualification equivalent to the forestry diploma or degree obtainable at the British Universities. It would be necessary to replace the existing Provincial Forest Service course at Dehra Dun by one which would extend to three years, so far as possible up to the standard of the diploma of forestry at Oxford. Since the Forest Research Institute at Dehra Dun is a Government institution of a limited capacity it would be necessary to limit, both on account of the difficulty of training more than a certain number of students and because it would not be sound to train more students than the number likely to obtain employment, the number of students admitted, and entry to the course might be by selection and nomination by local Governments at school leaving age after a qualifying examination in English, Mathematics, Physics and Chemistry up to the standard of the Oxford matriculation. The aim would be to secure a vocational training at school-leaving age in place of a post graduate training. On the completion of a three years course the number of probationers for the Imperial Service required for that year might be selected by the Government of India; the candidates obtaining the diploma but not selected for the Imperial Forest Service would obtain appointments in the Provincial Service, service in which would render them eligible for promotion to the Imperial Forest Service in the listed appointments. The Indian probationers would be sent to England and would, together with those selected in England, undergo the year's higher training at the Central Institution. It is estimated that under this arrangement the cost of an Indian recruit would amount to about £ 1,500 exclusive of travelling expenses and that of a British recruit to £ 450. The extra cost of the Indian recruit would be on account of the cost of establishing and maintaining the vocational course of forestry up to the required standard at Dehra Dun, for though it will be expected of students to maintain themselves while at Dehra Dun, it is not proposed to charge them fees for tuition.

9. This scheme, though expensive as compared with the present system of obtaining and training Indian recruits, will be less expensive than that of concentrating all forest training of recruits, both British and Indian, at Dehra Dun. In the case of British recruits the expenditure involved will certainly be far smaller, while for Indian recruits the scheme provides that the greater part of their education in forestry shall be given in India, and gives them the benefits which a year's subsequent training in Europe cannot fail to confer.

10. The cost of £ 2,000 and £ 1,500 for probationers, as roughly estimated in paragraphs 5 and 8, respectively, of this letter may appear to be a deterrent factor in considering the schemes there discussed, but it must be remembered that the Provinces will probably in any event be asked to face large expenditure if they desire to continue the practice of having their candidates for the Provincial Service trained at Dehra Dun. The scheme for the enlargement of the Research Institute includes the project of removing the Forest College to a new site, and new buildings, lecture rooms, hostels, laboratories and so forth will have to be built. The cost of erecting these must be a basis for calculating the charges to be made to local Governments for training their candidates for the Provincial Service, and in addition there will be the cost of the teaching staff and other expenditure. There will be no great difference in the cost of erecting and maintaining the necessary institution, whether it be for Provincial Service candidates only or for Imperial Service candidates as well, and since probably less than one-fourth of the men trained at Dehra Dun will be afterwards members of the Imperial Service, the bulk of the cost of maintaining the training institution (including interest on capital expenditure) will have to be recovered as charges for training Provincial Service men; and the extra cost of training an Imperial Service, as opposed to a Provincial Service, officer will not be great.

11. As has been said above, the Secretary of State is particularly desirous of ascertaining how the whole question is regarded by Indians. I am therefore to request that steps may be taken to obtain expressions of Indian opinion, both official and non-official, and that these may be forwarded to the Government of India together with the views of the local Government with as little delay as possible.

16. If, as the Government of India consider most desirable, Indian and European recruits are to be trained together, the choice lies between (a) sending the Indian recruits to England to be there trained with the European recruits, and (b) bringing the European recruits out to India to be trained with the Indian recruits at Dehra Dun as soon as arrangements can be made to institute the advanced course advocated by the Commission. In the former case, or if separate training for European recruits maintained in England, and these recruits are selected at the school-leaving age, the Government of India are inclined to agree with Sir Frank Sly that the training should be carried out at one centre and should not be distributed over two or more institutions as at present.

17. The Governor-General in Council fully recognizes the fact that apart from climatic and other considerations there are obvious advantages in training in England where much greater opportunities are available for thorough instruction in the auxiliary subjects while the students would be able to spend a part of the course in forests on the continent of Europe which have been under systematic management for centuries. If arrangements could be made to send all recruits for the Imperial Service, both Indians and Europeans, to one training centre in the United Kingdom where the special subjects necessary for Indian forest officers were certain to be properly provided for, the Government of India might be willing to accept the suggestion that Indian recruits should be sent to England for training. On the other hand, there are considerations which make it advisable that young Indians should be trained in their own country if possible, while it is obviously desirable that the Indian Empire, with greater forest resources than any other portion of the British Empire, excepting possibly Canada, should be in a position to provide training in scientific forestry up to the highest standard: moreover, such an institution would perhaps be more likely to attract men for training from other parts of the Empire, such as South Africa, Australia and Ceylon, than would a forest college in England.

There can, the Government of India think, be little doubt that the pure forestry subjects can be taught at least as well in India as in England, provided that sufficient acquaintance with examples of highly organized forest management, such as are met with only on the continent of Europe, is given before the completion of the course. Again, forest engineering and surveying, the former of which has always, and the latter has recently, been taught only to a very limited and admittedly insufficient extent, can certainly be dealt with better in India than in England under present conditions: while there is no reason why botany, zoology, organic chemistry and geology should not be provided for in India to the extent that is necessary: sufficient acquaintance with physiography, inorganic chemistry and physics would be insured by the competitive examination proposed.

18. On a consideration of all the factors in the case, the Government of India are inclined to favour the project of training both Indian and European recruits in India as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made at Dehra Dun. The scheme which, as at present advised, they are disposed to recommend is that the course in India should commence about November and end in March, two years and three or four months later: and that, from April to November following the completion of the course, the students should visit England, and the continent of Europe, partly on leave and partly on a tour to selected continental forest centres. They recognize that this scheme has certain unavoidable disadvantages, particularly in the case of European recruits, as regards climate and the age at which they would be brought out to India in the first instance. His Excellency the Governor General in Council thinks, however, that the former of those disadvantages could be to some extent mitigated by a suitable arrangement of the touring and lecture terms, while he regards the proposed return to Europe within some 2½ years of the time of recruitment as likely to reduce these disadvantages and to attract a good class of recruits. It is recognized that the training of all recruits in India is likely to be no more economical than either of the other alternatives mentioned, as it will necessitate, the payment by Government of additional passages to and from England, and will involve extra expenditure on travelling and on stipends to the students sufficient to cover the cost of living throughout the whole course of training. It is thought, however, that in view of the great desirability of training both classes of recruits together and of the other considerations mentioned above, it may be found worthwhile to face this expenditure. I am to add that as conditions of service in the Forest Department make it difficult to adhere strictly to caste restrictions, and, as the visit to Europe, during which adherence to these restrictions would be impossible, is an essential portion of the training, it has been suggested that throughout the course Indian and English students should be required to live and mess together. As such daily association would tend to the attainment to a proper spirit of camaraderie and to the encouragement of esprit de corps, it is perhaps justifiable to hope that Indian public opinion would acquiesce in this arrangement, but the Government of India would be glad of the opinion of local Governments on the question.

6. Paragraphs 12, 16, 17 and 18. Training of recruits.—The Government concur in the views of the Government of India that it is essential that both Indian and European recruits for the Imperial Service should be trained in the same institution or centre.

They have carefully considered the question whether such training should be in India or in England and have come to the conclusion that the training should be in England preferably at Oxford University. This conclusion is in accord with the views of the committee of forest officers referred to in paragraph 1 above. In the opinion of this Government the advantages of training in England far outweigh the objections to it. As regards the attainment of a proper spirit of camaraderie and the encouragement of esprit de corps referred to by the Government of India in paragraph 18 of Mr. McKenna's letter under reply, the Government doubt whether students of different races would, in India, mix out of class hours to the extent necessary to foster this spirit and consider that the assimilation of Indian and European recruits aimed at by the Government of India can be obtained only if the training is carried out in England.

Regarding the training of candidates for the Provincial Service, the Government of India's conclusion that Provincial officers should be trained separately from the Imperial Service Probationers is in accord with the views of this Government otherwise in a joint institution one class might look down on the other and resentment would follow. To avoid this and the possibility of heart-burning and discontent among Provincial Service officers, this Government consider that in no circumstance should the two classes of officers be trained in the same institution or centre.

Paragraphs 16, 17 and 18 dealing with the question of the combined training of the Imperial Service recruits.—The Public Services Commission proposes separate training for Indian and English recruits and the question discussed in the above paragraphs by the Government of India were for the most part not considered. The Government of India consider that pure forestry subjects can be taught at least as well in India as in England, provided that acquaintance with examples of highly organized forest management, only available on the continent of Europe, be given before the completion of the course. For these and for some less important reasons, while recognising certain inevitable disadvantages, they recommend that all recruits should be trained in India and should complete their training by a visit to certain forests in Europe.

Mr. Venkataramana Ayyar states that the opinion of the Provincial Forest Service is probably in favour of training in India but that this view should be considerably modified if it be decided that Imperial recruits, whether recruited in India or in England, shall be paid on the same scale. His own opinion and that of the rest of the Committee is strongly in favour of training in England and there is no doubt that this is the unanimous view of the Imperial Branch.

The Committee does not think that pure forestry can be taught as well in India as in England. In the first place, all the best text-books and forest literature are based on European practice and can only be assimilated throughly by a study of European example. The illustrations available in India are incomplete and so scattered as to render examination of them difficult without considerable expense and loss of time, nor in India has there yet been sufficient progress for the result of Indian system of forest management to be followed to the end.

In Europe, on the other hand, such matters can be studied with facility and principles can be demonstrated by the results of the adoption of any practice. The great variety of Indian forest species and the little that is at present known of them, compared with the mass of information regarding the strictly limited number of European species, renders it difficult to teach the principles of forestry so well in India as in England. This applies particularly to question of soil valuation, assessment values and all the higher points of forestry.

In brief, the Committee considers that the developments of the forests in India is as yet insufficient to make it so valuable a country for training as Europe, while the forest problems in India are so complicated compared to those in Europe, as to make their study during training more confusing than educating.

Reasons applied to the assimilation of teaching apply to the teaching itself and teaching in India is bound to be handicapped by the local conditions.

It is stated that the subject of Forest Engineering and Survey can certainly be dealt with better in India than in England. This Committee is unable to agree that this is the case so far as theoretical knowledge is concerned, while any deficiency in practical training can be easily supplied by a short course in India. With regard to such allied subjects as Botany, Zoology, Organic Chemistry and Geology, facilities of teaching at Dehra Dun cannot be compared to those available at an English University.

Apart from the teaching side of the question, there are other and even stronger reasons for the preference of Europe as a training ground. It has been agreed that a proper assimilation of Indian and European recruits can only be obtained if they are trained at a single institution. Clearly this assimilation would be more complete if the training is conducted at an English centre and the Committee would go so far as to affirm that the attainment of a proper spirit of camaraderie and esprit de corps can only be obtained if the training is carried out in England. In India it is to be feared that the students of different races would not mix out of class hours to an extent necessary to foster this spirit.

Another argument which the Committee would like to emphasise is that Indians who have been educated in England will always command a higher prestige than those who have not and that this is a very important matter in regard to their position vis-a-vis the Provincial Service in respect of discipline and similar matters.

The disadvantage of the training in England from the Indian point of view is the introduction of students to a new country at an age when they may not be able to stand alone; but it is to be remembered that they will be going to a regular institution where their interests can be safeguarded and that they will not be left to their own resources while in search of a career.

From the English point of view there would seem to be almost insuperable difficulties about a training in India. The field of choice will be greatly reduced for it is unlikely that many parents will consent to send their sons to be trained in India at so early an age as 19 with no certainty that they will ultimately obtain employment; and even if sufficient recruits could be found it seems almost certain that they would not be of the standard required.

For these and other reasons the Committee considers that the training of those recruited in England as well as those recruited in India should be at one institution in England; and further it is considered advisable that that institution should be the University of Oxford where there is already a School of Forestry which can be suitably extended, where a tradition of education for the Indian Services already exists.

11. Paragraphs 16, 17 and 18 (see also paragraph 12 above)—Combined training of the Imperial Service Recruits.—This is perhaps the most important, also the most controversial of the questions raised in the Government of India's reference. The case in favour of training all the Imperial Service recruits together seems conclusive, and the arguments in favour of having such training in Europe at a single institution, preferably the University of Oxford, have been very emphatically put by the Committee. The attention of the Government is also drawn to the minute by Mr. F. G. Sly, printed at pages 154 and 155 of the Public Services Commission's report, where the same recommendation is made on much the same ground.

It seems clear from the arguments advanced by the Committee that for a considerable period (given as a generation by Mr. F. G. Sly) the training as Dehra Dun or any other Indian institution is unlikely to be as efficient as the training procurable in Europe, and the Government of India have stated that it will be no less expensive. If, therefore the efficiency of the training is to be the paramount consideration, the Board considers that the Committee's view should be accepted.

It is, however, possible that the question ought not to be decided on this ground alone and that the training in India, if less efficient, can be made good enough.

The Board does not think the difficulties about joint training at Dehra Dun are necessarily insuperable. The Committee's criticisms are dealt with below:—

(1) The superior efficiency attainable at an European institution.—This has already been dealt with above.

(2) The superior suitability of European forests as a training ground.—This is doubtless undeniable, but it may be remarked that this applies, the Board believes, to continental forests and not to English forests accessible from Oxford or any other English institution. and that the Government of India's proposals include a period of training in continental forests.

(3) The undesirability of bringing European candidates out to India at so early an age as 19.—The objection is hardly conclusive, since the members of the Police Service have been recruited at about that age for many years past. Also the climate in which these candidates would pass most of their training would not be that of the plains of India.

The Board. however, agrees that a practical certainty of their sons' obtaining an appointment at the end of their probation is essential in order to induce parents to send their sons to India at school-leaving age. Probably in any event the risk of any of them failing to qualify at the end of their training would be slight, but it would be necessary on the system proposed to guarantee an appointment, short of actual misconduct.

(4) The Committee emphasizes very strongly the desirability of encouraging a spirit of camaraderie and esprits de corps and considers that the communal life which should foster spirit can only be led in England. As regards joint messing and the like, the Board agree that conditions which are possible in Europe could not be observed in such an institution as Dehra Dun. Apart from obvious difficulties, the readiness to adopt, at least temporarily, English social habits, which results almost compulsorily from a prolonged visit to Europe, could not be induced by the mere passage of an Indian student from his home to such an institution as Dehra Dun.

The Board, however, does not attach the same importance as the Committee to this fusion of social habit, and considers that it would be a mistake to attempt it in Dehra Dun. It ought to be possible for the students of both races to work together in good fellowship without forcing them into hourly contact so close as that which the Government of India's proposals imply. The Board doubts whether in any institution such intimacy of daily habit would be agreeable to either class, and thinks that, if not agreeable, it would probably produce the effect opposite to that desired.

Enclosure No. 2 (b).

Extract paragraphs 6-7 from Bombay Government's letter No. 1953, dated the 25th February 1919.

6. Paragraph 16 of the letter.—The Governor in Council considers that the training should be confined to one centre and should not be distributed over two or more institutions. The dispersion of the students among a number of different training centres will militate seriously against the formation of that mutual understanding and companionship between the candidates of the two races which it is essential to promote.

7. Paragraphs 17 and 18 of the letter.—According to the suggestion advanced by the Government of India, the European selected candidates, who will be of school-leaving age, will be brought out to India for training for a period of two years, will then be sent back to Europe for a short period of further training, and will finally be brought out for service in India. Such a scheme appears to the Governor in Council to be open to grave objections, for which the supposed advantage of adapting the course of training to the convenience of the Indian candidates offers an altogether inadequate compensation. It appears to disregard the fact that, whereas the Indian youth will, generally speaking, benefit physically, intellectually and morally by a course of training in European surroundings under proper supervision and with adequate safeguards, a stay of some two years in India at an important stage of his physical and mental development is calculated to be highly detrimental to the average English youth and would be the worst possible preparation for a service in which a high standard of physical fitness and activity is required. The adoption of a preponderatingly Indian course of training would inevitably have the effect of seriously limiting the field of recruitment and of lowering the standard of recruits. The English candidates are likely to be seriously unsettled by their short stay at home after their two years' stay in India, and may acquire a distaste for their prospective career in India. On the other hand the Indian candidates will not have time to adapt themselves to the new conditions and profit by the benefits which the influence of European surroundings is calculated to confer. The difficulty of amalgamating the two classes of students will moreover be considerably enhanced if the first contact between them takes place in India. Apart from these considerations, there is the important question of the relative facilities for training obtainable in Europe and India, respectively

To the Governor in Council it appears unquestionable that for many years to come the latter must necessarily be greatly inferior. The Governor in Council considers that during their period of training candidates should be in receipt of a stipend sufficient to meet a reasonable proportion of their personal expenditure. In the case of the Indian candidates the rate of this stipend might appropriately be fixed at a somewhat higher figure than in the case of the European candidates, and free passages to and from Europe should also be provided.

II.—METHOD OF RECRUITMENT FOR THE IMPERIAL SERVICE.

8. Paragraph 11 of your letter has already been dealt with. The points dealt with in paragraphs 12—18 largely hang together. The Commission have recommended that candidates for the Imperial Service, when recruited in Europe, should continue to be recruited in the same way as at present, namely, from candidates who have obtained a degree with honours in some branch of Natural Science or have passed the Final B.Sc. examination in pure Science, preference being given to candidates who have already had some training in forestry. They also recommend that as the Forest Schools of Great Britain develop the practice should be introduced of recruiting ready trained foresters who can be sent out without undergoing a term of probationary training in Great Britain. As regards recruitment in India, the Commission, subject to a modification in paragraph 5 of the annexure, recommend that the selection should be made from candidates possessing the degree of B.Sc. who have been trained at the Dehra Dun College in an advanced course, which it is proposed should be instituted up to the highest European standard, provided that in the opinion of an expert committee, duly qualified candidates are available for appointment and on condition that it will be open to the Government of India to send them for a course of practical training in European forests at any time during their career. I am to explain at the outset that His Excellency adheres to these proposals.

9. The Government of India have, on the other hand, suggested a scheme according to which recruitment both in England and in India should be made at the school-leaving age by a competitive examination ; both sets of recruits should be trained together at the College at Dehra Dun for about two and a half years with a subsequent tour in England and on the continent. This scheme is, however, so experimental, so entirely different from that proposed by the Public Services Commission and discards so much of what is good in the present system that His Excellency the Governor in Council regrets that he cannot accept it as a practical solution of the problem. It is based on the hypothetical advantage of the association of Indians and Europeans at one college. To attain this, the joint training must be either in India or England. That it is impracticable to send Indian recruits to England is clear, if only for the reason that past experience does not justify the expectation that, given opportunities for instruction in England, they will proceed there in sufficient numbers. There remains therefore only the other alternative of a joint training at a higher grade college at Dehra Dun. But His Excellency in Council considers that there are several cogent reasons why Europeans should not be trained in India for the Forest Service :

(1) The college at Dehra Dun for the training of the Imperial Forest Service has not yet been established. It is true that in paragraph 17 of your letter reasons have been given for believing that arrangements for such a college are possible. This Government are, however, disposed to agree with Sir Murray Hammick and Sir Valentine Chirol that it is unlikely that the higher grade college at Dehra Dun can be developed up to the highest European standard sufficiently quickly.

The reasons which both they and His Excellency advanced in their notes of dissent against the too rapid recruitment of Indians for the Imperial Service, until the proposed higher grade Forest College at Dehra Dun had proved its efficacy, apply with much greater force in the case of the training of Europeans. The Governor in Council, therefore, considers that no experiment with the training of Europeans ought to be made there until its efficacy, as a higher grade training college, has been definitely established.

(2) The scheme jettisons a method of selection which is securing a good type of officer and the best training available in the forest schools of Great Britain.

(3) The advantages to be gained by the joint training of Europeans and Indians at one college in India are in the opinion of this Government hypothetical. Conditions are obviously different from those of an English University or school.

(4) In view of the strides taken in afforestation in Europe and in particular owing to the deforestation caused by the war, the demand for foresters in Europe will become greater, and in consequence the Forest Schools in Britain so more efficient, that there should be no difficulty in obtaining the ready-trained forester contemplated by the Public Services Commission.

10. On the other hand, the Government of Bengal are strongly in favour of the proposal to create a higher grade college at Dehra Dun for the training of Indian recruits for the Imperial Service and they are of opinion that no considerations of expense should stand in the way of its establishment. The Governor in Council agrees with the Government of India that the training of candidates for the Imperial and Provincial Services should, if possible, be kept distinct, otherwise, however, this Government are in favour of the proposals of the Public Services Commission regarding the methods of recruitment of Indian recruits. Such proposals are a necessary corollary to the proposals regarding European recruits. Moreover, under present conditions selection is necessary in order to reconcile conflicting interests. Further, if selection is the proper method of recruitment for the Provincial Branch, as contemplated in paragraph 20 of your letter, a fortiori it would appear to be the proper method for the recruitment of Indians for the Imperial Branch.

11. In reply to the request of the Government of India in paragraph 18 of your letter for the opinion of this Government on the question whether Indian public opinion would acquiesce in the suggestion that throughout a joint course Indian and English students should be required to live and mess together, I am directed to say that, provided Indian recruits who would not object to this arrangement are forthcoming, no opposition need be expected to such an arrangement.

8. With regard to the system of training of Indian and European recruits after their admission to the service, His Honour sees very serious disadvantages in the scheme sketched out in paragraph 18 of your letter. It will be some years before arrangements can be completed for high grade instruction to be imparted at Dehra Dun. The climate of Dehra Dun during the greater part of the year is far from suitable for young Europeans. The European recruits will arrive there at an immature age before they are able to face the climatic difficulties. The proposed scheme, if carried out, is likely to result in increased mortality in the younger ranks, which apart from other considerations will be financially wasteful. Moreover, the social amenities of Dehra Dun are not of a type to be desired for British youths of under twenty. So far as Europeans are concerned, it is certain that the training at Dehra Dun will not, for a long time to come, produce the requisite stamp of men and that the men trained there will be much inferior to the University men now in the service. This will be seriously detrimental to the interests of the department and of the State, especially at a time when it is necessary that the diminishing number of Europeans in the service should possess the highest possible attainments. It may be mentioned that at paragraph 316 of the Report on Indian Constitutional Reforms it has been laid down that for the different services it will be necessary to make arrangements to send for training in England candidates selected in India. Sir Harcourt Butler is of the opinion that for some years to come European and Indian recruits should be trained together in England and that the training should be carried out at one centre. He would suggest that the Government of India should co-operate with His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom to establish a British school of forestry which will train forest officers for the whole of the Empire. With regard to the last sentence of paragraph 18 of your letter asking for the opinion of the local Government on the suggestion that Indian and English students should throughout their course of training be required to live and mess together, I am to say that Sir Harcourt Butler does not consider it necessary that any rigid rules should be laid down. He is convinced that the object which the Government of India rightly aim at will be attained without any such rules by leaving the matter to the discretion of the Indian candidates themselves.

11. Sir Michael O'Dwyer agrees with the conclusion of the Government of India stated in paragraph 16 of your letter that any training given in England should be given at one centre. If equal educational facilities existed in both countries he would be inclined to agree with the preference of the Government of India for training in India despite the obvious drawbacks of bringing out English boys of 18 and 19 years of age. He is, however, advised that it will be impossible for some years to come to give in India the education in the principles of Forestry that is available in Europe, and that even were the instructional staff at Dehra Dun completely re-organized the absence of normal forests would for at least a generation prevent the possibility of a satisfactory course of training. I am directed to enclose copy of a note recorded by Mr. McIntosh, Conservator of Forests, which bears on this point.

2. The educational staff in India will, if recruited from the Forest Service, always be amateurs not only in education but also in their respective subjects. They will not, and cannot be expected to, have the knowledge of their respective subjects which specialists in England have. Even in a subject like pure forestry training in India will be handicapped by the recurring absence of the teacher on furlough or other leave of absence.

3. The main defect, however, in training in India lies in the absence in India of normal forests the growing of which should be the objective of the training of all forest officers. In India forest officers can be shown what they ought not to aim at but not what they should aim at. To defer the visits to normal forests until after the entire theoretical course of training has been given would be fatal, and on this ground alone the proposal to train recruits for the Imperial Service in India should be negatived.

7. The question whether recruits for the Imperial Service should be trained in England or in India is discussed in paragraphs 16 to 18 of the Government of India's letter, and they are inclined, despite the obvious advantages of training in England, to favour the project of training both Indian and European recruits in India as soon as necessary arrangements can be made at Dehra Dun. Sir Reginald Craddock ventures to record his respectful dissent from this conclusion, with particular reference to Burma. He regards training in Europe as indispensable to the maintenance of the British character of the administration, especially in the Forest Department which is brought into closer contact with the more primitive peoples of the country than any other department. In Burma as in India it is in its relations with such peoples that the British administration has attained its most conspicuous success and it is precisely in regard to these peoples that the pre-British administration was least successful. Under the Burmese regime the Karens and Talaings were down-trodden races, despised and oppressed by their Burmese conquerors. The Shan States were never free from inter-State warfare, fostered by their Burmese overlords on the principle divide et impera. The Kachins and Chins by their constant raids depopulated the plains in the vicinity of their mountain fastnesses. The Lieutenant-Governor has no doubt that so far as the technical part of the training of the Imperial Service recruits in regard to the management of Indian forests is concerned, it would be possible in time to provide at Dehra Dun a course in some respects superior to any course in Europe, but he regards this as of less importance than the general effect of a three years' residence and training in England on the mind and ideas and sympathies of the Statutory Native of Burma recruit at a very impressionable age. His Honour has not overlooked the fact that the Government of India propose, in paragraph 18 of their letter, that the students trained at Dehra Dun should visit England and the continent of Europe from April to November in the third year of their training. But a few months' visit is not sufficiently long to create the lasting impression that is essential if the British character of the administration is to continue. The Government of India suggest that throughout the course of training Indian and European students should be required to live and mess together, with a view to the attainment of a proper spirit of camaraderie and the encouragement of esprit de corps. His Honour thinks that it will be much easier to obtain this close association by training in England than in India. European students are much more likely to fraternise with Indian students if the training is in England than if the training is in India. In India the Europeans will tend to keep apart from the Indians, while the latter will find it more difficult to change their customs than they would in an English environment. Moreover, the result, in Burma at any rate, of training the youthful European recruits for the Imperial Police in an eastern environment has not been so successful as to warrant the introduction of the same procedure in the case of the Imperial Forest Service. And, lastly, so far as Statutory Natives of Burma are concerned, a training at Dehra Dun involves absence from their own country just as much as a training in England.

8. To sum up—the Lieutenant-Governor is in favour of applying to Burma the proposals of Sir Frank Sly in paragraphs 3 and 4 of his minute of dissent and recommends that both European and Burman recruits for the Imperial Forest Service should be trained together at a selected University in England where arrangements should be made for a full course of scientific forestry adapted to Indian requirements. He advocates this course whatever the decision of the Government of India may be in regard to the training of students for the Imperial Forest Service in India. The adoption of a similar plan for India would facilitate the creation in England of a suitable course of instruction on the lines suggested by Sir Frank Sly, but it is probable that the rate of recruitment for the Imperial Forest Service in Burma will be sufficiently large by the time a suitable course of forest training is available at Dehra Dun to render it possible to maintain a suitable course of training at an English University for Burma students alone. In the distant day when it will be possible to recruit in Burma the full requirements of the Imperial Forest Service, the training in Europe will remain as the chief distinction between the members of the Imperial and Provincial Services.

(vi) In the matter of the training of the recruits (other than those promoted from the Provincial Service) the Hon'ble Sir Ali Imam considers that there is much to be gained by bringing together European and Indian youths in India, and he would support the provisional conclusion of the Government of India. His Honour and the other Members of his Council, however, attach much importance to the experience of the Army in this respect, which, it is understood, has shown that it is unsafe to bring British lads to India before the age of 20 at the earliest; and they believe that it would be preferable to provide for joint training at a Western university of both Indian and British recurits of the Imperial Service.

II.—METHOD OF RECRUITMENT FOR THE CLASS I BRANCH.

9. Sir Benjamin Robertson considers that in future the technical training of candidates for class I should be carried out at an expanded Dehra Dun Institute. The improvement of the facilities for higher scientific education in India is one of the main recommendations of the Industrial Commission and one which has the Chief Commissioner's fullest sympathy and he considers that the Indian public would very strongly and rightly object to any system of recruitment which neglected the opportunity of establishing a Forest Institute of the highest class in India. He realises that there is much to be said in favour of training both European and Indian recruits of class I in England and on the continent, but he thinks that these considerations must give way to the necessity of having a really first class Forest Institute in India. While it is advantageous that Forest officers should start work as young as possible, it is more important still that they should have a high scientific education before they enter Dehra Dun, and youths fresh from school would be less able to profit by the instruction given there than men who had already received such an education. Further, it must be admitted that a student of a specialised institute, who is already a probationer for an appointment, has not the same incentive to hard and thorough work as one who is studying for a degree at a University on the obtaining of which his future career must depend. Sir Benjamin Robertson, therefore, considers that European candidates should be chosen by a competitive examination, with a qualification standard, between the ages of 20 to 22. These limits of age would permit of candidates having taken such a degree as is prescribed in the Government of India's Circular letter No. 84-C., dated 2nd January 1917, but the possession of a degree need not be an essential, as the examination would exclude candidates who were not up to the mark. With the creation of direct appointments to class I in India, a point which the Chief Commissioner accepts, and with the training institutions located in India, it would seem reasonable to debar Indians from appearing for the examination in England.

11. The candidates thus selected in England and in India should then be put through the course of training described in paragraph 18 of the Government of India's letter, including, after two terms at Dehra Dun, a visit to England and the continent of Europe. During this time they should receive a suitable maintenance allowance. Sir Benjamin Robertson believes that a scheme such as this is not open to the objection, which the Imperial Service officers raise, that European parents would object to training in India.

Enclosure No. 3.

Extract from part II (ii) of Government of India despatch No. 368, dated the 11th September 1919.

(ii) Joint or separate training, place of training and age of recruitment for European and Indian recruits.—These questions were dealt with in paragraph 12, paragraphs 16, 17 and 18 and paragraph 13 of our circular to local Governments, but can more conveniently be treated together in this despatch.

The majority of the Commission proposed that European recruits should be trained in England and on the continent of Europe as at present, that for Indian recruits a course of training should be instituted at Dehra Dun up to the highest European standard, and that no change should be made in the age of recruitment. For the reasons given in the paragraphs of our circular quoted above, and by local Governments in their replies thereto, we are unable to support these recommendations. We regard joint training at one institution as essential in order to ensure harmonious working between the two classes of recruits and to give Indians the same opportunities as Europeans. When we issued our letter to local Governments we inclined to the view that on the whole it would probably be best to locate this joint training at Dehra Dun under the conditions detailed in paragraph 18 of our circular. But in view of the strongly adverse opinions expressed by the majority of the local Governments to the project for training European recruits in India, and their preference for sending Indian recruits to be trained in England, we have reconsidered this question and we now endorse the recommendation made by Sir Frank Sly, that both classes of recruits should be trained at one selected University in Great Britain. We still think that the scheme for joint training at Dehra Dun should be kept in view as a possible future development; but in the present circumstances we are satisfied that training in England, while obviously best for the English recruit, will not only broaden the mind of the Indian recruit, but will also afford the best chance of producing a feeling of fraternity between the two classes.

As regards the age of recruitment, there is great diversity of opinion regarding the comparative advantages and disadvantages of recruiting at the school leaving age or deferring recruitment to a later period. Five local Governments or Administrations support our proposal for early recruitment, while four oppose it. The width of the cleavage of opinion is exemplified by a comparison between the remarks of the Governments of Madras and Bombay. The former Government considers that young Europeans should not be exposed to the unhealthy climate and conditions liable to be encountered in the Forest Department; the latter observes that men must be young in starting forest life. The arguments against early recruitment are set forth with particular force by the Government of the United Provinces in paragraph 6 of its letter, but we nevertheless adhere to our view that the balance of advantage lies on this side. We are impelled to this conclusion by the necessity, strongly emphasized by Sir Frank Sly in his minute of dissent, for a more adequate and intensive training with a view to Indian requirements than is given at present. As the development of our forests expands this necessity will correspondingly increase. We admit that there would be no need to reduce the present age limits if we could not obtain ready made foresters, trained as we require for India from British forest schools. This, however, is not possible at present and may not be possible for a long time to come. Apart from special subjects, such as the botany of Indian trees, it is desirable that our recruits should know more of forest engineering, surveying and utilization generally, and should see more of continental forests during the period of their training, than is likely to be considered necessary for the practice of forestry in Great Britain. Again, although we recognise that the present method of recruitment has given us a thoroughly satisfactory type of officer, we know that many of these men are very far from being contented with their prospects, and they are disheartened by the late age which they must attain before they can hope to reach the administrative grades. There are few side-lines of work in the forest service in India to break the monotony of long and continuous service in a division. On the whole therefore we recommend that the age limit for Europeans be fixed at 18—20. For Indians recruited in this country we would allow an extra year, thus putting the limits at 18—21, because the Indian boy of 18—20, having to master a foreign language before he can commence his higher education, is admittedly behind the English youth of the same age, particularly in science subjects. If, however, Indians seek entry to the service in England, a course which we would leave open to them, they should be subjected to the age limits imposed on British recruits.

As regards the place of training in England, it appears to us that unless the training is concentrated at one institution it will be impossible to provide properly for the particular requirements of our forest service which we have mentioned above, while the maintenance of the same standard of training with a small number of recruits distributed over several centres offers obvious difficulties. Moreover, the concentration of the Indian recruits at a residential institution is necessary to ensure supervision over their work and conduct, a matter on which the Indian parent is likely to require definite assurance, while constant association with the contemporary British recruits throughout the course will enable the Indian recruit to become imbuded with the traditions of the service and to cultivate a friendly and intimate relationship with the men with whom he will serve on an equality in India. If these suggestions commend themselves to you we would concentrate on the University of Oxford, at which the majority and the best of our recruits of recent years have been trained. We understand that the authorities of this University have recently instituted a degree in Forestry, in addition to the diploma, and we consider that it would be suitable if the probationers of our Forest Service were required to take both the diploma and the degree as a condition of appointment, with the addition of courses in the special subjects mentioned above. We believe that this could be done in three years and that visits to continental forests could be arranged for during the University vacations.

are so great that I see no alternative to the immediate selection of Dehra Dun as the training centre. For many reasons it would probably be impossible to train the Indian Forest Service probationers at one institution in England; and, if training there were decided upon, the students would necessarily be distributed, according to their choice, among three or more Universities. The conditions which Your Excellency's Government and I regard as essential could not, therefore, be fulfilled, I have considered the question of establishing a Forest College for India, and analogous to Cooper's Hill; but such a scheme would be very costly, and it would, I consider, be unjustifiable unless the proposal to train at Dehra Dun were definitely abandoned. Training at Dehra Dun offers, however, certain advantages which, as you recognise, are so important that the definite abandonment of that proposal would clearly be inadvisable. The position as regards training in England has also changed materially as a result of the war; it will be impracticable for many years to come to utilise the German forests as a training ground, and I am advised that this will withdraw one of the most valuable of the educative elements in the system of training hitherto in force here There are no forests in the United Kingdom suitable for the more advanced practical instruction of the probationers, and the forests of France and Switzerland are probably less useful as a training field than the Indian forests. Officers trained at Dehra Dun could be taught their practical work in the Provincial forests where their theoretical instruction would afterwards be applied in practice. While these considerations point to Dehra Dun as the most suitable centre from the point of view of the existence of an adequate training ground, the facilities for theoretical instruction, and particularly for instruction in the practical management of forests, are also superior to those now obtainable in England. The decision to maintain the existing age-limits substantially unaltered will remove the objection that Dehra Dun might prove an undesirable centre for English youths, of 18 to 20; and Indian parents will, I anticipate, welcome an arrangement which will admit of the continuance of parental supervision and control over their sons during the period of training.

For these reasons I have decided that probationers for the Indian Forest Service will ordinarily be trained at Dehra Dun in future, and I desire that Your Excellency's Government will now take steps to give effect to this decision at the earliest possible date. In a few exceptional cases, where probationers of unusual scientific ability or attainments are recruited, it may be desirable to arrange for their training in Europe with the object of qualifying them for research work, or for appointments which demand a high degree of scientific knowledge and skill. Future recruits to the Indian Forest Service will have no practical experience of European systems of forest administration; and as that experience has proved valuable in the past, it will be desirable to supplement the course of training at Dehra Dun by a short period spent in the continental forests. I suggest that this should be arranged when the officer has from three to six years' practical experience in India, and leave it to Your Excellency's Government to settle the details of the scheme. Study leave might be granted for the purpose; but whatever system be adopted, I hope that every directly recruited officer of the Indian Forest Service will ordinarily be required to spend at least six months in studying continental systems of forestry before he has completed six years' service in India.

6. Training.—In II (ii) of our despatch we stated that we regarded joint training of European and Indian recruits at one Institution as essential and we recommended that both classes of recruits should be trained at one selected University in Great Britain. We admitted that the scheme for joint training at Dehra Dun should be kept in mind as a possible future development; but we expressed ourselves as satisfied that in the present circumstances training in England, while obviously best for the English recruit, would not only broaden the mind of the Indian recruit, but would also afford the best chance of producing a feeling of fraternity between the two classes. As regards the place of training we urged that unless the training was concentrated at one institution it would be impossible to provide properly for the particular requirements of the Indian Forest Service and that the maintenance of the same standard of training with a small number of recruits distributed over serveral centres offered obvious difficulties. For these reasons we then suggested concentration on the University of Oxford.

7. In paragraph 9 of his despatch the Secretary of State agreed that joint training at one centre was essential, but said that the practical difficulties in securing this in England were so great that they saw no alternative to the immediate selection of Dehra Dun as the training centre. He added that for many reasons it would probably be impossible to train the probationers at one institution in England and that therefore the students would have to be distributed, according to their choice, among three or more Universities, thus making it impossible to fulfil the condition which we regarded as essential. He said too, that he had considered the question of establishing a Forest College for India, analogous to Cooper's Hill, but that apart from the question of expense such a scheme would be unjustifiable unless the proposal to train at Dehra Dun was definitely abandoned. He went on to enumerate what he considered the advantages of Training at Dehra Dun and, after referring to the change in the position as regards training in England caused by the war, and giving his opinion that Indian parents were likely to welcome an arrangement which would admit of the continuance of parental supervision and control during the period of training, he stated his decision that probationers should ordinarily be trained at Dehra Dun in future and desired that the Government of India should take steps to give effect to this decision at the earliest possible date.

8. I venture to urge that before proceeding to draw up the detailed scheme asked for by the Secretary of State in paragraph 10 of his despatch we should make a final effort to obtain reconsideration of the orders passed.

9. As regards the arguments used by the Secretary of State in paragraph 9 of his despatch the necessity for training both classes of recruits at one centre and, if possible, at one institution, may be upheld, while it may be admitted also that the establishment of a Forest College for India, analogous to Cooper's Hill, would certainly involve heavy expense owing to the comparatively small number of recruits required annually : but it may be urged that these considerations would not necessarily bar the establishment of such a college for the Empire as a whole, to be located, either at the British University, preferably Oxford, in which case it would enjoy the attributes of an affiliated college and would develop both for Indians and Englishmen alike precisely that kind of joint esprit de corps which is desired, or to be established separately without connection with any University. It may be said that with the development of Forestry in the United Kingdom and a similar movement known to be in progress in the Colonies and the Dominions, there is some reason to hope that a central institute for the Empire is a desideratum to which all its larger components would subscribe.

10. The past utility of the German forests as a training ground and the fact that there are no forests in the United Kingdom suitable for the more advanced practical instruction of the probationers, may be admitted also. It should be stated, however, that for many years previous to 1885, when the forest probationers were first sent to Cooper's Hill, recruits for the service were trained entirely in France, that many of the officers so trained have had most distinguished careers in the service in India, while since 1885 visits to French forests have always occupied a fair proportion of the time spent on practical instruction. We may add that it is true that the practice of scientific forestry in India has made great progress since the service was started some 60 years ago : but that for many years the energies of the small staff employed were engaged in preliminary work such as exploration, demarcation, settlement, etc., and as a matter of fact that, with the exception of comparatively small areas of artificial plantations, such as Nilambur in Madras and Changa Manga in the Punjab, India does not yet contain forests which exhibit the results of continuous scientific management for long periods of time, such as are available in France and other continental countries besides Germany. The general principles of Forestry cannot be properly appreciated without reference to examples of this description and therefore the opinion expressed that the forests of France and Switzerland are probably less useful as a training field than the Indian forests, cannot be accepted, either by the Government of India or by the officers now in the service, who are best qualified to form an opinion on this subject. Again for the reasons given above this objection will hardly be met by the proposals that training in India should be supplemented by a short period spent in continental forests when an officer has completed from three to six years' service, while any such scheme would entail obvious practical difficulties, unless the officers concerned were placed on deputation at fixed times and staff for their instruction provided regularly which would entail very considerable cost.

11. In favour of training at Dehra Dun we may admit—

(a) that a certain class of Indian would prefer his son to be trained in India rather than in England;

(b) that from the point of view of the Government of India there would be some advantage in having the immediate, and almost unfettered, control over their own training establishment.

12. In addition to what has been said above against training in India the following reasons may be mentioned :—

(a) First, and most important of all, that the Indian trained in Europe will unquestionably acquire a status which will not be secured if he is trained in India;

(b) The almost unanimous and strongly expressed opinions of local Governments which are summarized on page 63 notes A., Proceeding Nos. 5—21 of November 1919, and which caused the Government of India to alter the opinion expressed previously in paragraphs 16 to 18 of their circular letter to local Governments, No. 663 of the 29th October 1918. It may perhaps be noted that local Governments are the parties chiefly concerned in this matter and that as they pay for the staff employed their views should receive the fullest consideration.

(c) That there will be far more chance of the two classes shaking down together if they are trained at one institution in England than if trained at Dehra Dun, or elsewhere in India.

(d) That the training of Imperial Service recruits at Dehra Dun will necessitate complete alteration of the present scheme for the training of candidates for the Provincial Service, as for disciplinary reasons it is impossible, or at any rate highly undesirable, that Indian recruits for the Imperial and Provincial Services should be trained at the same centre, under conditions which would make it impossible to keep them apart. We have already experienced this difficulty with the Provincial and Ranger students. There is little social difference between the two classes and it has happened with some frequency that an unusually good Ranger student finds that, though doomed to a greatly inferior service, he is a better man than some of the Provincial students. The results are unpleasant and anything of this kind must be avoided if Imperial Service recruits are to be trained in India.

13. There are two ways of meeting this last objection. One to transfer the training of Provincial Service candidates to another centre, either under the Government of India or a local Government, which would necessitate new buildings, separate staff, etc., and would be an expensive business. And the other to abolish direct recruitment for the Provincial Service and revert entirely to the system of promotion from the Ranger staff, on the understanding that such promotion should be mainly by the selection of men who distinguish themselves during their college career and the first few years of their subsequent service. This might necessitate some stiffening of the Ranger's course of training and slightly higher starting pay for officers of this class. Probably, also, it will be thought too retrograde to deserve serious consideration, but I believe I am correct in saying that if local Governments were consulted there would be a considerable body of opinion in favour of the change. We have secured some excellent officers by direct recruitment, but I am afraid that on the whole the Provincial Service officer recruited in this manner has not been a remarkable success. He is too prone to consider that once in the Provincial Service he has little to do beyond supervising the work of others instead of settling down to master the details of the work for himself The Ranger staff is the backbone of the service, and, among forest officers at any rate, it is very generally held that it is desirable to improve the Rangers' prospects and that the promoted Ranger, if selected fairly early in service, generally makes a better Provincial Service officer than the direct recruit.

14. As the details of the scheme for training in India have not yet been worked out it is not possible to make any accurate comparison between the cost of training in England and in India. But there can be no question that the latter would considerably exceed that of training at an English University as at present. Precise estimates are difficult to frame ; but allowing for the necessary residential and other buildings at Dehra Dun ; for a staff of 6 Instructors on the pay and allowances of Imperial Forsest officers ; for part of the cost of the President, Research Institute ; for the leave allowances and pensionary contributions of the staff ; for the probationers joining at Dehra Dun on the initial pay of the time-scale, as decided by the Secretary of State ; for passage from England of the European recruits ; for lighting, water and other incidental charges, the cost of training a probationer in India will not fall far short of £2,000, assuming a two years' course and the training of 15 men a year. The State bears no part of the cost of tuition or lodging of those trained in England, with the exception of fees to forest officers on the continent for which £500 per annum seems a liberal allowance. Adding to this the salary of the Director of Indian Forest Studies, the allowances to probationers at the rate of £200 per annum each, the cost of passages from and back to India for Indian recruits and to India for European recruits, the cost of training a probationer under existing conditions may be taken as about £550 to £600. In neither case is provision made for travelling allowances, but Indian conditions make it obvious that this item would amount to far more in India than in Europe.

It is impossible to forecast with any degree of precision what the cost to the State of training a probationer would be should a scheme for an Imperial Forest College in England materialize : but it seems safe to assume that it could hardly be more expensive than training in India.

15. In summarising the aspects of this case, therefore, I venture to think we may say that after full and careful reconsideration the Government of India are still convinced that the balance of advantage lies, in every way, with the training of English and Indian recruits in England and on the continent as heretofore ; more specially if, as they hope will be the case, the question of the establishment of an Imperial Forestry College in England is raised at the forthcoming Forestry Conference to be held in London this year. I would like the Government of India to add that so fully convinced of this are they that they are willing to bear their share of the cost of the institution and maintenance of such a College and, in the event of its establishment, to abandon definitely the proposal to train recruits for the Imperial Forest Service at Dehra Dun ; also that in the event of the establishment of such a College proving to be impossible they would be glad if they could be furnished with an estimate of the cost of establishing in England, either in connection with one of the Universities, or elsewhere, a Forestry College for India analogous to Cooper's Hill : they would prefer such a College to be be affiliated to one of the Universities, preferably the University of Oxford, at which they believe the School of Forestry to be better organized and generally more suitable for the training of Indian probationers than those at either Cambridge or Edinburgh ; and finally that as, once the provincial cadres have been brought up to their sanctioned strength, the number of recruits required annually is not likely to exceed 15, or to rise beyond 20, for many years to come, they think that it might, perhaps, be possible to induce one of the Oxford Colleges to make arrangements to receive this number of students annually on their behalf ; if, therefore, the Secretary of State is prepared to consider the orders passed in his despatch and if, at the same time, the project for the establishment of an Imperial Forest College proves impracticable, they trust he will be good enough to make the necessary enquiries regarding this suggestion.

16. In paragraph 11 of annexure VIII to their report the Public Services Commission approved the general principles laid down by the Government of India for the regulation of the training in India of junior officers appointed to the Imperial Service, subject to the provision that officers should be kept in their own province during the first year after their arrival in India. In section V (i) of our despatch to the Secretary of State we accepted this recommendation, to which the despatch from the Secretary of State makes no reference owing to the decision in favour of training in India. We might, I think, refer to this subject and say that if joint training in England is now finally decided on, we think it would be a good thing for the recruits to spend the first six months after their arrival in India in charge of one or two selected Instructors. We may suggest that during this period they should visit selected forest areas in various provinces, in which the system of management, conversion, extraction and regeneration are more advanced than usual. We may say that in this way the recruits would obtain acquaintance with the latest developments of forestry in India which would, in our opinion, considerably enhance their value to their local Governments in the early part of their service.

17. This matter of the future training of Imperial Service recruits is the most momentous question in connection with the Forest Service which has ever come up for decision.

The latest estimate of the gross forest revenue of India and Burma in 1919-20 is close on 5½ crores. In 1909-10 it was 2·6 crores. The possibilities of forest development in India are enormous and there can be no question that, with staff of the desired quality and quantity, the revenue will continue to rise steadily until it reaches several, or perhaps many, times the present figures: for compared with European standards the average outturn of our commercial forests per acre per annum, both of produce and money, is still very small indeed. Indians of the class who have entered the Imperial branches of other services have so far fought shy of the Forest Service. Up to date we have had six Indian officers only and it is a fact that with one exception, an officer with only one year's service, these have not done well. I believe that training at Dehra Dun will tend to decrease the quality and efficiency of the European recruits and will not give the Indian recruits the chance they would have if trained in England and on the continent of Europe and, therefore, I venture to urge that the Government of India should make a final and determined effort to adhere to the system of training which has proved satisfactory in the past.

Enclosure No. 6.

Telegram, dated Simla, the 24th June 1920.

From—The Viceroy, (Department of Revenue and Agriculture),

To—The Secretary of State for India, London.

Paragraph 9 of your despatch 14-Revenue, 12th February, conveying your decision that Forest probationers will ordinarily be trained at Dehra Dun. We feel that for following reasons there are strong grounds for asking you to leave this question open temporarily. Firstly, we understand that Imperial Forestry Conference to be held in London in July next will discuss project of establishing Imperial Forestry College in England for training students from all parts of Empire. Adoption of this scheme would probably be conditional on participation of India and we feel that India could participate with advantage and thus secure exactly conditions of training which we desire. Secondly, we are now endeavouring for the first time to obtain Indian recruits to the Service and our experience may be useful guide in ascertaining number and class of Indians willing to go to England for training. Information on these two points should be available to us by end of August. Thirdly, cost of training in India would far exceed cost in England. Cost per student is always greater at a monotechnic than at a polytechnic institution or university and we roughly estimate that cost per student would be £2,000 at Dehra Dun against £500 in England. Former figure includes pay of probationers as members of the service as soon as they arrive in India, vide paragraph 10 of your despatch; also cost of passage. Latter figure includes present payments to probationers and cost of return passages for Indian recruits. Neither figure includes cost of travelling but this would certainly be greater in India than England.

From—The Secretary of State for India, London,

To—The Viceroy (Department of Revenue and Agriculture).

Your telegram dated the 24th June 1920. Forest training. I have carefully considered arguments you advance but adhere to decision in despatch No. 14 of 12th February 1920. I have informed delegates to Imperial Forestry Conference that this decision is final.

Enclosure No. 8.

Resolution 9 of British Empire Forestry Conference.

9.—EDUCATION.

It should be a primary duty of Forest authorities throughout the Empire to establish systematic schemes of forestry education. It has been found for climatic and other reasons that it would not be possible for each part of the Empire to establish a complete scheme of forestry education of its own, and therefore it is essential that those parts of the Empire which are willing and able to establish complete systems should, as far as possible, frame such schemes with a view to combining for meeting the needs of those parts which can only themselves make a partial provision for their requirements.

Part of this subject has been dealt with by a Committee whose report, which refers mainly to the higher training of forest officers, is approved by the Conference (Annexure C).

The main principles embodied in this report are as follows:—

1. That one institution for training forest officers be established in the United Kingdom.
2. That students be selected from graduates having taken honours in pure or natural science at any recognised university.
3. That it be an integral part of the work of the institution to arrange supplementary courses at suitable centres for students requiring special qualifications and also special courses for forest officers from any part of the Empire, whether at the institution itself or at centres of training in other parts of the world. The Govenments should recognise these courses as part of the ordinary duties of the forest officer at any time during their service, and the Governments concerned should give special facilities to forest officers in their service to attend such courses.
4. That a Department of Research into the formation, tending and protection of forests be associated with the training institution.
5. Encouragement should be given to the existing provision made by universities and colleges for forestry instruction for those who do not desire to take the full course suggested for the forestry service. It appears that this is especially applicable to the United Kingdom.

It is also desirable to make adequate provision for woodmen's schools for the training of foresters as distinct from those which are intended for forest officers.

ANNEXURE C

EDUCATION.

Report of the Committee appointed "to prepare a draft scheme of organization of an Institution which would provide for the following:—

(i) The training of forest officers for the United Kingdom.

(ii) The training of forest officers from parts of the Empire having no place of higher training of their own.

(iii) Refresher courses for forest officers from all parts of the Empire.

(iv) Special courses, some of which would be held at the Institution and some at other schools of forestry of the Empire, with regard to which there would be interchange of students.

The Committee beg to report as follows :—

The need for a scientific in addition to a practical training in forestry has been recognised for many years.

It is to the credit of the Government of India that after training probationers in various Continental schools the first real steps were taken in this country by instituting at the Coopers Hill College in 1885 special courses of instruction for Indian forest probationers. A definite start was made, followed twenty years later, on the closure of the college, by the establishment of the Oxford University Forest School. Meanwhile other universities had set on foot somewhat similar institutions, and eventually, about 1909, as a result of representations made by these Universities, the Indian forest probationers were divided among the universities of Oxford, Cambridge, and Edinburgh, and this is the method in force at the present time.

While these systems have succeeded in training a number of very valuable forest officers, and have helped to arouse an interest in forestry, it is generally acknowledged throughout the forest services of the Empire that in the interests of Imperial forestry a central training institute and a great improvement in the standard of education is urgently required.

Our consideration of the whole matter must be influenced by the position taken up by the Government of India. The requirements of that service amount to about 40 per cent. of the whole of the officers likely to be trained in the near future, and in their view that training must take place in one single institution, to which must be admitted Europeans and Indians on equal terms.

It is of interest to note the many attempts which have been made by the Government of India to solve the difficult problem of forestry education. It is evident that they find little satisfaction in the present system, and are even now contemplating a transference of their whole training to a central institution in India. We are therefore impressed with the necessity of exercising the utmost care in dealing with this question in order to avoid the risk of another false start, which would certainly retard the success of education for a long period.

We accordingly, in the first instance, have to apply our minds to the consideration of the type of institution which would be best fitted for the needs of the whole Empire.

In the course of the discussion on education throughout the proceedings of the Conference, it has become clearly evident that the delegates are unanimously in favour of two main principles :—

1. That the training be carried out at one central institution.
2. That a necessary preliminary of this training be a complete university education.

But some differences of opinion have been found to exist in the minds of some of the delegates as to the relative advantages of this training taking place at a university and under its control, or at some place apart from and having no connection with a university.

Without in any way prejudging the case, we proceed to consider these alternatives.

In considering the needs of forestry education, it is important to have regard to the stage at which recruits for the forest services are selected. The opinion of the Conference is unanimously in favour of selection from the science schools of the universities at the post-graduate stage. This denotes a definite stage in education at which point the work of selection by the Governments concerned of the students most suitable for the service can be best achieved. Our proposals, therefore, are to super-impose forestry training upon a general scientific education.

Firstly, taking into consideration the feasibility of establishing the main centre of training at one of the universities, there are the following advantages. The capital cost of the buildings would be much less than if a separate institution were created, while the possibility of utilising the staff and equipment of the university would also lead to economy in another direction. In order to obtain the support of India, it might be possible to ask one of the colleges to earmark the necessary accommodation for Indian probationers, or the Government of India might even erect special buildings or rent a suitable house. As regards the first, it would probably be difficult to secure at any college accommodation for men who have already finished their university education, while the 3rd may have an element of economy in its favour; but these considerations refer entirely to our endeavours to fit in the requirements of the Government of India with those of the rest of the Empire.

It has been suggested that an argument in favour of this alternative may be based upon the opportunity which a student may have of shortening his course by carrying on his technical studies at the same time as he is reading for his science degree. Many of the educational authorities we have consulted do not regard this idea with favour, because this combination may interfere with the attainment of the highest honours in pure science of which the student is capable. Moreover, it would imply selection prior to the definite stage in his general education upon which we lay so much stress.

There are, however, distinct disadvantages. It must be recognised that the forestry training is a preliminary to a techincal occupation, and it is reasonable to expect that a probationer should devote as much of his time to the acquisition of his technical knowledge in forestry as if he entered any other profession or line of employment. The period of residence at some of the universities amounts to little more than half the year, while the distractions of university life act as a serious bar to the employment of a technical student's time to best advantage. It has transpired in evidence that at some of the universities there are difficulties and obstacles in the way of the development of techincal and vocational work such as is required to prepare the forest probationer for his profession on the best practical lines, and forestry is of no value if it is not based on ample practical work in the laboratory, the workshop and the field.

There is another serious objection to this scheme in the antipathy with which many men will regard their transfer from their own to another university. In establishing the centre at one university, the circle of selection of candidates is therefore narrowed. In the interests of the recruitment of the best personnel, without placing any one university in a more advantageous position than its competitor, it would therefore appear that the selection of any one university has very grave drawbacks. It is felt that all Universities should have equal chances in providing the material to be trained and that the association of the training centre with any one of them would defeat this end.

Another drawback is the impossibility of control by any outside body over any university. We regard it as essential for the proper conduct of our highly technical training that the controlling body should be one which is appointed for the purpose of forestry training alone, and which will be free to carry it on untrammelled by conflicting demands from competing branches of education. This body should be selected from qualified representatives of all the states or governments concerned, with the addition of such educational experts as may be found necessary.

It is largely in relation to the provision of special courses, which have been admitted to be essential, that the separation from true forest control would fail as it is only a body actively engaged and thoroughly posted up in the practice of forestry that could make this admittedly essential feature of the central institution really fulfil its purpose.

It is also considered that the expense to the student would be appreciably more at a residential university than at an independent institution.

Next we consider the alternative of a training institute apart from and unconnected with any university.

This course of training should be open to selected students who have taken an honours degree in pure or natural science at any recognised university.

This would give, it is felt, the widest possible field of selection, an equal chance would be given to the graduates of all universities, and it would combine the advantages of a full university course with the opportunity of intensive training which can more easily be obtained at an institute unbound by the traditions of the older universities. The importance of this consideration cannot be over-estimated.

It has been suggested on behalf of some of the Dominions that at the outset the qualification of a degree should not be applied too rigidly and that in certain exceptional cases it should not be exacted. We see no objection to this course for a term not exceeding five years, provided that full discretion is given to the governing body of the institution to refuse admission to such students if good reasons can be shown for doing so.

Any forecast of the number of students likely to attend the institution must be subject to revision, but on the estimates before us of present requirements, the probable number of students will be about 50, and if a two-year course is adopted, there would be not less than 100 in residence at one time, of whom 40 would be earmarked for the Indian forest service. This number should fully justify the establishment at the very commencement of a fully equipped institution, but it can scarcely be contemplated that even with the addition of students attending special or refresher courses there will be any justification for the maintenance of the highest class of forestry training at more than one centre.

The United Kingdom, it may be stated generally, offers the best opportunities for a central institution—its propinquity to those forests in Europe which alone have been managed on scientific sylvicultural lines for several generations is of great importance now that in so many parts of the Empire the wild is beginning to give place to the cultivated forest and greater knowledge of proved intensive systems is required.

This central institute cannot, however, be expected to supply the training for the special needs of every part of the Empire. But it is anticipated that officers from some of the self-governing Dominions, while taking such instructions as they may require in the intensive systems referred to, will prefer to train for other special purposes within the borders of their own States.

The possibility of locating such an institute in or near forests which are under the control of the State, would facilitate instruction and research, and would be of very definite importance during the periods allotted to practical work.

The course of training would extend over a period of at least two years, and scholarships tenable for that time should be offered to all selected candidates by their respective Governments. The training would include theoretical work, at least six months' practical working in the forests, and one or more visits to study the systems of management in continental forests.

In addition to those students who take a full course of training or those who take up a subject for special study, it is recognized that it would be of real advantage that the institute should always be open to officers of the forestry services, whatever their standing may be, who desire to take a course in general or selected subjects on their own account.

It is believed that the Conference will readily agree as to the importance of such refresher courses, but we draw very special attention to them, as we believe them to be among the most useful features of the work of the institute, and that the different forest services of the Empire will gain very greatly if their Governments in regular course attach their officers on full pay to the institute, or to centres of training in other parts of the Empire for the purpose of these courses.

It is recommended that the staff of such an institute would consist of the Principal, who would be a forest officer selected for his experience in administrative work, and one professor of forestry who would be assisted by an adequate staff of lecturers and specialists in the various subjects.

There appears to be some considerable advantage in associating with the training at the institute the duty of research into the production, formation, tending and protection of forests, and if this proposal is adopted, the specialists included in our staff might, without interfering with their primary duties, devote a portion of their time to educational work in their own subjects.

The cost of a building in which to house and train 100 students will be a very serious one. Contributions, except as noted below, towards the capital cost and of the annual maintenance, may be anticipated from all the Governments interested; the interest of India is so large and the interest of the United Kingdom and the Colonies individually so small, that in our opinion the scheme cannot be carried out without material assistance from the Indian Government.

The self-governing Dominions, and Provinces and States who generally possess training institutions of their own, cannot be expected to contribute to the capital cost, though they will no doubt be desirous of paying so much of the annual cost as may be fairly applicable to the full or special courses to which their own students may be sent.

This institution which now has been outlined does not cover the whole ground; in the United Kingdom the Forestry Commission have a very distinct responsibility for training not only the officers for their own service, but a responsibility for giving opportunities for training to owners and managers of those private woodlands which will perhaps always form the bulk of the woodland area in the United Kingdom. This may clearly be a shorter and less specialized course of training than that proposed for the forest services, and it is hoped to enlist the sympathy of the universities in the establishment of special courses in forestry or as a section of their agricultural and estate department. It is believed that there would be a great demand for such courses and that the Commission should offer assistance in carrying them on.

A third course has been suggested to us by the Professor at Edinburgh University which we think it is our duty also to examine. Professor Stebbing considers that selection for the different forest services should be made from men who have a degree in forestry of selected universities; that they should be further trained at a separate institution in advanced courses, and also along those lines which are considered necessary or advisable for the special purposes of the country concerned. It therefore would combine in a way the two methods which we have already discussed. It has, in our opinion, several patent disadvantages. In the first place, it does not admit of selection at a definite stage of education, so that the general standard of education, prior to training, would ordinarily be much below that which we consider essential. Secondly, it is a tacit admission that existing courses are capable of extension with advantage; but, lastly, we are of opinion that if special courses dealing with local conditions are necessary at all, such courses, in so far as familiarisation with local problems are concerned, should be held in the country to which they apply. We do not, of course, refer to specialized study of specific subjects which would ordinarily be confined to a few selected students or to forest officers who want to refresh or expand their general or special knowledge, but we feel that it would be quite impossible to provide such instruction unless those special courses were taken at a fully equipped central institution organized on the lines which we have already recommended There is also the consideration that a student who has obtained a degree which marked the completion of his technical education in forestry, would perhaps be less willing to accept further instruction in subjects which he would not unnaturally consider himself fully qualified in. This would also involve considerable expenditure at each centre of instruction, together with a further cost, and actually not less than is anticipated for the single self-containing institution which we have discussed.

Having now set out three schemes which satisfy the conditions we have laid down of one central institution for forestry training combined with the advantages of a complete university education, and having discussed them formally and informally with most of the delegates and many of the associate delegates, the Committee have arrived at the conclusion that a separate institute unconnected with any universities is the ideal system of training in forestry.

But we are bound to recognise and to impress upon the Conference that owing to its cost it can only be carried out as we have designed it with the fullest support of India and the Colonies.

While we feel that the decision at which we have arrived unanimously is the one we desire to press very strongly upon the Conference, we admit that differences of opinion upon the important point of the actual relationship between the universities and the training institute are certain to exist, and we believe that the matter is of so great importance that it should form a proper subject of discussion by a Committee to be appointed without undue delay.

We have endeavoured to arrive at an ideal scheme which will satisfy the clearly expressed desire of the Conference to place at the disposal of all the forestry services the best possible method of education.

Keeping in view the vast interests at stake, it is hoped that the Conference will judge these schemes on their merits alone, and in arriving at a decision will not give undue weight to financial considerations.

Enclosure No. 9.

INDIA OFFICE, LONDON,
30th September 1920.

Revenue.

No. 113.

TO HIS EXCELLENCY THE RIGHT HONOURABLE THE GOVERNOR GENERAL IN COUNCIL.

MY LORD,

Future training of Indian Forest Service probationers.

In my telegram R. and S.-5162 of the 21st July, I informed Your Excellency's Government that I adhered to the decision, communinated in my Revenue Despatch No. 14 of the 12th February 1920, that all probationers of the Indian Forest Service should be trained at Dehra Dun when the necessary arrangements could be made. Your delegates to the recent Imperial Forestry Conference were informed accordingly, and were instructed, in the event of the subject being discussed, to act on the assumption that my decision was final. These instructions did not, however, reach the delegates until after the close of the Conference, and I was informed by Sir Claude Hill that he and his colleagues had received your permission to express their own opinions on the question, provided that it was made clear that they did not commit their Government. As you are aware, a resolution was unanimously adopted by the Conference advocating the establishment of a central training institution in the United Kingdom, and your representatives, in exercise of the permission given, supported the proposal.

2. As the adoption of this resolution by a Conference representative of forest interests throughout the Empire creates a new situation, I am willing that the whole matter should be reconsidered, and I request Your Excellency's Government to favour me with your considered views after consulting Local Governments and ascertaining Indian opinion. The enclosed memorandum, which was prepared at my request by Mr. Clutterbuck, may assist you in forming your conclusions.

3. It is necessary, in the first place, to examine, how apart from all other considerations, a course of training at Dehra Dun supplemented by instruction in provincial forests would compare, in point of efficiency, with training at a central institution in this country supplemented by instruction in continental forests. In this connection, I should be glad to learn your views on the contention that the science of forestry can only be properly studied in selected continental forests which have been scientifically managed for very long periods.

4. As regards cost, sufficient materials are not, unfortunately, available to enable a comparison to be made, but the report of the Committee about to be appointed to formulate definite proposals regarding the location of the proposed institute and to frame estimates of cost, may be received within the next few months. If so, it should be possible not only to compare the cost, initial and recurring, of the two schemes, but also to judge whether the share of the initial cost of a central institution in this country debitable to Indian revenues would be so heavy as to preclude the possibility of future withdrawal should a change be desired.

5. No less important is the probable effect of the place of training on recruitment. It has been suggested that the obligation to spend the probationary period of training in India might deter the best men from the British Universities from applying for appointment; but, on the other hand, the effect on the recruitment of Indians must also be considered. An argument of more apparent force is that conditions at a central institution in England would be more likely to create a strong esprit de corps in the service than if joint training took place in India.

6. I am specially anxious that, before communicating your views, you should ascertain how the whole question is regarded by Indians themselves. It has been assumed, perhaps without sufficient justification, that Indian opinion would strongly favour training in India; but this view has been challenged. I suggest that, in addition to obtaining non-official opinions through Local Governments, you should endeavour to arrange that the matter might be discussed in the Imperial Legislative Council after publication, if this be considered necessary, of a selection of the papers.

I have the honour to be,

My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient humble Servant,

ED. S. MONTAGUE.

ENCLOSURE.

NOTE ON THE TRAINING OF OFFICERS FOR THE INDIAN FOREST SERVICE.

Now that the possibilities of industrial progress and development of resources in India are to be so much greater under the Reform Scheme, it is more essential than ever to attract the very best recruits for the Indian Forest Service, and to train them to the highest possible standard. Also, as Indians are to be recruited for a large proportion of the vacancies, it is only fair to them and to India that they should be given the highest possible training.

The officers of the Indian Forest Service are, as far as I know, unanimous that a much better training can be arranged for in Britain than in India. This is also the view of all the major Local Governments in India and of the Government of India too.

The decision of the Secretary of State that the training should be at Dehra Dun in future (as soon as suitable arrangements can be made) was based on the following considerations :—

(1) That while it is agreed that it is essential for all Indian Forest Service recruits to be trained at one centre, it is considered that this is not possible in Britain owing to the necessity for distributing candidates among different universities.

(2) That the cost of a separate institution for training Indian Forest Service candidates alone would be too heavy, and that, even if an Empire forest college were formed, India would have to bear a large share of the cost.

(3) That it must be recognised that probationers for the Indian Forest Service must ultimately be trained in India, and therefore alternative arrangements must be temporary. Consequently it is undesirable to embark on any scheme for training in Britain involving considerable expenditure.

(4) That for practical instruction Germany is now unavailable, that France and Switzerland are probably less useful as a training ground than India, and that there are no facilities in Britain.

(5) That the course of training in India can be supplemented by a period of six months or so, for the study of continental systems, by each directly recruited officer before he has completed six years' service.

With reference to these points it may be noted :—

(1) That as the Secretary of State has accepted the principle of all Indian Forest Service recruits being trained at one centre, and as he has decided to maintain the age for recruitment within the existing limits, the special training will be a post-graduate course which could be carried out at an institution separate from all universities, without giving ground for complaint to any one of the universities. This would give scope for wide selection of candidates from different universities, and it would get over the objection of men from one university having to go for training to another university.

(2) The question of cost is an important one, but if an Empire forest college is founded, the cost would not fall on India alone. No estimate can, however, be given until the special Committee proposed by the British Empire Forestry Conference reports, but it is understood that a suitable site and buildings may be available at a fairly low rate.

(3) It must, of course, be recognised that India will ultimately become a suitable training ground for the Indian Forest Service, but considering that scientific forestry has been practised in India for only half a century, it is unlikely that India will be a really suitable training ground for another 50 years. Even then an Empire forest college in Britain would be a very valuable asset to India to provide a wider education than would be available in India alone, by means of facilities for special and refresher courses. The Empire forest college which it is proposed will be in touch with research institute and an Empire forestry bureau will become an attraction to officers of the Indian Forest Service to do their special courses there. The change of climate would also be an advantage in this connection compared with Dehra Dun.

(4) As regards Germany, there seems to be no reason to suppose that it will be impossible to continue pre-war arrangements as conditions become more settled. As regards France and Switzerland, there are forests which have been scientifically managed for centuries and they present many admirable examples of the continued results of scientific forestry. As a training ground India canot compare with them. The forests in Britain are admittedly insufficient for teaching systems of management, but they are suitable for practical instruction in elementary sylviculture in connection with the European species of trees, and the Crown forests are rapidly becoming more efficient for the purpose.

(5) The proposal to depute directly-recruited Indian Forest Service officers, trained in India, to the Continent for practical instruction is opposed to sound principles of forest education. One of the great advantages of Britain as a training centre is its accessibility to the Continent, enabling practical instruction to be given on the Continent along with the theory given at the college. Unless a thorough grounding is given in the sylviculture of European species (such as would be given at a training centre in Britain) prior to the practical course on the Continent, the value of the latter will be largely discounted. It may here be emphasised that the science of forestry has been primarily evolved in connection with European species, and that the greater proportion of forestry literature concerns these species. Also that, as a forest officer has to think in centuries (i.e., it takes 100 years more or less to grow a tree fit for timber), it is absolutely necessary for him during his training to see forests which have been scientifically managed for centuries in order that he may learn what the results of various opertions will be a century hence. Further, the continental forests are the only ones in the world which approach a normal (ideal) forest with proper proportions of the various age gradations necessary for producing an equal sustained annual yield of timber.

The British Empire Forestry Conference has recently taken place. A proof copy of the resolutions which were passed by the delegates is attached herewith. It will be seen that the delegates were unanimous in recommending the formation of a central institution in Britain for the training of forest officers, and advised that a Committee be appointed without delay, to make definite proposals as to where such a central institution could best be established, and what it would cost.

It would be most regrettable from the point of view of forest development in India if India, which has so far taken a lead in forestry matters, should refuse, without further consultation, to participate in these proposals.

The delegates from India, after the conclusion of the Conference, submitted a report to the Government of India. This report gives their reasons for supporting the resolutions on education. A copy of it is attached herewith, so the reasons need not be re-stated.

Some remarks must be added, however, as to other disadvantages of training Indian Forest Service recruits at Dehra Dun :—

(a) It is believed that the best men from British Universities will be unlikely to go to Dehra Dun as probationers. They will be more attracted by the Empire forest college for service in Britain and the Colonies. The fact of having to be on probation for two years in India will act as a deterrent.

(b) Now that 40 per cent. of the recruits are to be Indians, it is essential that fraternisation between the British and Indian recruits should be encouraged to the utmost during the period of training, so that a strong esprit de corps may be built up and bind them together. At Dehra Dun there would be very small chances for fraternisation, and in fact a gulf would exist throughout between the British and Indian candidates. It would probably not be possible there even to insist on the probationers messing' together. On the other hand, an Empire forest college in Britain would afford the best chances of complete fraternisation.

(c) Indian B. Sc. graduates of Indian Universities are already entering the Provincial Forest Service trained at Dehra Dun. The training of Indian Forest Service recruits at the same place from the same class of candidates will upset the Provincial Forest Service altogether, and will eventually necessitate the abolition of the Provincial Forest Service. This would be a serious drawback, because the Dehra Dun trained Provincial Forest Service men form a useful class of officers intermediary between the Indian Forest Service and the subordinate grades. If the training of the Indian Forest Service is continued in Britain there will be no undermining of the Provincial Forest Service. It is especially necessary to keep the two services separate, considering that Indian candidates who fail to get direct nominations into the Indian Forest Service will often enter the Provincial Forest Service. The place of training should form a fair ground for discrimination as far as direct recruitment goes.

To sum up. The main consideration is what is best for India and her progressive development. A period is about to commence when the duty of every British official will be to do all he can towards training and developing Indian officials to take his place. It is of paramount importance that the British officials should, in view of this and of the fact that their class will be a gradually diminishing one, be trained in the highest degree possible. Also it is only fair to the Indian officers who are to be taught to take the places of British officers, that they should be similarly trained in order that they may have every chance of fair comparison as regards their work.

The present method of training has produced excellent results, certainly in so far as the Oxford trained men are concerned. The average quality is exceedingly high, and any decrease in quality at this important juncture, due to less efficient training, would be a serious set-back, not only to the development of the resources of the Indian Empire, but also to the Indian aspirations of an increasingly Indianised forest service.

CONTENTS OF REPORT.

REPORT OF THE INTER-DEPARTMENTAL COMMITTEE ON IMPERIAL FORESTRY EDUCATION.

The Committee have held seven meetings and have visited the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, Bangor and Edinburgh. At the last-mentioned University representatives of Aberdeen and Glasgow Universities and of the West of Scotland Agricultural College were present and gave valuable evidence. Evidence was also given by representatives of the above Universities and of the Surveyors' Institution, the Land Agents' Society and the Royal Scottish Arboricultural Society; written evidence was submitted by the Royal English Arboricultural Society.

Other witnesses, representing the Forest Services and the Commission, were examined, including Sir William Schlich, Mr. Robinson (representing the Forestry Commission), Mr. Battiscombe (representing the British East Africa Forest Service), Mr. Sargent (representing the Forest Service of Ceylon), Mr. Fraser Story, Mr. Pritchard, also Professor Henry of the Royal College of Science, Dublin, and Major Caccia, Director of Indian Forest Studies.

The main object to be aimed at in framing Forest Officers is to turn out men fully equipped with theoretical and practical knowledge, with minds broadened by education, and with capacity strengthened by practical experience in forest work, to direct men and operations. Such men should be capable of dealing with the problems, of administration, management and finance which are generally the most important of all their duties.

In addition there is a class of Forest Officer required for research—for this class additional training should be provided.

1. Existing System of Training.

The system of training in the Universities and Colleges which the Forestry Conference found in existence in July 1920, is set out in the statement prepared by the Forest Commission for the British Empire Forestry Conference. Pages 26-28.

We are impressed by the evidence given by many Forest Officers to the effect that the standard of this training must be improved in order to turn out first-class men.

Many Universities have already recognized this and have prepared, and in some cases have already adopted, an enlarged and improved curriculum which varies very slightly as between the Universities.

The Committee consider that it would be a retrograde course to interfere with this work and the scheme which we have in view will seek rather to co-ordinate all these courses, to bring them up to a common level and utilize them as a preliminary to the higher course of training we propose to adopt.

Almost all the evidence is in favour of a course of training extending over four years. The degree course at the Universities under their proposed improved system extends to three years, and some provide an additional 1 to 1½ years, leading to a diploma or honours degree in advanced forestry. In some cases it is proposed to specialize in certain subjects, for instance, the University of Edinburgh intends to develop the special subject of forest engineering to a large extent.

2. Central Training Institution.

We have kept fully before us the decision of the Conference as expressed in the Terms of Reference that the future higher forestry should take place at a single Central Institution. We have not discussed the principle of this with witnesses, but it should be stated that while the opinion of most of the Universities is opposed to this view, the opinion of the other witnesses, with the exception of Mr. Fraser Story and Major Caccia, is strongly in favour of it.

3. Selection of Students.

A further resolution of the Conference is to the effect that the students proceeding to the Central Institution should be selected by the different departments from graduates having taken honours in pure or natural science at a recognized University, but so strong an opinion was expressed by many experts against this proposal that we have thought it right to take evidence upon this matter, which we consider to be one of the first importance.

The whole of our witnesses, with the exception of Professor Bower, of Glasgow University; Mr. Battiscombe, of the British East Africa Service; and Mr. Sargent, of the Ceylon Service, expressed grave doubts as to the necessity of a lengthy course in pure science as a preliminary to a forestry education. Some, like Sir William Schlich, went so far as to say that the training up to an honours standard in science was a positive disadvantage, tending to produce specialists in their own particular subjects, leaving forestry almost as a secondary consideration.

Professor Stebbing considered from another point of view that selection from honours graduates in science would be unsatisfactory since most of the men who have obtained high honours would tend to be attracted by the increasing opportunities of immediate and lucrative employment in the higher branches of applied science, rather than become candidates for the Forest Services with the additional training demanded and the more restricted scope offered by such a career.

The whole of the witnesses, with the exceptions above noted, agreed that, while a good grounding in pure science is absolutely necessary, one year's exclusive application is probably adequate in the case of men who have received a sound general education, including a knowledge of chemistry and physics, for the requirements of the ordinary Forest Officer. At the same time it is admitted that a more extended course would be required for specialists, and those who will take part in definite research work.

In consequence of the importance which many members of the Conference attached to the Resolution as to an honours degree in science for all candidates to be selected for the Forest Services, it seems advisable to set out in detail its apparent advantages and disadvantages.

I. Advantages.—

(a) It ensures the attainment of a certain high standard of scientific knowledge and training at least in one subject.

(b) It is easy from the point of view of administration.

II. Disadvantages.—

(a) The length of course required, three to four yours (except at Cambridge), during which a man is working at subjects other than forestry. Moreover, the training from a forestry point of view is not the best, inasmuch as excessive weight is given to the science taken as chief honours subject.

(b) The lack of uniform significance that attaches to the honours degree at different Universities.

(c) The risk of the high honours men being attracted to other and better paid careers.

(d) The late period after leaving school (five to six or more years) when a man will become qualified as a Forest Officer and the consequent additional cost of training. Further, that men taking honours in physics or chemistry will be at a disadvantage as compared with those who have graduated in biological subjects, and hence the field of selection may be still further narrowed, especially as this fact is not necessarily brought to the attention of possible candidates at an early period in their career.

The Committee were made aware that among the grounds which influenced the Conference in deciding on an initial advanced training in pure science, were, in addition to the general view that such a course would be advisable :—

1. That it would ensure a University education even if the future forestry training were undertaken at an Institution outside any University, and

2. the necessity of a post-graduate course to give full opportunities for students from every University to participate in the training at the Institution.

After considering all the evidence before us we are of opinion that the demand for the honours degree in science as the sole qualification for selection cannot be generally accepted, but that the desire of the Conference to ensure University education must be obtained in some other way.

We consider that the views of the Conference can be fairly met by accepting an approved Forestry Degree course at any University, as a preliminary to the higher forestry training and carrying on this latter training at a Central Institution, located either within or without a University.

Not the least of the advantages of this proposal is that to utilizes the whole of the existing educational facilities and at the same time preserves a free competition between the Universities and throws open the Central Institution for the higher training to all selected students who have taken a forestry degree wherever they may have been educated.

4. Self-Governing Dominions.

It is anticipated that the Self-Governing Dominions may desire to take advantage of the Institution for the post-graduate training of some of the Probationers selected for their own services, and it is presumed that these men would be accepted even though the preliminary course of training may differ in some degree from that adopted in this country; but it seems very desirable that the several standards of forestry education as far as the fundamentals of the subject are concerned should be the same throughout the Empire.

5. Course of Study at Universities.

It is evident that a sound general scientific education must lie at the root of the training of a properly equipped Forest Officer, mathematics up to and including plane trigonometry, chemistry, physics, mechanics, botany, zoology and geology are all required in varying degrees.

The following is a general outline of the course which may be suggested for the full training of Forest Officers, first at the University School and finally at the Central Institution.

First of all the student is presumed to have attained at school a good grounding in chemistry, physics and mathematics. On arriving at a University the procedure would be as follows :—

1st year.—

Chemistry, physics and biology, including laboratory work.

A period of practical work in British forests during the long vacation.

(A standard of chemistry and physics at least equivalent to that represented by the London University Intermediate Examination for B. Sc., should be required and provision should be made for a laboratory course in plant physiology as an essential part of the work in botany.)

2nd year.—

Forest botany and forest mycology, geology, surveying, elementary and advanced sylviculture, forest mensuration, valuation and working plans.

Practical work in mensuration during the course.

In addition ten weeks' practical work during vacations part of which at least should be taken abroad.

3rd year.—

Forest administration and forest protection, forest utilization and engineering, forest entomology and the chemical and physical properties of soils.

Practical work would include three weeks' Easter Vacation, which might be taken either in this country or abroad, and the final course of eight or ten weeks in Continental forests.

In addition to the work during vacations provided for above, opportunities should be given for practical work out of doors during term time.

It is advisable that the practical work up to this stage should be taken under the supervision of the same instructors who have had charge of the theoretical work.

This, however, presents some difficulties and there are, in addition, obvious disadvantages in several forests tours taking place simultaneously and independently, in Continental forests.

It probably would be well that the Authority which we propose to set up for the government of the Central Training Institution should, through one of its Committees, arrange for the distribution of these tours at suitable times and places on the Continent.

The final examination at the end of the third year would finish the course for a degree in forestry, and it is at this point that a man will be selected as probationer for one or other of the Forest Services, and would be admitted after his final practical course to the Central Institution for higher training of one year in the case of the ordinary Forest Officer and possibly of a further period for a man proposing to undertake research.

In the interests of recruitment it is very important that the Department should notify Universities of the number of probationers likely to be required at least three years in advance.

It is desirable that the future Research Officers, more particularly those who show an inclination toward research in sylviculture and forest management, should undergo a period of service in the forest before they are definitely accepted for research work.

In order to widen the field for recruitment and to obtain men with a high scientific training, it is desirable that the services should select as probationers a certain number of men with honours degrees in science. These men then, after a forestry course covering the second and third years at a University School, spend a final year at the Central Institution. In order to attract such men it may be necessary to pay them a maintenance grant for the training subsequent to their honours degree. As an additional attraction two years of this training should be allowed to count as service towards pay and pension.

When it is proposed to train a man directly as a specialist an honours graduate in science would be selected, given such a course in general forestry as may be considered necessary, and then sent for two years to the Central Institution.

6. Course of Study at Central Institution.

The probationer would ordinarily specialize in two or more of the following subjects:

(1) Forest botany and ecology in relation to British or Continental conditions.

(2) Advanced sylviculture in relation to British and Continental conditions.

(3) Principles of tropical and extra-tropical sylviculture.

(4) Forest management (advanced).

(5) Technology and uses of wood and other forest products.

(6) Forest engineering (including exploitation and mechanical conversion).

(7) Principles of commerce and accounts with special reference to forestry.

(8) British law and land tenure as affecting forestry.

(9) Indian forest law and land tenure.

(10) Regional forest botany.

(11) Mycology and pathology of trees (advanced).

(12) Forest entomology (advanced).

Other subjects might be included if necessary.

Under the head of No. 5, suitable courses for this subject could be arranged by the Institution in a Research Institute or other place where this particular science is being developed.

Some portion of the year should be spent abroad to study definite aspects of practical forestry, e.g., No. 6 above, would require special facilities, probably outside Europe.

It may be expected that the Forest Service for which the Probationer has been selected will decide the course or courses which might be taken.

7. Special Courses.

So far the training is provided for Probationers only, i.e., men selected from those who have obtained a forestry degree at any University where an approved course of forestry education is carried on.

But opportunities should not be withheld from any student who for his own purposes and at his own expense desires to take a further course of forestry study after completing the general University course.

We have now to deal with those who are already Forest Officers and who desire to obtain further knowledge in the work of their profession.

The evidence of Mr. Battiscombe, Mr. Sargent and Mr. Robinson showed very clearly the importance of this idea as also the desire of many Forest Officers to take advantage of the Institution for the purpose of acquiring special knowledge in new subjects as well as of a general refreshment of their minds in any of those matters which had formed part of their general training.

There is reason to suppose that the Self-Governing Dominions would desire to take advantage of these courses to enable their Forest Officers or Probationers to acquire a knowledge of the more intensive systems of sylviculture which can alone be studied in countries where a forest policy has been in force for many generations.

We thoroughly endorse the Resolution of the Forestry Conference to the effect that it would be of great advantage to the whole of the Services of the Empire that there should be a system or reciprocity between the Schools or Training Institutions at home and abroad which would enable the men whether Probationers or Forest Officers of any one country to proceed to an Institution in any other country for the purpose of studying those particular branches of forest knowledge which are highly developed there. For instance India could offer valuable opportunities either at a tropical Institution or under her Conservators for those who are to enter on service in the tropics, and Canada with her vast forest area could give instruction and demonstration in forest engineering and exploitation on a much larger scale than could be found in any other part of the Empire.

It is for the different Governments to consider what opportunities should be given to their officers for attending the special and refresher courses, but we attach so great an importance to them that we have no hesitation in recommending that it should be a recognized part of the duties of the Forest Officer to attend at least one special course at the Institution during the earlier part of his service.

8. Co-ordination of the University Courses.

Inasmuch as we propose to recommend that the University course and examination leading to graduation in forestry shall be accepted as qualifications for entrance to the Central Institution, it appears desirable that those Universities which are, or may be concerned in forestry education should be expected to co-operate in a joint scheme which would ensure as nearly as possible a common standard for the degree in forestry.

Any difficulty in the way of securing efficiency and equality of standard in the degree course at the different Universities both in pure science and in the more technical side of forestry education, could be met by the formation of Delegacies or Joint Committees. (See No. 11—Control.) Undue interference with the actual arrangements of classes, and with the teachers themselves, should be avoided : strict uniformity could only be obtained at the sacrifice of individual efficiency. Equivalent standards could be ensured by an approved curriculum and by the results of examination. The approval of the curriculum could probably best be secured by the common Delegacy composed of representatives (who in practice would presumably include the heads of the Forestry Schools of the Universities concerned) acting along with other persons appointed by the Authority we propose to set up. The equivalence of the degree examination could best be ensured by the appointment of external examiners either by the Authority or better by the common Delegacy just referred to. If this arrangement were approved in principle the details might be settled after conference with those concerned, but the principle is of vital importance.

Even if the number of Universities desiring to prepare students for the forestry degree were to increase, it is probable, that few, if any, difficulties need arise. The initial outlay would deter all who were not likely to do the work efficiently, whilst those who decided to undertake it would find a scheme already in operation to which they might be expected to submit.

9. Research.

The relations between the Central Training Institution and research ought, in our view, to be as close as possible. In practice it would be better that they should be associated or so far as research into forest production is concerned, be combined in one common Institute rather than that they should be separated. each with its own independent organization. Teaching benefits by being associated with research, and vice versa, and it is commonly admitted that unless instruction be imparted in the " research " spirit it losses much of its value. It would seem a retrograde step to attempt to divorce the two branches, both of which are required in order to turn out first-rate officers. This does not mean that every Forest Officer must necessarily be an investigator in the technical sense, but that he ought, as far as possible to apprehend the general meaning and value of the research outlook. This was recognized by the British Empire Forestry Conference (Resolution, p. 9, Section 5).

Many of the proposed subject of research will in a special degree require the services of trained scientific investigators : entomology, mycology, soil science, are among those which may be cited as examples of what is meant. Researches of this nature will find their requirements best met in a thoroughly well equipped Central Training Institution, especially if it is further able to draw on the resources available at a first-rate University in which scientific research on many lines is being actively prosecuted. Furthermore, in this way we think that such research, in to what might perhaps be described as the more scientific branches forestry would then be most economically, and what is of still greater importance, most efficiently met. The Central Institution itself and the students working in it would both derive benefit from contact with persons actually engaged in research and with the researches themselves. It is difficult to overestimate the importance of this point.

Experience has shown that those Institutions in which the prosecution of research forms an important part of their functions are just those which turn out men best able to cope with the problems with which they will inevitably be faced when they enter on an industrial or official career. In these careers problems of a scientific nature are continually arising, and the utilization of scientific results forms an essential condition of successful administration.

It does not fall within our terms of reference to attempt to deal with the organization of research as contemplated in the Report of the Conference (especially in Annexure B) but we desire to record our view that, on grounds both of efficiency and of economy, the essential and intimate connection between scientific training and scientific research should not be lost sight of. We believe that a proper maintenance of such relations will be just as important for the welfare of higher forestry education, and for the further development of forestry itself, as it has already proved to be in other great techincal industries which are likewise founded on science and its application.

We therefore, whilst refraining from entering into details which appear to lie outside our terms of reference, would welcome the closest possible alliance between forestry research and the Central Training Institutions with which we ourselves are immediately concerned.

10. Location.

The question of the location of the Central Institution was left over by the Conference for further consideration and the alternatives before us appear to be :—

(1) The setting up of the Institution as one of the Schools of a University, or

(2) Apart from a University either—

(a) Located in a University town, or

(b) Located in the country at or near a forest.

These several proposals have advantages and disadvantages which we proceed to discuss.

(1) The connection with a University and with all the phases of University life would be of undoubted advantage to the student, and the status of higher forestry training as a recognized School or Department of a University cannot fail to add dignity to the Institution itself and to the service for which it prepares.

The staff will occupy a higher position. They will be part of the University itself and will not only breathe in the atmosphere of science and education but will be in close touch with all developments in this direction. This appears to be of very real importance, particularly if research is to be combined with the teaching Institution.

The use of the laboratories, museum and lecture rooms, so far as accommodation may be available, or can be supplied, and perhaps also the assistance of some of the existing professorial staff would not only be of the utmost value in themselves but would save a very large annual expenditure and also an outlay of capital which should be avoided if in any way possible.

We are bound, however, to recognize that the direct association of the Central Institution with one of the Universities may tend to increase the prestige of the Forestry Schools at that University at the expense of the other Schools, a consequence which is not desirable. This objection would apply to an almost equal extent to the scheme under rule 2 (a).

(2) (a) This proposal would have some of the advantages claimed for (1). The students and the staff while they could not be part of University life might remain in close touch with it. In addition it has some advantages of its own.

The Authority in charge of forestry education would retain a complete control over the course of education and of the staff and could shape the future of forestry training in any way which seemed good to it and would perhaps be able to secure more intensive work than is customary at some Universities.

But the cost of complete buildings and equipment would be more serious than if advantage could be taken of some existing buildings at a University.

(2) (b) The advantage of close contact with the actual problems of practical forestry is of the utmost importance at this stage of training, but it may be purchased at too high a cost and can be procured in other ways.

None of the advantages of the previous methods can be recognized in this course saving only that of complete control.

If the atmosphere of the forest and the atmosphere of science and education are considered as alteratives we feel bound to pronounce in favour of the latter.

In the model curriculum laid down we lay stress upon the importance of practical training being carried on during term time and vacations both in the earlier stages of education and also during the higher course at the Central Institution. We believe that this important side of the work can be dealt with in a sufficient degree even though the centre were not selected mainly for its osition in relation to a forest.

For these reasons we decide without hesitation that the proposal now under discussion is the least desirable of those we have considered.

Having now set out the relative advantages and disadvantages of the above proposals, and having excluded (2) (b) we have now to consider more closely the rival merits of schemes 1 and 2 (a).

The close connection with a university, the use of its staff and of some portion of its buildings are all in favour of the former, while the latter may claim the very real advantage of the full control which the authority would be able to exercise over the whole administration.

If, however, a university is prepared to accept a sufficient measure of control from an outside body, the balance would fall so strongly on the side of scheme 1 that we should be prepared to recommend it.

We now approach the more delicate part of our task, viz.: —the decision as to which university should be recommended for the location of the Institution.

The Universities of Oxford, Cambridge and Edinburgh have each great claims for consideration, but our decision is rendered less difficult by the attitude which each separately adopts towards the principle of a Central Institution.

The University of Edinburgh considered that many universites would not desire the Central Institution within their jurisdiction both on account of outside control and because of possible friction with other universities. They considered, however, that this latter objection might be overcome by a strict impartiality in the selection of probationers from all the Forestry Schools.

In their opinion if it is decided to set up the school in connection with a univerisity, a residential university should be selected.

The University of Cambridge objected on principle to the idea of a Central Institution and held that all forestry education is better left to individual universities. For this reason they do not desire that the Institution should be located with them.

The University of Oxford not only cordially supports the scheme but its past record in connection with forestry education gives it a peculiar claim for consideration.

In the year 1905 it was selected by the India Office as the centre for training probationers, and for two years had sole charge of their training. Since 1907, when the training has been thrown open to the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge and Edinburgh, Oxford can still claim that she has trained 88 per cent. of the number accepted for the Indian Forest Service.

This university is now contemplating a very large extension of buildings for her Botany and Forestry Schools, and accommodation might be provided in these buildings for the Central Institution. Prior to their completion some temporary arrangement could be made.

In addition, the services of the professorial staff and the university laboratories would be at the disposal of the student at the Institution.

The university, we have ascertained, is prepared to accept a measure of control, and we note later a scheme which might be accepted as sufficient.

For these reasons we consider that the Institution should be incorporated with the University of Oxford.

11. Control.

The control of the Central Institution should be in the hands of a Board of Governors (whom we have hitherto indicated as an authority for the government of the Central Institution) appointed as to one-half by the Departments concerned (Colonial Office, India Office, Forestry Commission), and as to the other half by the University. The director of the Institution shall be an ex-officio member of the Board; the Chairman of the Board should be appointed by the Department.

The Board will deal with all questions of administration and finance and will deal with monies arising out of capital; the capital itself, however, may with advantage be vested in the university as trustees.

The staff so far as they are members of the university, should be appointed by the univerisity with the approval of the Board.

The Board may appoint Committees and have power to appoint on them members outside their own body. In addition they shall appoint Committees or Delegacies for the purpose of co-ordinating forestry education and for the appointment of external examiners and for this purpose shall add to such Committees representatives of the universities concerned.

The general conduct of the teaching and details of administration should be entrusted to the Director of the Institution who should occupy the Chair of Forestry at the university.

With regard to the appointment of the staff, it is advisable so far as may be possible to appoint as lecturers those who have had actual experience in the woods as Forest Officers; this is also of importance when the more specialised subjects such as advanced entomology and mycology have to be dealt with. We are, however, aware that difficulties may arise for some time to come in securing suitable men who have had the necessary training and experience.

There is also a danger that the whole scheme of teaching may become sterile and lifeless if a lecturer is to go on year after year dealing with the same subjects without any refreshment in the actual practical side of the work which he is teaching. For this reason it seems to be highly desirable to arrange that the lecturer after five years or so of work in the Institution should be given leave for a period to enable him to travel and get into close touch with problems in the forest.

The whole-time staff will at the commencement consist of the Director of the Institution with one or more lecturers in sylviculture and forest management, also one lecturer in mycology and one in forest entomology. The remaining lecturers can be obtained from the university.

12. Finance.

The capital cost of the Institution will depend upon the assistance which can be given by the university in the way of buildings and it is not possible at present to give any estimate of this, but we are given to understand that pending the completion of the buildings at present in contemplation at Oxford, temporary accommodation can be found for the Institution and the cost of this should not be large.

In order to give stability to the Institution, the Governments directly concerned, i.e., the United Kingdom, India and the Colonies and Protectorates should jointly guarantee a sum sufficient for normal requirements. This should include the capital expenditure on the interest and sinking fund on that expenditure, the rent, if any, and the estimated cost of administration and staff.

It may be anticipated that the annual cost may be lessened by the Governments of the Self-Governing Dominions who, while not requiring the Institution for the normal training of their probationers, may yet desire to take advantage of it for special courses or for research, and who may be willing to pay at a higher rate for such of their probationers who take these courses than the Governments who accept the whole financial responsibility of the Institution.

All payments should be made to the Governing Body at a rate to be fixed for each student and for each special or refresher course, and any debit balance should be divided between the Governments directly concerned in proportion to the number of the probationers sent by each to the Central Institution.

The following figures are suggested as an illustration:—

Total estimated cost per annum	10,000
Sum guaranteed by Governments	10,000

Payments to Governing Body.

Government A.
20 Probationers at £150	3,000
3 Special Courses at £75	225
Government B.
15 Probationers at £150	2,250
3 Special Courses at £75	225
Government C.
5 Probationers at £150	750
3 Special Courses at £75	225
Self-Governing Dominions.
3 Probationers at £225	675
3 Special Courses at £125	750
	8,100
Debit Balance	1,900
	10,000

Debit Balance of £1,900 divided between Governments, A, B, C, in proportion to 20 : 15 : 5.

All the Forest Services, whether directly interested or not, will require to pay the university fees and some subsistence allowance for the probationers undergoing training. These, together, should not exceed £300 per student.

13. Landowners and Land Agents Training.

The training in forestry for men who do not propose to enter the Forest Services, but who either own or manage woodlands, or who intend to embark on a commercial career in connection with rubber or other plantations is outside our terms of reference, but we have been given a good deal of information on this important branch of the subject which it seems well to record.

The future of the timber supply of the United Kingdom will always depend to a considerable extent on the interest and knowledge of landowners and their agents.

Even when the full programme of State afforestation is completed, a large proportion of the woodlands will remain in private hands, and it is of the greatest importance from the national point of view that these woodlands should be properly managed.

In addition to the pure forestry education carried on at some universities there are many instances of combined agricultural and forestry courses which are well adapted for the training of these men, and the Forestry Departments of all the universities and colleges we have interviewed desire to continue them, but some financial assistance is required; in the interests of National Forestry we consider this should be given.

In the evidence we have received from the Royal English and Scottish Arboricultural Societies, the Surveyors' Institution and the Land Agents' Society, the importance of this matter is fully recognised, the main objection raised being to the length of the existing courses.

The Surveyors' Institution holds an Intermediate and Final Examination in forestry up to somewhat the same standard as the Forestry Commission's Woodmen's School, and they also hold at a later stage an optional Special Diploma Examination considerably in advance of the standard of the Final.

The Land Agents' Society propose to institute a qualifying examination in which a Forestry paper somewhat similar to the Final of the Surveyors' Institution will be included.

Neither the Society nor the Institution is a teaching body, and both agree as to the importance of a thorough training in forestry for landowners and land agents.

While owners of woodlands and some land agents will, we hope, continue to take the full agriculture and forestry course at the Universities and Colleges it would be difficult for many land agents to give up the time for the full, or even a shortened course in forestry of six months, either during the qualifying period for their own profession, or after they had started their life work ; and a shorter course of the following nature has been suggested to us :—Four courses of three weeks or one month each taken at a period during a year or in different years possibly at one or other of the Commission's Woodmen's Schools.

The first two periods should represent the training necessary and might be made compulsory for the Intermediate and Final Examinations at the Surveyors' Institution and the last two periods for the Special Diploma Examination.

There are obvious objections to these very short courses which one of our witnesses describes as " not only useless but positively dangerous," but it appears to the Committee that they are worthy of consideration by the Forestry Commission, provided that the student is in every case well grounded in practical forestry before he is accepted for such a course.

We desire to express our appreciation of the ability and zeal of Mr. Guillebaud, who has admirably performed the duties as Secretary to the Committee.

RESERVATION APPENDED TO HIS SIGNATURE OF THE REPORT BY MAJOR R. D. FURSE.

I entirely agree with the recommendations in this report but it will of course be understood that the Governments of the Colonies and Protectorates affected by its proposals are in no way committed thereby.

SUMMARY OF CONCLUSIONS.

(1) The Central Institution should be located at Oxford and incorporated with the university (10).

(2) It should be governed by a Board appointed as to one-half by the Departments or Governments concerned and as to the other half by the university.

The Board should have general charge of the higher course of training, of finance, and of administration and may set up Committees, and in case of any Committees, whose duties bring them in contact with other universities, representatives of these universities shall be included (11).

(3) The Director of the Institution and the staff should be appointed by the university with the approval of the Board.

The Director, who should be the Professor of Forestry, will have charge of the details of education and of the discipline of the Institution under the university. The Director should at the commencement be assisted by a permanent staff of 3 lecturers and should make all the arrangements which may be necessary for the attendance of his students at other university lectures (11).

(4) No estimate of the capital cost can be made until the detailed plans of the proposed university buildings have been ascertained and discussed.

The cost so far as it affects some or all of the Departments, should be defrayed by loan and sinking fund rather than by direct expenditure of capital.

Pending the erection of the proposed buildings, it has been ascertained that arrangements can be made with the university for temporary accommodation.

The annual cost of the permanent staff should not at the commencement exceed £4,000 per annum.

We recommend that the Departments concerned should jointly guarantee to the Board an annual sum sufficient to pay the costs of the Institution including interest and sinking fund and should defray any deficit in the annual working in proportion to the number of students trained for the services of each Department. There will be a further liability on every Department for the university fees and subsistence of the probationers, and this is estimated at £300 a year for each probationer (12).

(5) The Institution should be the centre of research in relation to forest production and should be associated with any other centre which deals with research into forest utilisation. It is improbable that all investigations can take place at one centre and the Board should be empowered to avail itself of any research into special subjects which can be conducted with better advantage elsewhere (9).

(6) Students should be selected by the Departments for admission to the Central Institution from those who have taken a forestry degree at any university whose standard of education is approved by the Board (3). Special steps should be taken to obtain a uniformity of standard (8).

A suitable general course for students at the universities and also a higher training at the Central Institution is suggested under heads (5) and (6).

The Self-Governing Dominions may desire to lay down a special standard for their probationers trained outside the United Kingdom (4).

Students who have taken an honours degree in science should be admitted to the Institution after a shortened course (5).

Officers of every Forest Service should at one period of their career return to the Institution for a special course (7).

The earliest possible notice should be given by the different services of the number of Probationers that will be expected in the near future (5).

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 hours on Wednesday, the 17th August 1921, based on the Indian Daily Weather Reports of the period.

1. At the beginning of the past week the monsoon was giving well-distributed rain, being rather more active in the Peninsula than in northern India. On Saturday a change set in and the conditions have gradually become those of a break in the Bombay current, with little rain in the Peninsula except on the west coast and little rain in north India except near the Himalayas. During such periods the Bay current is confined to northeast India and Burma. Rainfall has thus been irregularly distributed ; and while Chota Nagpur, the Punjab Southwest, Sind and Central India East have had much more than the average amount of rain, the week's total has been more than 50 per cent in defect in the North-West Frontier Province, Baluchistan, the Konkan, Hyderabad, Sind, Mysore and the Madras Deccan.

2. Burma.—In Lower Burma nearly general rain fell except on the 13th, when rainfall was local ; in Upper Burma local rain fell on the 10th, 11th, 12th, 14th and 15th, and there were a few falls on the other days.

Northeast India, including Orissa.—Nearly general rain fell in Assam between the 12th and 16th, in Bengal on the 15th and 16th, in Orissa on the 12th, 15th and 16th, in Chota Nagpur on all days of the week, and in Bihar on the 15th and 16th; rainfall occurred locally or at a few stations on three other days in Orissa, and during the rest of the week in Assam, Bengal and Bihar.

The United Provinces, Central India and the Central Provinces—Rainfall was nearly general in the United Provinces East on the 15th and 16th, in the United Provinces West on the 11th and 15th, in Central India West on the 12th, in Central India East on the 11th, 12th, 14th and 15th, in the Central Provinces West on the 11th and 12th and in the Central Provinces East on the 11th and 15th ; it occurred locally or at a few stations during the rest of the week in the Central Provinces and the west of the United Provinces, on one other day in the east of Central India, and on four other days in the west of Central India and the east of the United Provinces.

Northwest India.—In the Punjab plains, Hissar was the only station that received no rain during the week ; rain fell on five days at Ambala, on four days at Delhi, and on one or two days at the remaining stations. There was nearly general rain in lower Sind on the 10th and 11th, and in Rajputana East and Gujarat on the 10th and 12th ; rain fell locally or at a few stations on the remaining days in Gujarat and on three other days in Rajputana East In Rajputana West rainfall was local between the 10th and 13th. In the North-West Frontier Province there were scattered falls on the 12th, 13th and 16th, while in Baluchistan, except for a heavy fall at Fort Sandeman on the 13th, the week was rainless.

The Peninsula.—Nearly general rain fell in the Konkan on the 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th and 15th, in Malabar on the 10th, 11th, 14th, 15th and 16th, and in Hyderabad North on the 10th and 12th ; rainfall occurred locally or at a few stations on two other days in the last named area and during the rest of the week in the other two sub-divisions. There was local rain in the Bombay Deccan on the 10th, 12th, 14th and 15th, in Hyderabad South on the 10th and 11th, in Mysore on the 11th and 13th, in Madras Southeast on the 16th and 16th, and on the Madras Coast North between the 10th and 12th ; individual falls occurred on one other day in south Hyderabad and on the north Madras coast, on two other days in southeast Madras and on the remaining days in Mysore and the Bombay Deccan. There was no rain during the week in the Madras Deccan.

3. The chief amounts of rainfall reported were as follows :—

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday, 13th August, 1921.

Burma.—The rainfall during the week was general in Lower Burma and in Upper Burma. No rain fell in Pakokku while scanty showers were received in Mandalay and Sagaing. Elsewhere the fall was moderate. Cultivation of the main rice crop is progressing normally in Upper and Lower Burma. In Upper Burma sowing of groundnut, maize, sesamum and juar continues. More rain is needed in the dry zone. Elsewhere standing crops are in fair condition. Cattle are generally healthy. The price of unhusked rice is Rs. 227 to 230, and that of white rice (specials) is Rs. 560 per hundred baskets.

Assam.—The weather is seasonable. Harvesting of autumn rice and jute, plucking of tea and transplanting of winter rice continue. The outturn of autumn rice and jute and prospects of winter rice are fair. Cattle disease is reported from five districts. The price of common rice continues to fall slightly.

Bengal.—Excepting a few districts in north Bengal the rainfall during the week was defective throughout the Province. More rain is urgently needed to facilitate transplantation of winter paddy. Progress is slow in western districts. Prospects of deep water paddy are reported satisfactory. Harvesting of autumn paddy and cutting, steeping and washing of jute are progressing. The average price of common rice has risen by about 0·80 per cent.

Bihar and Orissa.—The rainfall during the week was general over the Province, the fall being heavy in Ranchi and Singhbhum and in parts of Gaya, Cuttack, Balasore and Sambalpur and light to moderate in the rest of the Province. Transplantation of winter paddy is going on. More rain is wanted for the purpose in Patna and in parts of Shahabad, Champaran, Muzaffarpur, Monghyr, Purnea, the Santal Parganas, Cuttack, Puri and Sambalpur. Standing crops are generally doing well. 6,207 persons received gratuitous relief in Puri (including 96 persons on relief from district Charitable Fund). The price of common rice has risen in 3 districts, fallen in 3 and remained stationary in the remainder. The average price of local common rice at headquarters was 5·74 seers a rupee against 5·71 seers in the preceding week and that of maize was 6·66 seers against 6·60 seers in the preceding week. Cattle disease is reported from fourteen districts. The condition of standing crops in the Feudatory States of Orissa and Chota Nagpur is good.

United Provinces.—Report not received.

Punjab.—Light or moderate rain fell during the week in the reporting districts and was useful for standing crops and for sowing. The condition of cotton, sugarcane and other standing crops is generally normal. Autumn crops are being sown. The area sown is normal on irrigated and below normal on unirrigated lands. Germination is good. Dry fodder is scarce but green grass is available. Cattle are generally weak owing to overwork and scarcity of fodder. Water is sufficient. Prices have risen slightly in some districts and are stationary in others. They are generally at or about scarcity rates. No test work was opened during the week. Stocks of foodgrains are sufficient except in a few districts. Price of wheat:—Ambala $4\frac{1}{16}$, Lahore $4\frac{1}{2}$, Ferozepore $4\frac{3}{8}$ and Lyallpur $4\frac{1}{4}$ seers per rupee.

North-West Frontier Province.—Rain fell in parts. Sowings of autumn crops are in progress. Great scarcity of fodder prevails in some parts. Wheat is selling in Peshawar at $4\frac{1}{2}$ seers and in Dera Ismail Khan at $4\frac{1}{4}$ seers per rupee.

Jammu.—Heavy rain fell during the week. Prices are rising. Fodder is insufficient.

Kashmir.—The weather during the week was warm, raining twice copiously. Crops are in good condition. No cattle disease is reported. Prices are high.

Baluchistan.—During the week more rain fell in the Barkhan and Musakhel tahsils of the Loralai district, also in parts of the Chagai district. Khushkaba lands are being prepared for spring crops. Grazing is good. The condition of cattle is improving. Afghan government having restricted export of cattle to British territory prices of the same have risen considerably. Cholera at Chaman has subsided but is still raging at and around Gulistan where 109 cases and 35 deaths are reported up to date. 663 persons were employed on works in the Chaman and Pishin subdivisions. On Kohlu works there were 35 persons, on Mekhtar works 50 and on Musakhel works 80. The number of persons fed by private charity during the week in the Musakhel tahsil was 733. The number of persons employed on Murgha road was 600 and on Shinghar road 100, while there were 261 persons receiving gratuitous relief at Fort Sandeman. On Nushki-Kharan road 200 persons were employed and on Kishingi road 226. Shortage of grain is being felt in the Barkhan tahsil of the Loralai district where some emaciation among more destitute classes is noticeable. Prices have risen at Fort Sandeman and Quetta. Elsewhere prices are unchanged.

Rajputana.—The rainfall during the week was general throughout Rajputana and Ajmer-Merwara. The maximum fall was 8 inches 14 cents in the Kotah State. Sowing operations are in full swing. Weeding of autumn crops continues. Agricultural stock is emaciated in Kotah and is slightly improving in Tonk Cholera exists in parts of Kotah. Prices have fallen slightly.

Central India.—The rainfall during the week was general. It was insufficient only in parts of Indore, Malwa and Khilchipur. Sowing and weeding continue. The condition of standing crops is fair to good. Crops are withering in the Sunnee and Garoth perganas of the Indore State for want of rains. The condition of agricultural stock is fair to good except for cattle disease in parts of Rewa and Jaso. Fodder is insufficient in the Rampura-Bhanpur district of Indore and in Jaora. Prices are high.

The weekly report on famine is as follows:—The number of persons in receipt for gratuitous relief in Deosar and Gopadbanas was 3,978 and in poor-houses 842.

Gwalior.—The rainfall during the week was sufficient. Agricultural operations including cotton sowing are in progress. Standing crops are in good condition. Prices of foodgrains are high.

Central Provinces.—The weather continued cloudy. Ample rain fell throughout the Province and a break is now needed in Berar and in several districts of the Central Provinces. Thinning of rice and weeding of cotton and juar are proceeding. Standing crops are in excellent condition and prospects are bright at present. The condition of cattle is generally good. Fodder and water are sufficient. Rice in Seoni and Bilaspur and juar in Nagpur rose by one seer per rupee. Other variations are unimportant.

Feudatory States.—Moderate to heavy rain was received in the States. Transplantion of rice and weeding of other autumn crops are proceeding.

The weekly report on famine and scarcity is as follows:—General rain varying from 1·20 to 7·90 inches fell in the affected districts. Prospects are favourable. Germination of autumn crops is good. Weeding operations continue. The number on works has decreased from 38,100 to 31,516. Relief works have been closed entirely in Damoh, Raipur and Bilaspur and individual works are being closed elsewhere. The number of persons in receipt of gratuitous relief has decreased from 46,758 to 45,308. Mortality is normal and public health is good except for the continuance of Cholera in sporadic form in some districts. Prices are stationary. Import of foodgrains continues wherever necessary. Private kitchens in Balaghat and Raipur still continue to give relief. Crime is normal except in Mandla and Balaghat.

Bombay.—The rainfall during the week was general and beneficial throughout the Presidency and Sind. It was heavy in parts. A break is generally necessary. Sowing and transplantation generally continue. Germinated seedlings are thriving. The fodder supply is generally sufficient. Green grass is available. Drinking water is sufficient. Water for irrigation is improving. Cattle are in good condition, except in Thar and Parkar. Prices are fluctuating.

The weekly report on famine and scarcity is as follows:—Distress continues to decrease as labour in fields becomes available. Relief works are being closed. Number of works in progress:—Broach 1, Ahmednagar 4, Poona 1, Sholapur 1 and Bijapur 9. Gratuitous relief to the decrepit and the needy and dole to inferior village servants continue. Numbers on relief:—Workers—Broach 64, Ahmednagar 5,730, Poona 1,112 and Bijapur 9,948; dependants—Ahmednagar 1,882 and Bijapur 886; gratuitons—Broach 1,099, West Khandesh 954, Ahmednagar 15,146, Poona 3,718, Sholapur 5,777, Satara 4,164, Bijapur 5,210 and Belgaum 3,503. The condition of the people on works and in receipt of dole is good. The fodder supply is improving as green grass is available. Drinking water supply is improving.

Hyderabad.—The rainfall during the week was nearly general. The highest fall recorded was 6·30 inches in the Adilabad district. The average for the dominions was 2·18 inches. Weeding of autumn crops continues. Their condition is fair but they are withering for want of rain in the Raichur district and have been damaged by insects in parts of the Nalgonda district. Sowings of early rice are progressing. Water supply is sufficient in tanks except in parts of the Gulbarga, Raichur, Mahbubnagar and Nalgonda districts. Prices of foodgrains continue to be high and almost stationary. Juar is selling at 3¼ seers in the Bir and Medak districts.

The weekly report on famine for the week ending 27th July is as follows:—The rainfall has been nearly general almost in all talukas of the affected districts. The number of persons on relief is decreasing. Some of the relief works are being closed gradually. Cheap grain shops continue in Hyderabad city. Prices of foodgrains continue to be high. Juar is selling at 3¼ to 6½ seers and rice at 2½ to 4¼ seers per rupee. Number on reliefs:—works 34,000, gratuitous 30,000, total 64,000.

Mysore.—The rainfall during the week was good in the Kadur, Shimoga and Hassan districts and light to fair elsewhere. Prices of foodgrains are steady. Markets are well supplied. Ragi and paddy are sown in parts. Prospects of the season are generally fair but more rain is needed in Chitaldrug. Cattle are generally healthy. Water and fodder are available.

Coorg.—The rainfall during the week was heavy. Ploughing for rice and transplantation continue. Water and fodder for cattle are available. Cattle are generally healthy. The public health is fair. Prices of foodgrains are high.

Madras.—The rainfall during this week was very heavy on the West Coast except Travancore, heavy or moderate in the Circars and the Carnatic (except Nellore), North Arcot, Tanjore, Travancore and the hills, nil in Tinnevelly and light to fair elsewhere. Standing crops are fair generally. The outturn of the harvested paddy and dry crops in parts of sixteen districts is generally fair. Sowing of paddy and dry crops is proceeding in most districts. The condition of cattle is good generally. Water is generally sufficient except in parts of thirteen districts. Pasture and fodder are sufficient generally. Prices are steady. Prospects are improving in parts of Kurnool and are fair elsewhere. Three test works are in progress in Kurnool with an attendance of 774 persons and gratuitous relief is given to 355.

The weekly report on famine in Bellary and Anantapur is as follows:—Four relief works are in progress in Bellary and five in Anantapur. Distress is moderate but is tending to decrease owing to recent rains. Coolie classes are mostly affected. People are freely resorting to works. There is no marked foreign influx. The condition of the people on relief and public health are generally fair. No emaciation is noticeable. Relief measures are adequate. No special relief to weavers and artizans is necessary now. Cloths, cooked food and grain doles are being distributed from private charity in Bellary. State loans are being advanced. The price of cholam in Bellary and Anantapur was $6\frac{5}{16}$ seers per rupee. Number on relief:—Bellary—works 10,692, gratuitous 2,492, total 13,184; Anantapur—works 6,411, gratuitous 3,373, total 9,784.

HOME DEPARTMENT.

ESTABLISHMENTS.

Simla, the 18th August, 1921.

RESOLUTION.

SUBJECT:—Allotment of candidates appointed to the Indian Civil Service in 1920-21.

The undermentioned gentlemen, who have been appointed in England to the Indian Civil Service by nomination under the Indian Civil Service (Temporary Provisions) Act, 1915, are, under the orders of the Governor-General in Council, allotted to the provinces shown against their names:—

Mr. B. E. J. Burge,	Bengal.
Mr. A. G. McCall,	Bengal.
Mr. S. A. Khan,	Bihar and Orissa.

2. The Governor-General in Council is further pleased to direct that on arrival at Bombay these gentlemen shall ascertain from the Resident Under-Secretary to the Government of Bombay whether any orders as to their destinations await them. In the absence of any such orders, Messrs. Burge and McCall should proceed to Calcutta and report themselves to the Chief Secretary to the Government of Bengal. Similarly, Mr. Khan should proceed to Patna (Patna Junction Railway Station) and report himself to the Chief Secretary to the Government of Bihar and Orissa.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the local Governments concerned for information and guidance. Also that the Resolution be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India and that a copy be forwarded to each of the gentlemen mentioned therein.

H. D. CRAIK,

Offg. Secretary to the Government of India.

PREFATORY NOTE.

Prices of Country Produce and Salt in India in the first half of July, 1921, as compared with the preceding half month.

As compared with the preceding fortnight, the average level of wholesale prices of food grains and pulses in India in the fortnight ending the 15th July, 1921, showed a rise of 5 per cent, the advance in maize being 10 per cent, barley 6 per cent, wheat and bajra 5 per cent each, Jawar 4 per cent, rice and gram 3 per cent each, and arhar dál 1 per cent.

Prices of ghi and salt remained stationary, while raw sugar (gúr) declined by 1 per cent.

The noticeable movements in provincial prices are as follows:—The Bombay Presidency records a rise of 12 per cent in the price of barley. In the United Provinces there was an advance of 19 per cent, in the price of rice but a fall of 20 per cent in that of arhar dal. In the Punjab maize increased by 15 per cent and bajra 11 per cent. In Delhi the price of barley rose 13 per cent percentage increases in the North-West Frontier Province were 31 in jawar 23 in arhar dal, 20 in maize, and 12 in bajra. In Bihar and Orissa the price of maize rose 18 per cent, while in Assam salt fell by 11 per cent. Rice in Bengal advanced by 2 per cent and wheat in the Punjab by 11 per cent.

These fluctuations are stated in the summary table below:—

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATION.

Simla, the 26th August, 1921.

ORDINANCE No. II OF 1921.

An Ordinance to provide for the proclamation of Martial Law, to empower military authorities to make regulaions for administering it, and to provide for other matters connected therewith.

WHEREAS an emergency has arisen which makes it necessary to provide for the proclamation of Martial Law, to empower military authorities to make regulations and issue orders to provide for the public safety and the maintenance and restoration of order, to authorise the trial of certain offences by Special Courts constituted under this Ordinance, and to provide for other matters connected with the administration of Martial Law;

Now, THEREFORE, the Governor General, in exercise of the powers conferred by section 72 of the Government of India Act, is pleased to make and promulgate the following Ordinance:—

Short title.

1. This Ordinance may be called the Martial Law Ordinance, 1921.

Proclamation of Martial Law.

2. Martial Law shall be in force and the provisions of this Ordinance shall apply in the area which is specified in the Schedule and in such other areas as the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, direct, and in all such areas Martial Law shall be proclaimed by such means and in such manner as the Local Government may direct; and shall remain in force in any such area until withdrawn by the Governor General in Council by notification in the Gazette of India, whereupon the provisions of this Ordinance shall cease to apply in such area:

Provided that no failure to comply with any directions of the Local Government as to the manner of proclamation in any area shall invalidate anything done in the administration of Martial Law in pursuance of this Ordinance in that area:

Provided further that the validity of any sentences passed, or of anything already done or suffered, or any liability incurred or indemnity granted in accordance with the provisions of this Ordinance shall not be affected by reason only of the fact that this Ordinance has ceased to be in force.

Administration of Martial Law.

3. In any area in which Martial Law is for the time being in force, the Commander-in-Chief in India or an officer not below the rank of Major-General empowered by him in this behalf, shall appoint one or more military officers, not being lower in rank than a Lieutenant-Colonel, to be Military Commanders to administer Martial Law (any such officer being hereinafter referred to in this Ordinance as "the Military Commander"), and the Military Commander shall exercise his powers in respect of such area or such part thereof (hereinafter referred to as an "administration area") as the appointing authority may direct.

Regulations.

4. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance, the Military Commander shall have power to make regulations to provide for the public safety and the maintenance and restoration of order and as to the powers and duties of military officers and others in furtherance of that purpose.

(2) Such regulations may provide that any contravention thereof, or of any order issued thereunder or supplementary thereto, shall be punishable with any punishment authorised by any law in force in any part of British India, and any such contravention shall for the purposes of this Ordinance be deemed to be an offence against a regulation or an order, as the case may be.

(3) The power to make regulations shall be subject to the following conditions, namely :—

(i) in making any regulation the Military Commander shall interfere with the ordinary avocations of life as little as may be consonant with the exigencies of the measures which he deems to be required to be taken for the purposes of Martial Law;

(ii) before making any regulation the Military Commander shall, if possible, consult the senior civil officer in direct charge of the administration area in which he exercises power, but shall not be bound to follow his advice; and

(iii) the penalty, if any, for the contravention of a regulation shall be specified therein.

(4) The Military Commander shall cause any regulation made by him to be published in such manner as he thinks best fitted to bring it to the notice of those affected, and shall transmit through the normal channel a copy of every regulation so made to the Commander-in-Chief in India.

Martial Law Orders.

5. (1) The Military Commander may, by order in writing, empower any Magistrate or any military officer of seven years' service not below the rank of a Captain to make Martial Law Orders in any part of the administration area for the purpose of supplementing the regulations in that area, and the punishment for the contravention of any such Order shall be that specified in the regulations for the contravention of a Martial Law Order:

Provided that no Order shall be made which is inconsistent with the regulations.

(2) Every Magistrate or officer making a Martial Law Order under sub-section (1) shall cause the same to be published in such manner as he thinks best fitted to bring it to the notice of those affected.

(3) A copy of every such Order shall, as soon as may be, be submitted to the Military Commander, who shall have power to add to, modify or rescind any such Order in such way as he thinks fit.

(4) Where a Military Commander has under sub-section (3) added to, modified or rescinded any such Order, he shall forthwith communicate the fact to the Magistrate or officer who made the Order, and such Magistrate or officer shall thereupon cause to be published in the manner hereinbefore mentioned the Order as so added to or modified, or the fact that the Order has been rescinded, as the case may be.

Courts under the Ordinance.

6. (1) Summary Courts of criminal jurisdiction may be constituted for the purposes of this Ordinance in any administration area in the manner hereinafter provided.

(2) The Military Commander may, by general or special order in writing, empower any Magistrate appointed under the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, to exercise the powers of a Summary Court. V of 1898.

Limitation of jurisdiction of Summary Courts.

7. No Summary Court shall try any offence unless such offence was committed—

(a) in the administration area in which such Court was constituted, and

(b) after such date (whether before or after the date of the proclamation of Martial Law in the area) as the Governor General in Council may, in respect of such area, by notification in the Gazette of India, direct in this behalf.

Trial of offences against regulations or Martial Law Orders.

8. (1) Every offence against a regulation or a Martial Law Order which is triable by a Summary Court shall be tried by such Court, unless the Military Commander directs that it be tried by the ordinary Criminal Courts.

(2) The ordinary Criminal Courts are hereby empowered to try any offence in respect of which a Military Commander has made a direction under sub-section (1) and any offence against a regulation or Martial Law Order which is not triable by a Summary Court.

(3) Contraventions of any regulation or order made or issued in any area, after the date notified in respect of that area by the Governor General in Council under clause (b) of section 7 and prior to the enforcement of Martial Law by or under this Ordinance in that area, by any officer acting in the exercise of military control for the purpose of providing for the public safety or the maintenance or restoration of order shall be deemed to be offences against a regulation or a Martial Law Order in force in that area under this Ordinance, and shall be triable and punishable as if any sentence authorised by any such aforesaid regulation or order were a sentence authorised by a regulation under this Ordinance.

Trial of offences connected with events necessitating Martial Law.

9. (1) Subject to the provisions of section 7, offences, other than offences of the kind referred to in section 8, connected with the events which have necessitated the enforcement or continuance of Martial Law, or any class of such offences, may, if the Military Commander by general or special order so directs, be tried by Summary Courts.

(2) If any question arises whether or not an offence is an offence of the nature described in sub-section (1), the decision of the Summary Court shall be conclusive on the point, and such decision shall not be questioned in any Court.

(3) The Military Commander or any authority empowered by him in this behalf may, by a general or special order, give directions as to the distribution among the Summary Courts of cases to be tried by them under section 8 or this section.

Trial of other offences.

10. Save as otherwise provided in this Ordinance, all offences shall be dealt with by the ordinary Criminal Courts exercising jurisdiction in the administration area in the ordinary course of law.

Jurisdiction of ordinary Civil Courts.

11. The ordinary Civil Courts shall continue to exercise civil jurisdiction in the areas in which Martial Law is in force by or under this Ordinance, provided that no Civil Court shall exercise any jurisdiction by way of interference with any regulation or Martial Law Order made under this Ordinance.

Procedure of Summary Courts.

12. In the trial of any case a Summary Court shall, as far as possible, follow the procedure laid down in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, for the trial of warrant-cases, and shall have all the powers conferred by the said Code on a Magistrate in regard to the issue of processes to compel appearance and to compel the production of documents and other moveable property: V of 1898.

Provided that the Court shall not be required to record more than a memorandum of the evidence or to frame a formal charge:

Provided further that, in the trial of any offence punishable with imprisonment for a term not exceeding one year, the Court may follow the procedure for the summary trial of cases in which an appeal lies laid down in Chapter XXII of the said Code.

Sentences by Summary Courts.

13. Summary Courts may pass any sentence authorised by law or by regulations under this Ordinance, provided that such Courts shall not pass a sentence of imprisonment for a term exceeding two years, or of fine exceeding one thousand rupees.

Jurisdiction of Summary Courts.

14. (1) No person shall be tried by a Summary Court for an offence which is punishable with imprisonment for a term exceeding five years.

(2) If a Summary Court is of opinion that the offence disclosed is one which it is not empowered to try, it shall send it for trial to an ordinary Criminal Court having jurisdiction.

(3) If a Summary Court is of opinion that an offence which it is empowered to try should be tried by an ordinary Criminal Court, or that it requires a punishment in excess of that which it is empowered to inflict, it shall stay proceedings and report the case for the orders of the Military Commander, who may direct that the case shall be tried by a Summary Court, or may send it to an ordinary Criminal Court having jurisdiction.

Legal practitioners.

15. Every person accused of an offence before a Summary Court shall be entitled to be defended by a legal practitioner:

Provided that the Court shall not be required to grant an adjournment for the purpose of securing the attendance of a legal practitioner if, in the opinion of the Court, such adjournment would cause unreasonable delay in the disposal of the case.

Exclusion of interference of other Courts.

16. (1) Notwithstanding the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, or of any other law for the time being in force, or of anything having the force of law by whatsoever authority made or done, there shall be no appeal from any order or sentence of a Summary Court, and no Court shall have authority to revise such order or sentence, or to transfer any case from a Summary Court, or to make any order under section 491 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, or have any jurisdiction of any kind in respect of any proceedings of a Summary Court. V of 1898. V of 1898.

(2) The power of the Governor General in Council or the Local Government to make orders under section 401 or section 402 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, shall apply in respect of persons sentenced by Summary Courts. V of 1898.

Limitation of power of Summary Court to whip.

17. Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (2) of section 4, no Summary Court shall pass a sentence of whipping for any offence against a regulation or Martial Law Order except where the offender has in the commission of the offence used criminal force within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code. XLV of 1860.

Execution of sentences of whipping.

18. In the execution of any sentence of whipping passed by a Summary Court, the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 392 and the provisions of sections 393 and 394 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, shall apply, and every such sentence shall, as far as possible, be carried out in a place to which the public shall not be admitted. V of 1898.

Offence defined.

19. Unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context, the word "offence" shall be deemed, for the purposes of this Ordinance and of sections 401 and 402 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, to include an act which is, or which under the provisions of this Ordinance is deemed to be, an offence against a regulation or a Martial Law Order. V of 1898.

Saving.

20. Nothing in this Ordinance shall be construed as in derogation of any powers for the maintenance of law and order exercisable by the Governor General in Council or any other authority.

Validation of Martial Law sentences prior to proclamation.

21. Any sentence passed in any area, after the date notified in respect of that area by the Governor General in Council under clause (b) of section 7 and prior to the enforcement of Martial Law by or under this Ordinance in that area, in respect of any contravention of a regulation or order made or issued within the same period by any officer acting in the exercise of military control for the purpose of providing for the public safety or the maintenance or restoration of order shall be deemed to be as valid as if it were a sentence passed under this Ordinance in respect of an offence against a regulation or a Martial Law Order in force in that area under this Ordinance.

22. No sentence, finding or order passed by a Summary Court shall be invalid by reason only of any error, omission or irregularity in any proceedings before or during the trial, unless such error, omission or irregularity has in fact occasioned a failure of justice.

Proceedings not invalidated by certain irregularities.

23. No suit, prosecution or other legal proceeding whatsoever shall lie against any person for, or on account of, or in respect of, any act, matter or thing ordered or done, or purporting to have been ordered or done,

Protection of bona fide action.

(a) under this Ordinance, or

(b) in the exercise of military control in any area for the purpose of providing for the public safety or the maintenance or restoration of order, after the date notified in respect of that area by the Governor General in Council under clause (b) of section 7 and prior to the enforcement of Martial Law by or under this Ordinance in that area :

Provided that such person has acted in good faith and in a reasonable belief that his action was necessary for the said purposes :

Provided further that nothing in this section shall prevent the institution of proceedings by or on behalf of the Government against any person in respect of any matter whatsoever.

RESOLUTION.

The 24th August, 1921.

No. 40-R.A.—The Third Report of the Standing Joint Committee of the Houses of Parliament on Indian Affairs, dealing with the political status of Indians in Kenya Colony, is published for information. The Despatch of the Government of India, No. 33, dated October 21, 1920, to which it refers, was published under Resolution No. 1901, dated the 27th December 1920.

ORDERED TO REPORT:—

That the Standing Joint Committee have proceeded to consider the Despatch of the Government of India, No 33 of 21st October, 1920 (Command Paper 1311 of 1921), relating to the political status of Indians in Kenya Colony. They have taken this action on the initiative of certain members of the Committee in accordance with the procedure set out in their First Report.

1. This question has for a considerable period been one of some prominence. It has formed the subject of correspondence between Lord Milner, the Secretary of State for the Colonies, and the Officer Administrating the Government of the East Africa Protectorate, the India Office, and the Indian Overseas Association.

The Indian Community of the Colony gave expression to their views when a deputation on the general subject of Reforms was received by the Secretary of State for the Colonies on April 19th, 1920.

2. The original policy laid down by the Colonial Office in regard to these questions is shown in the Despatch of Lord Milner of the 21st of May, 1920, to the British East African Government—

(1) The Secretary of State agreed to the election of two Indian Members of the Legislative Council on a special Franchise, and similar representation on Municipal Councils.

(2) He did not see his way to remove the restriction upon acquiring Land in the Highlands, which he claimed would be discrimination in favour of the Asiatic as against European settlement, but he offered other areas, for Indian colonisation, and in paragraph 8 he laid down the principle of limited ownership of Town-plots.

(3) He adhered to "Segregation" on the grounds of sanitation and social convenience; and he also stated that he could not countenance any restrictions which would place natives of India at a disadvantage as compared with other immigrants.

3. This Despatch of the Secretary of State for the Colonies was forwarded by the Secretary of State for India to the Government of India, who replied in their Despatch No. 33, dated 21st October, 1920 (Command Paper 1311 of 1921) setting forth their views upon the subject.

These views were briefly as follows:—

(1) As regards the Franchise, they reiterated their opinion that there should be a Common Electoral Roll They admitted that the bulk of the Indians were not ripe for the adult suffrage which the Europeans at present enjoy, but they proposed that there should be a Common Franchise on a reasonable property basis, plus an educational test without racial discrimination, for all British subjects.

(2) They considered that the original discrimination exercised in making government grants of Land in the Highlands was not now at issue, as practically all the land had been allotted, and that there was no justification for extending this discrimination to the transfer of upland farms which were already in occupation. Even if the principle of Race-Segregation were admitted, the necessity for the prohibition of the transfer of town plots from Europeans to Asiatics did not seem obvious, and they considered it inequitable to restrict the right of transfer of plots already alienated, and unnecessary to impose any such restriction on the sale of new plots which might be alienated hereafter.

(3) The decision of the Colonial Office as to the Segregation of races was, they asserted, resented not only by Indians in East Africa but by educated opinion throughout India. They believed that sanitation and social convenience could be adequately secured by mutual consent, by strict enforcement of sanitary and building laws, and by a just administration of municipal revenues. Legislation on racial lines would stimulate hostility and ill-feeling and would, they feared, gratuitously provoke political trouble in India and throughout the Empire.

As a basis for these specific suggestions the Government of India urged that there was no justification in a Crown Colony or Protectorate for assigning to British Indians a status in any way inferior to that of any other class of His Majesty's subjects.

They referred in conclusion to a suggestion that a Royal Commission should be appointed to consider the whole question of the administration of East African Territories, and urged the appointment of such a Commission, and the inclusion of the Indian question in the terms of reference.

4. The discussions had reached this point when the Committee took up the question.

The Committee have heard witnesses representative both of the European Settlers and of Indian opinion in Kenya. They have also had the advantage of the evidence of official witnesses connected with Kenya, and of Sir Benjamin Robertson, who visited the Colony on behalf of the Government of India. The Under-Secretaries of State for the Colonies and for India have also attended the Committee and explained the present attitude of their respective Departments.

The Committee have examined and sifted the oral evidence both in relation to the policy of the Colonial Office and to the proposals of the Government of India in the hope of ascertaining some common ground for settlement.

5. The Committee have moreover reviewed with care the proposals made by the Government of India in their despatch of 21st October.

The claim made by the Government of India, as to status on behalf of the Indians in Kenya, is clear. They do not suggest that responsible government should be given to the Colony, or that the present official majority on the Legislative Council should be abandoned, or that the basis of Crown Colony Administration should be modified, but they claim for the British Indians that they should share with the European Settlers on a Common Franchise the right of electing members of the Legislature and of the Municipal Bodies; and that there should be no discrimination against Indians as such, as regards other rights which those Settlers enjoy.

In this connection the Committee have noted the wide concessions affecting status which are granted to all Nationals of States, Members of the League of Nations under the Draft Mandate for the adjacent Mandated Territory of Tanganyika (Command Paper 1284 of 1921).

6. The Committee have decided to recommend the acceptance of the general principle which the Government of India have laid down, namely, that there is no justification in Kenya for assigning to British Indians a status in any way inferior to that of any other class of His Majesty's subjects. Kenya is a Colony in which India has always had a peculiar interest, and Indians have taken a large share in its economic development. It is true that the Committee quickly realised that the question involved not merely the status and privileges of Indians in Kenya Colony, but in any British Colony, Mandated territory or Protectorate into which Indian immigration has occurred, or may occur in the future. The handling of this question cannot therefore be dissociated from Imperial policy of vital importance and may even affect the self-governing Dominions. But it is with Kenya alone that this Committee are at present concerned, and their recommendations are limited to the problems which have arisen there. It is the view of the Committee that any opinions which they may express with regard to Kenya need not of necessity be applicable to other cases, where the conditions may be different, and they have no desire to prejudge future issues which may not be wholly analogous.

In the light of this conclusion they have examined the specific proposals of the Government of India as to Franchise, Segregation, and Ownership of Land.

7. As regards the Franchise, the Committee accept the contention that Indians at present are not properly represented in the political and municipal life of the country, regard being had to their numbers, the position which they occupy, the taxes which they pay, and the part that they are taking in the industrial and commercial progress of the Colony. The Committee believe that a reform of the Franchise is due, which will secure for Indians an increased representation in the Legislative Council and Municipal bodies, and that effect should be given to such reform without undue delay. It may be that the best machinery will be found in the adoption of a Common Electoral Roll and a Common Franchise on a property basis with an educational test. This is in effect the Indian claim; but it was strongly objected to by some of the witnesses on the ground that, as the Indians outnumber the Europeans by more than three to one (about 30,000 to 8,000 or 9,000), a Common Roll, even with a restricted Franchise, would, if not immediately, before long, give a majority to the Indians and create a situation which the Europeans could not accept. Upon the information before them, the Committee do not feel in a position to suggest in what precise manner the Franchise should be framed with regard to the various interests concerned in Kenya. Any standard of property and education must be a question for examination, and the new regulations cannot be prepared satisfactorily without an enquiry into local conditions and an attempt to compose on the spot the contending opinions in Kenya.

8. Compulsory Segregation is undoubtedly considered by Indians as a badge of racial inferiority, and the question of how far it can be avoided ought to be carefully explored. There is evidence that certain Indian quarters in the towns have become a danger to the general health. The Committee see no reason to suppose that the arguments which have been put forward in defence of Segregation could not be met by a system of sanitation founded on the careful enforcement of uniform and enlightened regulations.

Experience is available in India of the success with which such regulations can be made effective to enable Indians and Europeans to live and carry on business side by side in harmony without resort to legal Segregation.

9. There remains the question of the Ownership of Land, which is represented by Indians as another instance of the racial discrimination of which they complain.

The claim of Indians to the right of settlement in the Highlands of the Colony presents difficulties of a special kind. The Committee are informed that the bulk of the available land has already been conveyed away; and they understand that the Colonial Office regards itself as bound by certain pledges in favour of European Settlers. They have naturally no desire to suggest any breach of faith; but they have received evidence which would seem to justify further enquiry into the matter. To what extent reform can be effected on practical and equitable lines is a matter for investigation which the Committee clearly could not undertake. But on the result of such an investigation the policy to be adopted could reasonably be made to depend.

10. The Committee have reached the conclusion that the evidence before them is insufficient to serve as a basis for any fair judgment on these important questions. It has only served to emphasise the delicacy and extreme difficulty of the whole problem, and convinced them that they cannot hope to get the material for making comprehensive recommendations from any evidence which can be obtained in this Country.

To pass a dogmatic judgment on the several points at issue would be impossible without local knowledge to which the Committee cannot pretend, or without calling masses of evidence which it might be inconvenient or impossible to obtain. Nor could the Committee, sitting in London, estimate with accuracy the depth of feeling which ranges itself behind the widely divergent views held in the Colony, or make satisfactory efforts to allay those feelings and reconcile those views. Further, the Committee recognise that it would be difficult, and possibly unfair, to expect the local government of the Colony and its officers, to translate into the details of administration conclusions which may not be received with complete and general approval in the Colony.

11. The Committee therefore strongly urge that some impartial body should visit Kenya and formulate detailed proposals as regards the various questions at issue. Practically every witness who has appeared before the Committee has admitted the advantages of such a course. The Committee recommend that, subject to the recognition of the general principle of status, this body should be charged with submitting proposals for the settlement of the difficulties as to the Franchise and the Ownership of Land and to report how far Segregation can be avoided, or proper Sanitary regulations enforced.

The Committee are concerned alone with the grievances of British Indians in Kenya, and if the enquiry is to be limited to these grievances, they make no precise recommendations as to the nature of the Tribunal which should be appointed.

12. The Committee are aware, however, that there are other problems in East Africa which will call for local investigation, besides the grievances of Indians. And even in the examination of those grievances it must not be forgotten that it is the Native population which forms the predominant factor in the country. It vastly exceeds the Europeans and the Asiatics in number. In Kenya alone, the Natives number probably 2,800,000, while the Europeans and Asiatics together do not exceed 40,000. The continuance in Kenya of the Crown Colony system of administration implies the recognition of our duty to the Native African Races, and their ultimate participation in some form of self-government will depend on their response to the influences of civilisation.

The problem of the Indian Community is thus only part of a much larger one which faces His Majesty's Government, not only in Kenya but also in the adjacent tropical Colonies and in the Mandated Territory of Tanganyika; and the comparatively narrow problem to which the Committee have addressed themselves has brought into the perspective matters of urgent Imperial moment in tropical administration. If it is found desirable to appoint a Royal Commission to consider those matters, the Committee recommend the inclusion of the Indian question in its terms of reference.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 hours on Wednesday, the 24th August 1921, based on the Indian Daily Weather Reports of the period.

1. The break in the monsoon continued through much of the past week in the interior of the Peninsula and in northwest India, and rain was also light in the central parts of the country. In the Gangetic plain, on the other hand, the monsoon was unusually active on most days. The distribution of rainfall was thus very uneven, and the week's total was more than 40 per cent. in defect over a large part of India.

2. Burma.—There was nearly general rain in Lower Burma throughout the week; in Upper Burma rainfall was nearly general on the 21st and local on five other days.

Northeast India, including Orissa.—Rainfall was nearly general in Assam on the 17th, 18th and 22nd, in Bengal and Bihar on the 17th, 18th, 22nd and 23rd, in Orissa on the 17th, 18th, 20th and 23rd, and in Chota Nagpur on the 18th, 21st, 22nd and 23rd. Rain fell locally or at a few stations during the rest of the week in all the sub-divisions.

The United Provinces, Central India and the Central Provinces.—Nearly general rain fell in the United Provinces East on the 17th, 18th, 22nd and 23rd, in the United Provinces West on the 18th and 19th, in Central India East on the 22nd and 23rd, and in the Central Provinces on the 23rd; rainfall occurred locally or at a few stations on the remaining days in the first two areas, on four other days in Central India and the Central Provinces West, and on three other days in the Central Provinces East.

Northwest India.—There was no rain in Sind. In the North-West Frontier Province rain fell locally on the 18th and at a few stations on one other day. In the Punjab plains scattered falls occurred on three days, but most of these falls were comparatively heavy. Over the rest of the division rain was limited to a light fall or a few light falls.

The Peninsula.—Rainfall was nearly general in the Konkan between the 18th and 23rd, in Malabar between 17th and 21st, in Hyderabad North on the 20th and 23rd, and in Hyderabad South and Mysore on the 20th; it occurred locally or at a few stations on the remaining day or days in the Konkan, Malabar and Mysore, and on one other day in south Hyderabad. Rain fell locally in the Bombay Deccan on the 19th, in the Madras Deccan on the 19th and 20th, and on the north Madras coast on the 20th and 21st; there were a few falls in the Bombay Deccan on two other days and on the north Madras coast on one other day. In southeast Madras individual falls occurred on four days in the week.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday, 20th August, 1921.

Burma.—The rainfall during the week was general in Lower Burma. In Upper Burma no rain fell in Kyaukse, Lower Chindwin and Sagaing but elsewhere the fall was light. Cultivation of the main rice crop is progressing normally in Upper and Lower Burma. In Upper Burma sowing of groundnut, maize, sesamum and juar continues. More rain is needed in the dry zone. Elsewhere standing crops are in fair condition. Cattle are generally healthy. The price of unhusked rice is Rs. 233 to 235, and of white rice (specials) Rs. 559 per hundred baskets.

Assam.—The weather is seasonable. Harvesting of autumn rice and jute, plucking of tea and transplanting of winter rice continue. The outturn of autumn rice and jute is not good. Prospects of the transplanted winter rice are fair to good and of other crops are fair. Cattle disease is reported from three districts. The price of common rice is practically unchanged.

Bengal.—Moderate to heavy rain fell in the Presidency, Burdwan, and Chittagong divisions. Elsewhere the fall was generally light. Transplanting operations for winter paddy which so long progressed slowly in west Bengal has been much accelerated by the recent rainfall. Harvesting of autumn crops is making good progress in east and north Bengal. Prospects of standing crops are fairly satisfactory. The average price of common rice has risen by about 0·3 per cent.

Bihar and Orissa.—The rainfall during the week was general over the Province, the fall being heavy in Bihar districts, Sambalpur, Ranchi and Singhbhum and light to moderate elsewhere. Transplantation of winter paddy is going on. More rain is wanted in parts of Cuttack, Balasore and Puri. Standing crops are, on the whole, doing well though slight damage to autumn crops by heavy rain is reported in parts of Monghyr and Shahabad. 6,792 persons received gratuitous relief in Puri (including 153 persons on relief from District Charitable Funds). The price of common rice has risen in five districts, fallen in four and remained stationary in the remainder. The average price of local common rice at headquarters was 5·71 seers a rupee against 5·74 seers in the preceding week and that of maize was 6·62 seers against 6·66 seers in the preceding week. Cattle disease is reported from thirteen districts. The condition of standing crops in the Feudatory States of Orissa and Chota Nagpur is good.

United Provinces.—Moderate to good rain fell throughout the Province. Preparation of land for the rabi sowing of atra crops and transplantation of rice continue. Standing crops are doing well. Prospects are favourable. The condition of agricultural stock, on the whole, is satisfactory, though cattle disease is reported to be increasing in many districts. Fodder, water and market supplies are sufficient. Prices are rising.

The weekly report on scarcity in Garhwal, Almora, and Mirzapur is as follows :—The rainfall was again good in scarcity tracts. Agricultural operations are in full swing. Standing crops are doing well. Prospects are favourable so far. The conditions of agriculture stock are generally fair, though some cattle disease is still reported. Fodder and water are sufficient. Markets are well stocked, but in the interior and north of Garhwal and in the south of Mirzapur stocks are insufficient. Steps are being taken to increase import. Prices are normal. Staple grains are juar and gram in Mirzapur. Price basis :—Garhwal 2 to 3½ seers, Almora 2¼ to 3 seers, and Mirzapur 4 to 7 seers per rupee. Heavy demand for agricultural labour is reported from Garhwal and Mirzapur. Advances for importation of grain and subsistence takavi continue in Garhwal and Almora. Distribution of takavi has been completed in Mirzapur. No relief works are needed at present in the Garhwal and Almora districts. Among cultivating and labouring classes distress is considerably reduced in Mirzapur as fields are likely to attract more hands. Crime is normal and no wandering or immigration is noticeable. In the south of Mirzapur emaciation appears in some villages but this should soon disappear with the harvesting of early autumn crops. Except for the existence of cholera the public health is reported to be good. The physical condition of the people on relief is good in Mirzapur where medical arrangements are sufficient. Numbers relieved :—Mirzapur—test works 2, poor-house 110, gratuitous 10,123, total 10,236 ; Garhwal—gratuitous 2,170 ; Almora—gratuitous 750 ; grand total 13,156. Private charity has been organised throughout the affected tracts to meet the demand for clothing.

Punjab.—Light and moderate rain fell in all the reporting districts and was useful for standing crops and for sowings. The condition of cotton, sugarcane and other standing crops is generally normal. Autumn crops are being sown. The area sown is normal on irrigated and below normal on unirrigated lands. Germination is good. Dry fodder is scarce.

Green grass is available. Cattle are generally weak owing to overwork and scarcity of fodder. Water is sufficient. Prices have risen slightly in almost all districts. They are generally above scarcity rates. No test work was opened during the week. Stocks of food-grains are insufficient except in a few districts. Price of wheat :—Ferozepore 3¾, Lahore and Rawalpindi 4$\frac{1}{16}$, Ambala 4$\frac{5}{16}$ and Lyallpur 4¼ seers per rupee.

North-West Frontier Province.—Beneficial rain fell throughout the Province. Sowings of autumn crops are in progress and prospects have much improved. Scarcity of fodder prevails in some parts. Wheat is selling in Peshawar at 4½ seers and in Dera Ismail Khan at 4¼ seers per rupee.

Jammu.—The rainfall during the week was sufficient. Prices are rising. Fodder is insufficient.

Kashmir.—The week was generally rainless and occasionally cloudy and warm. Autumn crops are in fair condition. Cattle disease is reported. Prices are high.

Baluchistan.—More rain fell in Lower Zhob as also in Darkian and Musakhel. Zamindars are ploughing lands for spring crops. Prospects of autumn crops are good. Grazing is sufficient. 636 persons were employed on relief works in the Chaman and Pishin sub-divisions. On Kohlu work there were 285 persons, in Marri kitchen 22, on Mekhtar work 60 and on Musakhel work 285. 668 persons were fed at the private kitchen in the Musakhel tahsil during the week. 320 persons were receiving gratuitous relief at Fort Sandeman. 600 persons were employed on Loralai road, 50 on Shinghar road, 159 on Nushki-Kharan road and 227 on Kishingi road. Cholera has reappeared in Chaman where two cases and one death occurred from 16th to 18th August, but none after that date while at and around Gulistan 165 cases and 151 deaths are reported. Prices of staple grain have risen as follows:—Quetta and Sibi 4 seers, Loralai 5$\frac{5}{16}$ seers and Fort Sandeman 2$\frac{1}{16}$ seers per rupee.

Rajputana.—The rainfall during the week was general throughout Rajputana and Ajmer-Merwara except Jaisalmer and Jodhpur. The maximum fall was 4 inches 19 cents in the Chhabra district of the Tonk State. The sky remains cloudy. Autumn crops are thriving. Weeding continues. Damage from excessive rain and insects is reported in some parts of the Jaipur and Kishengarh States. Fodder and water are sufficient. Agricultural stocks are improving in Tonk and Kotah. Cholera exists in parts of Kotah. Prices are steady.

Central India.—The rainfall during the week was general. It was insufficient only in Jaora and Rutlam. Sowing and weeding continue. The condition of standing crops is fair to good except in a few mahals of the Rampura-Bhanpura district. The condition of agricultural stock is fair to good except for cattle disease in parts of Rewa and Jaso. Fodder is insufficient in Jaora but the condition is improving in the Rampura-Bhanpur district. Prices are high.

The weekly report on famine in Rewa is as follows:—Gratuitous relief was given to 3,923 persons in Deosar and Gopadbanas and poor-houses had 836 inmates. Prices are stationary. Relief has now been stopped in Gopadbanas.

Gwalior.—The rainfall during the week was sufficient. Agricultural operations and opium sowing have been completed. Weeding is in progress. Prices of food grains are high.

Central Provinces.—The weather has been cloudy and light showers of rain were received in most districts. Sowing of autumn crops has been practically completed and transplantation of rice is nearing completion. An opportune break has set in benefiting the crops and facilitating weeding operations. Standing crops are generally in very good condition and prospects are good. Cattle are faring well. The supply of fodder and water is ample everywhere. Fluctuations in prices of food grains are slight and irregular.

Feudatory States.—Light to heavy rain fell in the States. Transplantation and thinning of rice are well advanced and weeding continues.

The weekly report on famine and scarcity is as follows:—A welcome break in rain was recorded during the week. Most districts received a few light showers but only two (Bilaspur and Balaghat) received substantial rain of 8·29 and 6·94 inches respectively. Weeding was pushed on vigorously. Prospects are excellent everywhere. The number of persons on relief works fell from 31,308 to 26,662. Relief works now continue in three districts of Jubbulpore, Mandla and Drug. The number of persons in receipt of gratuitous relief fell from 44,724 to 41,798. Mortality is normal and the public health is good, except for the continuance of sporadic and mild cholera in a few districts. There was no change in prices. Import of food grains continues wherever necessary. Crime is heavy in Mandla and normal elsewhere.

Bombay.—The rainfall during the week was general and beneficial throughout the Presidency but the fall was insufficient in parts of the Deccan and Karnatak where more rain is needed. Sowing and transplantation generally continue. Standing crops are thriving except in Gujrat and Khandesh where they have been slightly damaged by excessive moisture. The fodder supply is generally sufficient as green grass becomes available. Drinking water is sufficient. Water for irrigation is improving. Cattle are in good condition. Prices are fluctuating.

The weekly report on famine and scarcity is as follows:—Distress continues to decrease as labour in fields becomes available. Relief works are being closed. Number of works in progress:— Ahmednagar 4, and Bijapur 9. Gratuitous relief to the decrepit and the needy and dole to inferior village servants continue. Number on relief:— Workers—Ahmednagar 6,601, and Bijapur 8,126; dependants—Ahmednagar 2,504; gratuitous—Broach 802, the Panch Mahals 486, West Khandesh 954, Ahmednagar 11,547, Poona 4,740, Sholapur 4,914, Satara 3,358, Bijapur 4,468 and Belgaum 3,455. The condition of the people on works and in receipt of dole is good. The fodder supply is improving as green grass is becoming available. Drinking water supply is sufficient.

Hyderabad.—Report on season and crop not received.

The weekly report on famine is as follows:—Distress still continues. The number of persons on relief is fluctuating. Some of the relief camps are being closed. Poor-houses continue in Hyderabad city. Prices of foodgrains continue to be high. Juar is selling at 3¼ to 6¼ seers and rice at 2½ to 4½ seers per rupee. Number on relief:—works 10,000, gratuitous 13,000, total 23,000.

Mysore.—The rainfall during the week was good in the Kadur and Shimoga districts and light to fair elsewhere. Prices of foodgrains are generally steady. Markets are well supplied. Ragi and paddy are sown in parts. Transplantation of paddy is in progress. Prospects of the season are fair but more rain is needed in Chitaldrug and Tumkur. Cattle are generally healthy. Water and fodder are available.

Coorg.—The rainfall during the week was moderate. Ploughing for rice and transplantation are in progress. Water and fodder for cattle are available. Cattle are generally healthy. The public health is fair. Prices of foodgrains are high.

Madras.—The rainfall during the week was very heavy in Malabar and South Kanara, heavy in Cochin, moderate in the Agency and the Hills, fair in Madras and light or nil elsewhere. Standing crops are fair generally but require more rain in parts of Guntur and the Deccan. The outturn of the harvested paddy and dry crops in parts of eighteen districts is generally fair. Sowings of paddy and dry crops are proceeding in sixteen districts. The condition of cattle is good generally. Water is generally sufficient except in parts. Pasture and fodder are sufficient generally. Prices are steady. Prospects are generally fair. Three test works are in progress in Kurnool with an attendance of 1,192 persons and gratuitous relief was given to 316.

The weekly report on famine in Bellary and Anantapur is as follows:—Four relief works are in progress in Bellary and five in Anantapur. Distress is moderate. Coolie classes are mostly affected. People are freely resorting to works. There is no marked foreign influx. The condition of the people on relief and the public health are generally fair. No emaciation is noticeable. Relief measures are adequate. No special relief to weavers and artizans is necessary now. Clothing and cooked food are provided by private charity. State loans are being advanced in Bellary. The price of cholam in Bellary was 6·4 and in Anantapur 6·5 seers per rupee. Numbers on relief:—Bellary—works 10,958, gratuitous 2,582, total 13,540; and Anantapur—works 6,649, gratuitous 3,436, total 10,085.

REMARKS.

In 84 of the principal towns in the various provinces in India with a population of over 30,000 and with an aggregate population of 7,973,805 6,906 deaths were recorded during the week ending the 19th February, 1921. This corresponds to an annual death rate of 45·0 per mille.

78 of the towns for which figures are available registered 3,739 births corresponding to an annual birth-rate of 30·2 per thousand. In the same towns 5,176 deaths were recorded.

The following of the towns returned a death rate of over 50 per mille :—

Howrah (61·5), Muzaffarpur (69·2), Puri (70·3), Jubbulpore (53·97), Saugor (50·69), Raipur (50·01), Amraoti (66·76), Bezwada (52·2), Guntur (51·3), Madras (58·5), Trichinopoly (51·0), Tanjore (67·2), Kumbakonam (79·6), Madura (60·9), Salem (146·8), Bombay (67·9), Poona (56·67) and Sholapur (70·36).

In Delhi, Calcutta, Howrah, Madras, Bombay, Poona, Ahmedabad, Karachi and Rangoon the chief mortality was from respiratory diseases; in Lahore Amritsar and Sholapur from fevers; in Kumbakonam from cholera and in Muzaffarpur, Madura and Salem from plague.

Cholera was responsible for 195 deaths, small-pox for 60 and plague for 342. Of the total mortality from cholera 68 deaths were reported from ten towns in Bengal Presidency and 119 from eight towns in Madras Presidency, and of the total mortality from plague 203 deaths were recorded in five towns in Madras Presidency.

No. 80-F.—With reference to the provisions of Clause (1) of Section 2 of the Termination of the Present War (Definition) Act, 1919, the following Order of His Majesty in Council, dated the 10th August, 1921, regarding the date to be treated as the date of termination of the present War is published for general information :—

AT THE COURT OF BUCKINGHAM PALACE.

The 10th day of August, 1921.

PRESENT :

THE KING'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY IN COUNCIL.

WHEREAS by the Termination of the Present War (Definition) Act, 1918, it is provided that His Majesty in Council may declare what date is to be treated as the date of the termination of the present War, and that the date so declared shall be as nearly as may be the date of the exchange or deposit or ratifications of the treaty or treaties of peace :

AND WHEREAS ratifications of treaties of peace with Germany, Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria have been deposited on behalf of His Majesty :

NOW, THEREFORE, HIS MAJESTY, by and with the advice of His Privy Council, is pleased to order, and it is hereby ordered that the 31st day of August, nineteen hundred and twenty-one shall be treated as the date of the termination of the present War : that is to say, the day at midnight on which the present War will end :

Provided that nothing in this Order shall affect the relations between His Majesty and the Ottoman Empire until ratifications of a treaty of peace with that Empire shall have been exchanged or deposited.

HIGH COURT, CALCUTTA, ORIGINAL JURISDICTION.

Dated the 19th August 1921.

It is ordered that the following rules to be numbered 52A, 52B, 52C and 52D be passed and added to the Rules in Chapter XXXVIII of "The Rules and Orders of the High Court 1914", with effect from the 11th day of November 1921.

52 A. To facilitate the return of documents tendered as exhibits, any party when tendering a document, book, or entry in a book, may produce a copy of the same: and, unless the Court otherwise orders, the copy, upon being certified as correct by an Officer of Court, shall be marked as the exhibit, and the original document, book or entry, after a note, signed by the Court Officer, of the exhibit mark given to the copy has been endorsed thereon, shall be returned forthwith to the person or corporation producing the same.

52 B. Notwithstanding the provisions of Rules 51 and 52 of this Chapter in all cases in which any original document, book or entry in any book, produced by any person or corporation not a party to the suit or proceeding, is made an exhibit, the attorney of the party making the exhibit shall within 7 days from the date of the judgment or order in the suit or proceeding lodge in Court with the proper Officer a copy of the exhibit, and upon such copy being certified by the proper Officer of Court the exhibit shall be returned to the attorney of the party who has made the exhibit, who shall forthwith return the exhibit to the person or corporation who has produced the exhibit, upon obtaining from such person or corporation an undertaking to produce the original in Court if required to do so, such undertaking to be filed in Court. But this rule shall have no application if the Court has passed an order directing the retention of the exhibit.

52 C. The costs and charges incurred in complying with the two last mentioned rules shall be borne in the first place by the party making the exhibit unless the Court otherwise orders. Such costs and charges shall be taxable as between party and party.

52 D. If a document, book or entry in a book exhibited be not returned or offered to be returned within the time mentioned in Rule 52 B, the person or corporation producing the same may apply to a Judge in Chambers for the return of the same, and upon the certified copy being supplied and upon the undertaking to produce when required being given, the exhibit shall, unless the Judge sees fit to direct the document to be retained, be returned to such person or corporation. The costs as between attorney and client of and incidental to the application and of furnishing the certified copy shall, unless the Judge shall otherwise order, be paid by the party at whose instance the exhibit was put in.

* The figures under "Rice, husked" represent the prices of common rice.

†Figures have not so far been reported.

NOTE.—These statistics are compiled from the fortnightly returns furnished by District Officers to Local Governments and Administrations, etc. They relate to the wholesale prices in the principal markets (not necessarily district head-quarters) in each province on the last (or nearest mart) day of each fortnight.

(The figures state prices in rupees per ten maunds).

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATION.

Simla, the 5th September, 1921.

ORDINANCE No. III OF 1921.

An Ordinance to supplement the provisions of the Martial Law Ordinance, 1921.

WHEREAS an emergency has arisen which makes it necessary to supplement the provisions of the Martial Law Ordinance, 1921; (II of 1921.)

Now, THEREFORE, the Governor General, in exercise of the powers conferred by section 72 of the Government of India Act, is pleased to make and promulgate the following Ordinance:—

Short title and extent.

1. (1) This Ordinance may be called the Martial Law (Supplementary) Ordinance, 1921.

(2) It shall have the same extent as the Martial Law Ordinance, 1921, and shall apply also in any area in which the said Ordinance applies by virtue of a notification under section 2 thereof. (II of 1921.)

Special Tribunals.

2. Notwithstanding anything contained in the Martial Law Ordinance, 1921, (hereinafter referred to as the principal Ordinance), Special Tribunals may be constituted for the purposes of that Ordinance in any administration area or areas in the manner hereinafter provided. (II of 1921.)

Constitution of Special Tribunals.

3. A Special Tribunal shall consist of three persons who shall be appointed by the Local Government. The President of the Tribunal shall be a person who has acted or is acting as a Judge of a High Court, established under the Indian High Courts Act, 1861, or the Government of India Act, and the other two members shall be persons who have acted for a period of at least two years in the exercise of the powers of a Sessions Judge under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898. (24 & 25 Vic. c. 104.) (V of 1898.)

Application of provisions of principal Ordinance.

4. The provisions of sections 7, 15, 17, 18, 22 and 23 of the principal Ordinance shall apply to Special Tribunals in the same manner and to the same extent as they apply to Summary Courts and, for the purposes of this Ordinance, the word "offence" shall have the meaning ascribed to it by section 19 of the principal Ordinance:

Provided that a Special Tribunal constituted in more administration areas than one shall, subject to the provisions of this and the principal Ordinance, have jurisdiction in all such areas.

Jurisdiction of Special Tribunals.

5. (1) Subject to the provisions of section 4, a Special Tribunal shall, notwithstanding anything contained in the principal Ordinance, try such offences, connected with the events which have necessitated the enforcement or continuance of Martial Law, as the Local Government may, by general or special order in writing, direct.

(2) If any question arises whether or not an offence is an offence of the nature described in sub-section (1), the decision of the Special Tribunal shall be conclusive on the point, and such decision shall not be questioned in any Court.

(3) Special Tribunals may pass any sentence authorised by law or by regulations under the said Ordinance.

(4) When an accused person is sentenced to death by a Special Tribunal, the President shall inform him of the period within which, if he wishes to appeal, his appeal should be preferred.

Procedure of Special Tribunals.

6. (1) A Special Tribunal may take cognizance of offences without the accused being committed to it for trial and, in trying accused persons, shall follow the procedure prescribed by the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, for the trying of warrant-cases by Magistrates : V of 1898.

Provided that the Special Tribunal shall make a memorandum only of the substance of the evidence of each witness examined, and shall not be bound to adjourn any trial for any purpose unless such adjournment is, in its opinion, necessary in the interests of justice.

(2) Nothing in the proviso to sub-section (1) shall be deemed to affect the provisions of section 15 of the principal Ordinance as applied to the proceedings of Special Tribunals by this Ordinance.

(3) A Special Tribunal shall have all the powers conferred by the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, on a Court of Session exercising original jurisdiction. V of 1898.

(4) In the event of any difference of opinion among the members of a Special Tribunal, the opinion of the majority shall prevail.

Limitation of powers of interference of other Courts.

7. (1) Notwithstanding the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, or of any other law for the time being in force, or of anything having the force of law by whatsoever authority made or done, there shall, save as hereinafter provided, be no appeal from any order or sentence of a Special Tribunal, and no Court shall have authority to revise such order or sentence, or to transfer any case from a Special Tribunal, or to make any order under section 491 of the said Code, or have any jurisdiction of any kind in respect of any proceedings of a Special Tribunal, and no order of confirmation shall be necessary in the case of any such sentence. V of 1898.

(2) An appeal shall lie to the High Court in the case of any sentence, passed by a Special Tribunal, of death or of transportation for life or of imprisonment for a term of ten years or more, and the provisions of the Indian Limitation Act, 1908, shall apply as though the appeal were an appeal to a High Court under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, from a sentence passed by a Court of Session. IX of 1908. V of 1898.

(3) The power of the Governor General in Council or the Local Government to make orders under section 401 or section 402 of the said Code shall apply in respect of persons sentenced by Special Tribunals.

Rules.

8. The Local Government may, by notification in the local official Gazette, make rules providing for—

(i) the times and places at which Special Tribunals may sit; and

(ii) the procedure of Special Tribunals, including the powers of the President, and the procedure to be adopted in the event of the President or any member being prevented from attending throughout the trial of any accused person.

Citation of Ordinance.

9. The provisions of this Ordinance shall be construed with, and read as part of, the Martial Law Ordinance, 1921, and this Ordinance and the principal Ordinance may be cited together as the Martial Law Ordinances, 1921. II of 1921.

RESOLUTION.

ESTABLISHMENTS.

The 2nd September, 1921.

No. 2068.—With reference to the Home Department Resolution no. 2668, dated the 16th December 1920, it has been decided that the orders regarding the classification of the judicial allowance drawn by officers holding superior judicial appointments in the Indian Civil Service as judicial pay shall take effect from the 22nd November 1920, the date on which the Secretary of State's orders were received, and that only those officers who are on duty, whether in a substantive or an officiating capacity, in a superior judicial post for which judicial pay has been sanctioned by the Secretary of State are eligible to receive judicial pay. The privilege leave allowances of officers holding a lien upon such a post will, however, include judicial pay. If such officers are deputed on special duty they will not be entitled to receive judicial pay. It will be a matter for consideration in each such case at the time of deputation, whether it is necessary, when deciding whether any deputation allowance should be granted, to grant any compensation for the loss of judicial pay. The powers of the local Governments regarding the grant in such cases of deputation allowances are, as hitherto, limited by the provisions of Article 81 of the Civil Service Regulations. That is, no addition by way of compensation for the loss of judicial pay to the maximum amount of deputation allowance which may be granted by a local Government is permissible, but in applying the percentage in Article 81 of the Civil Service Regulations judicial pay may be included with other pay for the purpose of calculating the maximum amount of deputation allowance payable.

ORDERED also that it be published in the Gazette of India for general information.

No. 2451-Est.-A.—Major H. H. F. M. Tyler, C.I.E., Indian Army Reserve of Officers, on special duty under the orders of the Hon'ble the Political Resident in the Persian Gulf, was granted privilege leave for four months and four days combined with furlough on half average salary for six months and thirteen days, under Articles 232, 233(a), 260 and 301, Civil Service Regulations, with effect from the 18th September, 1920.

The 7th September, 1921.

No. 1384-G.—In exercise of the powers conferred by section 3 of the Indian Passport Act, 1920 (XXXIV of 1920), the Governor General in Council is pleased to make the following rules.

1. These rules may be called the Indian Passport Rules, 1921.

2. In these rules, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context;........
"Competent Authority" means any person authorised by order in writing by the Governor General in Council or by the Local Government to exercise the powers of a Competent Authority under these rules.

3. Subject to the provisions hereinafter contained no person proceeding from any place outside India shall enter British India by sea unless he is in possession of a passport.

Explanation.—A person entering British India by sea shall not be deemed to be proceeding from a place outside India by reason only of the fact that he has traversed extra-territorial waters in the course of his journey.

4. Every such passport—

(i) shall have been issued or renewed not more than two years previously by or on behalf of the Government of the country of which the person to whom it relates is a subject;

(ii) shall, except in the case of passports issued to Pardanashin or Gosha women travelling to British India from Malaya, the Straits Settlements, the East African Protectorate, Uganda, Zanzibar, Mauritius, the Nyasaland Protectorate, the Union of South Africa, or Mesopotamia, or from any port in the Persian Gulf, have affixed to it a photograph of the person to whom it relates, duly authenticated by the issuing authority;

(iii) when issued by or on behalf of His Majesty's Government or the Government of any British possession shall be specifically valid for entry into any part of the British Empire or shall have been specifically endorsed by a competent British authority as valid for entry into British India;

(iv) when issued by or on behalf of the government of a foreign country shall have been endorsed by way of visa for British India by the proper British Diplomatic, Consular or Military Authority in that country. Such visas shall be either:—

(a) valid for any number of journeys to India during a period of twelve months after issue, in which case they may be called ordinary visas; or

(b) valid for one journey to India within two months of the date of issue, in which case they may be called single journey visas.

5. (1) The following persons and classes of persons shall be exempted from the provisions of Rule 3:—

(a) persons whose age is in the opinion of the competent authority less than 15 years,

(b) members of His Majesty's Naval, Military or Air Forces or of the Indian Marine Service entering British India on duty, and members of the families of any such person when accompanying such person to British India on a government transport,

(c) natives of India proceeding from the Federated Malay States or the Straits Settlements,

(d) persons proceeding from any port in a foreign possession in India, or in Ceylon,

(e) bonâ fide Mohamedan pilgrims returning from Jeddah or Basra,

(f) persons or classes of persons specified in this behalf by the Governor-General in Council or by a Local Government, or by a competent authority.

(2) In specifying any person or class of persons in accordance with the provisions of clause (f) of sub-rule (1), the Governor-General in Council, or the Local Government, or the competent authority may prescribe any conditions to which the exemption of such person or class of persons from the provisions of rule 3 shall be subject.

6. Any person who—

(a) enters British India in contravention of the provisions of rule 3, or

(b) does any act in contravention of any condition prescribed under sub-rule (2) of rule 5, shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months, or with fine, or with both.

7. Any person who attempts to commit or abets or attempts to abet the commission of any offence punishable under rule 6 shall be punishable in like manner as if he had committed the offence.

No. 1385-G.—In pursuance of sub-section (1) of section 2 of the Defence of India (Criminal Law Amendment) Act, 1915 (IV of 1915), the Governor-General in Council is pleased to cancel the Defence of India (Passport) Rules, 1917.

No. 2453-Est.-A.—Major H. H. Thorburn, C.I.E., Indian Medical Service, an Agency Surgeon, is posted as Civil Surgeon, Quetta, with effect from the 16th August 1921.

No. 612-R.—In pursuance of Regulation (3) of the 'Regulations for the appointment of Representative Members' forming Part IV of the First Regulations appended to the Constitution of the Chamber of Princes, published with the Notification of the Government of India in the Foreign and Political Department, No. 262-R., dated the 8th February 1921, and amended by Notifications No. 321-R., dated the 16th March 1921, and No. 353-R., dated the 13th April 1921, His Excellency the Viceroy is pleased to direct that the States in the Bombay Presidency including the State of Sandur in the Madras Presidency, specified in Part I of the Appendix to Regulation IV shall be divided into four groups for the purposes of the aforesaid Regulation (3) as follows:—

Group I.—Kathiawar States—Lakhtar, Sayla, Chuda, Vala, Jasdan, Manavadar, Thana-Devli, Vadia, Lathi, Muli, Bajana, Virpur, Malia, Kotda-Sangaini, Jetpur, Bilkha, Patdi.

Group II.—Northern States—Pol Kadana Thared.

Group III.—Central States—Bhor, Akalkot, Aundh, Phaltan, Jath, Surgana.

Group IV.—Southern States—Miraj (Senior), Miraj (Junior), Jamkhandi, Kurundwad (Senior), Ramdurg, Savanur, and Sandur (in Madras).

No. 613-R.—In pursuance of Regulation (5) of the 'Regulations for the appointment of Representative Members' forming Part IV of the First Regulations appended to the Constitution of the Chamber of Princes published with the Notification of the Government of India in the Foreign and Political Department, No. 262-R., dated the 8th February 1921, and amended by Notifications No. 321-R., dated the 16th March 1921, and No. 353-R., dated the 13th April 1921, His Excellency the Viceroy has approved of the following Rules for the election of Representative Members by the Rulers of States specified in Part I of the Appendix to Regulation IV, being Ruling Chiefs of the Bombay Presidency and the Sandur State in the Madras Presidency, namely:—

1. The States of the Bombay Presidency including the State of Sandur in the Madras Presidency, as specified in Part I of the Appendix to Regulation IV are divided for purposes of representation into four groups as described in the Notification of the Government of India in the Foreign and Political Department, No. 612-R., dated the 5th September 1921.

2. (i) Each group shall return one Representative Member.

(ii) The Returning Officer for each group shall be the Officer shown in the Schedule.

3. Each of the Ruling Chiefs of the States specified in the said groups shall, provided that he is ruling over his own State, be (i) eligible for election as a Representative Member for his group, and (ii) entitled to vote at an election of a Representative Member for his group. Such Ruling Chiefs are herewith referred to as 'electors.'

4. When it becomes necessary to hold an election the Governor of Bombay shall appoint a date (hereinafter referred to as the appointed date) before which nomination papers must be presented to the Returning Officer and also a date (hereinafter referred to as the polling date) on which a poll shall be taken, should one be necessary under the provisions of Rule (10). The appointment of these dates shall be notified in the Bombay Government Gazette and copies of the notifications shall be sent to each elector.

5. (i) Nomination papers in form I shall be supplied by the Returning Officer to each elector.

(ii) Nominations shall be made by means of nomination papers in the prescribed form.

(iii) Every nomination paper shall be subscribed by two electors as proposer and seconder and shall be signed by the candidate in token of his assent to the nomination.

(iv) There shall be a separate nomination paper for each candidate.

6. Every nomination paper shall be presented duly subscribed and signed to the Returning Officer at his office, either by the proposer or the seconder before the appointed date, provided that a candidate may be nominated by means of a nomination paper duly subscribed and signed and sent by registered post so as to reach the Returning Officer before the appointed date.

7. Nomination papers which are not received by the Returning Officer before the appointed date shall be rejected.

8. (i) On the appointed date, and at a time to be fixed and notified to the electors by the Returning Officer at least a week beforehand, any candidate, proposer or seconder may attend at the office of the Returning Officer for the purpose of scrutinising the nomination papers which have been received.

(ii) After such scrutiny any candidate, proposer or seconder may, on the appointed date, lodge an objection in writing to any nomination on the ground that it is not valid under the rules.

(iii) The Returning Officer shall decide all objections which may be made in accordance with clause (ii) of this rule and shall himself examine the nomination papers and may, on his own motion, reject any nomination paper on the ground that it is not valid under the rules. The decision of the Returning Officer shall in every case be endorsed by him on the nomination paper in question.

9. If only one candidate is duly nominated such candidate shall be declared duly elected. If no candidate is duly nominated proceedings under these rules shall commence afresh.

10. If more candidates than one are duly nominated the Returning Officer shall forthwith publish in the Bombay Government Gazette and at his own office the names of the candidates and a poll shall be taken at his office on the polling day between hours to be fixed by the Returning Officer, and notified by him to the electors at least a week beforehand.

11. If, in the event of a poll becoming necessary under rule 10, any duly nominated candidate should die before the polling date, all proceedings taken with reference to the election shall be annulled and proceedings under these rules shall commence afresh.

12. The Returning Officer shall preside over the poll and voting shall be by ballot.

13. Votes shall be recorded on voting papers in form II which shall be supplied to each elector by the Returning Officer. The names of the candidates shall be entered in the voting papers before they are issued.

14. Each elector shall have one vote. Electors shall make a cross in the voting paper against the name of the candidate for whom they desire to vote.

15. Any elector may send his vote by registered post. In such cases the voting paper shall be enclosed in a sealed cover addressed to the Returning Officer by name, and this cover shall be accompanied by a separate letter signed by the elector. The sealed cover and the accompanying letter shall be enclosed in an outer cover which shall be addressed to the Returning Officer.

16. On the polling day between the hours fixed by the Returning Officer for the poll:

(I) the electors who attend and desire to vote shall place their voting papers in the ballot-box in the presence of the Returning Officer, and

(II) in the case of voting papers received by post, the Returning Officer shall examine the letter accompanying the inner sealed cover, and shall permit any elector, who desires to do so, to examine the said letter, and shall, if satisfied that it is genuine, endorse it as "accepted," open the sealed cover and place the voting paper in the ballot-box.

17. At the hour prescribed for the closing of the poll the Returning Officer shall—

(i) open the ballot-box,

(ii) examine the voting papers and reject any paper

(a) which is not duly marked,

(b) on which the elector has recorded more votes than one, or,

(c) which bears any mark by which the elector might be identified,

and shall endorse the word "rejected" on any voting paper so rejected together with the grounds for rejection,

(iii) count the valid votes given to each candidate and declare the election of the candidate to whom most valid votes have been given, provided that any elector present shall be entitled to claim a scrutiny in which case the electors present shall appoint one of their numbers who shall, with the assistance of the Returning Officer, recount the votes recorded,

(iv) upon the completion of the counting, seal up in separate packets the accepted and the rejected voting papers,

(v) prepare and certify a return setting forth—

(a) the names of the persons for whom the valid votes were given,

(b) the number of valid votes given for each person,

(c) the number of voting papers rejected,

(vi) permit any candidate to take a copy of or an extract from the return.

18. In the event of a tie between two or more candidates lots shall be drawn between them in the presence of the Returning Officer and in such manner as he may determine and the candidate successful in the drawing shall be declared elected.

19. The Returning Officer shall without delay report the result of the proceedings under rules (9) (17) (iii) or (18) to the Governor and the name of the candidate elected shall be published in the Gazette.

20. The Returning Officer after making the report under rule (19) shall retain in his custody the packets referred to in rule 17 (iv) and the return referred to in rule 17 (v).

21. While in the custody of the Returning Officer the packets of voting papers shall not be opened except under the orders of the Viceroy in connection with an objection lodged under rule 23.

22. The Returning Officer shall retain the packets for a year and shall then, unless otherwise directed by the Viceroy, cause them to be destroyed.

23. Any candidate or elector may, within 14 days from the date on which the result of the election has been published in the Gazette, present an objection to the Returning Officer for submission to the Viceroy on any matter connected with the election.

RESOLUTION.

AGRICULTURE.

Simla, the 8th September, 1921.

1117-327.—In the Resolution of the Department of Revenue and Agriculture No. 949-151, dated the 2nd October 1919, as supplemented by Resolution No. 1301, dated the 11th December 1919, the Government of India announced their decision to appoint a Committee to investigate the problems of sugarcane cultivation and sugar manufacture in India.

2. The Committee assembled at Delhi on the 26th October 1919, under the presidency of Mr. J. MacKenna, C.I.E., I.C.S., Agricultural Adviser to the Government of India, and included the following members:—

Mr. F. NOYCE, C.B.E., I.C.S., Vice-President.

Mr. J. W. MACDONALD of Messrs. Henry Tate and Sons, Limited, Sugar Refiners, London and Liverpool.

Mr. W. W. CRAIB, late Sugar Planter, Demerara and Cuba.

Sir FRANK CARTER, Kt., C.I.E., C.B.E., of Messrs. Turner, Morrison and Company, Calcutta.

Sirdar JOGENDRA SINGH, Taluqdar of Oudh.

Mr. B. J. PADSHAH of Messrs. Tata Sons and Company, Limited, Bombay.

Mr. M. WYNNE SAYER of the Indian Agricultural Service.

Mr. A. B. SHAKESPEAR, C.I.E., of Messrs. Begg, Sutherland and Company, Cawnpore, co-opted member for the whole of Upper India and Burma.

Mr. A. E. GILLIAT, I.C.S., acted as Secretary to the Committee.

Mr. A. B. Shakespear found it possible to accompany the Committee during only a brief portion of its tour in the United Provinces, and it proved impossible to co-opt a representative of the industry in Southern India.

Mr. MacKenna ceased to be President of the Committee on the 26th April 1920, on his appointment as Development Commissioner, Burma, and was succeeded by Mr. Noyce. Mr. G. Clarke, Agricultural Chemist and Principal of the Agricultural College, United Provinces, was appointed to the Committee on May 12th to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Mr. MacKenna who, however, rejoined as a member of the Committee from August 21st to September 23rd, 1920. The tour of the Committee extended to all the provinces except Baluchistan, Ajmer-Merwara, Coorg and Delhi and to the States of Hyderabad and Mysore; it also included a visit of nearly a month's duration to Java.

3. The Committee's report has now been received and will be published immediately. Pending consideration of the recommendations contained in the report the Government of India take this opportunity of acknowledging the valuable services rendered by Messrs. MacKenna and Noyce and by the other members of the Committee, and the care and ability bestowed by them on a thorough examination of the whole subject which was entrusted to their investigations.

ORDERED that a copy of the Resolution, together with a copy of the report, be communicated to all Local Governments and Administrations, to the Agricultural Adviser to the Government of India, to all the gentlemen mentioned in paragraph 2 of the Resolution, and to the Finance, Home, Public Works, Legislative, Commerce, Industries, Education, Railway, Army and Foreign and Political Departments, for information.

ORDERED also that the Resolution be published in the Gazette of India for general information.

PART V.

Bills introduced in the Council of State and Legislative Assembly, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council and Assembly and Bills published under Rule 18 of the Indian Legislative Rules.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Council of State on the 6th September, 1921:—

No. 6 OF 1921.

A Bill to provide that, when fire-arms are used for the purpose of dispersing an assembly, preliminary warning shall, in certain circumstances, be given.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide in the manner hereinafter appearing that warning shall, in certain circumstances, be given before an assembly is fired on for the purpose of causing such assembly to disperse; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Code of Criminal Procedure (Amendment) Act, 192 .

Insertion of new section 131-A. in Act V of 1898.

2. To the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, after section 131, the following section shall be added, namely:— V of 1898.

Use of fire-arms after warning.

"131-A. Where under the provisions of this Chapter any person determines to disperse any such assembly by the use of fire-arms, such person shall, before directing that the assembly be fired on, warn the assembly by such means, if any, as may be available at the moment that, unless it disperses forthwith, it will be fired on."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to give effect to the principle stated in part (v) of the Resolution moved by the Hon'ble Mr. V. Srinivasa Sastri on the 3rd March, 1921, in the Council of State, viz., that when fire-arms are used for the purpose of dispersing an assembly, preliminary warning should, where possible, be given.

Executive instructions to this effect are already in existence, but, in view of the terms of the Resolution, it is considered desirable to amend the law so as to meet the recommendation made by the Council of State, which was accepted by Government.

No. 7 OF 1921.

A Bill further to amend the Cattle-trespass Act, 1871.

I of 1871.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Cattle-trespass Act, 1871; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Cattle-trespass (Amendment) Act, 192 .

(2) This section shall come into force at once.

(3) The rest of the Act shall come into force in any Province or part thereof on such date as the Local Government may, by notification in the local official Gazette, appoint.

Substitution of new section for section 12, Act I of 1871.

2. For section 12 of the Cattle-trespass Act, 1871, the following section shall be substituted, namely:— I of 1871.

Fines for cattle impounded.

"12. For every head of cattle impounded as aforesaid, the pound-keeper shall levy a fine in accordance with the scale for the time being prescribed by the Local Government in this behalf by notification in the official Gazette. Different scales may be prescribed for different local areas.

All fines so levied shall be sent to the Magistrate of the District through such officer as the Local Government may direct.

A list of the fines and of the rates of charge for feeding and watering cattle shall be posted in a conspicuous place on or near to every pound."

Repeal.

3. Section 5 of the Cattle-trespass Act (1871) Amendment Act, 1891, is hereby repealed. I of 1891.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of the Bill is to amend section 12 of the Cattle-trespass Act, 1871 (I of 1871), so as to give discretion to the Local Governments to regulate the scale of fines to be imposed for the cattle impounded, according to the varying circumstances of each province by notifications to be issued from time to time. At present a fixed scale is laid down, and Local Governments can only vary the fines by doubling them in the case of habitual trespass. The scale was fixed in 1871, and is regarded as now out of date. It is further considered that control over the scale of fines to be levied should in this respect be devolved upon Local Governments, so as to afford greater elasticity in the administration of the Act.

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 5th September, 1921;—

No. 17 OF 1921.

A Bill further to amend the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881.

XXVI of 1881.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Negotiable Instruments (Amendment) Act, 192 , Amendment of sections 63 and 83, Act XXVI of 1881.

2. In sections 63 and 83 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881 (hereinafter referred to as "the said Act"), for the word "twenty-four" the word "forty-eight" shall be substituted.

XXVI of 1888.

Amendment of section 75-A, Act XXVI of 1881.

3. In section 75-A of the said Act for the words "for payment" the words "for acceptance or payment" shall be substituted.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881 (XXVI of 1881), was recently amended by the addition of section 75-A, on the lines of section 46(i) of the English Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, so as to make provision excusing delay in making presentment for payment when the delay is caused by circumstances beyond the control of the holder. It is now considered desirable that section 75-A should be extended in its scope so as to excuse delay in presentment for acceptance.

2. It has been represented that the time-limit imposed by the Act within which bills are to be accepted after presentment is too short and causes considerable inconvenience and hardship. It is accordingly proposed to amend sections 63 and 83 of the Act so as to extend the time-limit laid down therein from twenty-four hours to forty-eight hours.

The object of the present Bill is to give effect to the above proposals.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 5th September, 1921 :—

No. 18 OF 1921.

A Bill further to amend the Carriers Act, 1865, in order to empower the Governor General in Council to make by notification additions to the Schedule to that Act, and to free a common carrier from liability under that Act for loss or damage, arising from the negligence of himself or of any of his agents or servants, in respect of any property which, being of the value of over one hundred rupees and of the description contained in the Schedule to that Act, has not been declared in accordance with the provisions of section 3.

III of 1865.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Carriers Act, 1865, in manner hereinafter appearing; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Carriers (Amendment) Act, 192 .

Amendment of section 8, Act III of 1865.

2. In section 8 of the Carriers Act, 1865 (hereinafter called "the said Act"),—

(1) the words "negligence or" shall be omitted, and

(2) after the words "agents or servants" the following words shall be added, namely :—

"and shall also be liable to the owner for loss or damage to any such property, other than property to which the provisions of section 3 apply and in respect of which the declaration required by that section has not been made, where such loss or damage has arisen from the negligence of the carrier or any of his agents or servants."

Insertion of new section 11 in Act III of 1865.

3. After section 10 of the said Act the following section shall be added, namely :—

Power to Governor General in Council to add to the Schedule.

"11. The Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, add to the list of articles contained in the Schedule to this Act, and the Schedule shall, on the issue of any such notification, be deemed to have been amended accordingly."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

It has been represented that the benefits conferred upon the common carrier by section 3 of the Indian Carriers Act (III of 1865), are to a large extent rendered nugatory by the provision of section 8 of the same Act, and that whereas the Indian Railways Act, 1890 (IX of 1890), allows the Government of India to add to the Schedule of excepted articles other articles of special value, the Indian Carriers Act has no such provision, with the result that the Schedule to the Act does not at present include such expensive commodities as opium, jade, amber, hemp, rubber and feathers. The object of the present Bill is to modify the liability of the common carrier, on the lines of the English Carriers Act of 1830, in the case of scheduled articles not declared under section 3 of the Act, for loss or damage arising from negligence on his part or on that of his agents or servants, his responsibility in respect of criminal acts remaining as at present, and to take power to make additions to the Schedule.

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 5th September, 1921 :—

No. 19 OF 1921.

A Bill further to amend the Indian Post Office Act, 1898.

VI of 1898.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Indian Post Office Act, 1898 ; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Indian Post Office (Amendment) Act, 192 .

VI of 1898.

Amendment of section 24, Act VI of 1898.

2. In section 24 of the Indian Post Office Act, 1898 (hereinafter referred to as the said Act), the third proviso shall be omitted.

Insertion of a new section 24-A in Act VI of 1898.

3. After section 24 of the said Act, the following section shall be inserted, namely :—

Power to deliver such articles to Customs authority.

"24-A. The Governor General in Council may, by general or special order, empower any officer of the Post Office, specified in such order, to deliver any postal article, received from beyond the limits of British India and suspected to contain anything liable to duty, to such Customs authority as may be specified in the said order, and such Customs authority shall deal with such article in accordance with the provisions of the Sea Customs Act, 1878, or of any other law for the time being in force."

VIII of 1878.

Amendment of section 67, Act VI of 1898.

4. In section 67 of the said Act, after the words "this Act" the words "or of any other Act for the time being in force" shall be inserted.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Clause 206 of the Indian Post and Telegraph Guide, which is based on Article 16, clause 3(2), of the Principal Convention of Rome, prohibits the transmission by the Foreign letter post of articles liable to customs duty. For many years past it has been realised that this prohibition is being systematically evaded and the loss in customs duty has now been found to be very considerable.

The present method of assessing to duty dutiable articles contained in the letter post is prescribed by section 24 of the Post Office Act, 1898 (VI of 1898). Under the third proviso to this section Customs authorities are empowered to detain and open parcels at the port of entry for the purpose of levying duties of customs. In practice, parcels are assessed at the principal customs port which is nearest to the place of destination, i.e., all parcels are not detained at the port of landing, but many are forwarded to other customs ports for the purpose of assessment before transmission to the destination. A similar procedure is not, however, authorised in respect of the Foreign letter mail the treatment of which is strictly limited by section 24 and the first two provisos to that section. Under this section letters must be sent to the post office of delivery, and on arrival there, those suspected to contain dutiable articles must be opened in the presence of the addressees for the purpose of assessment. Postal officials, however, cannot be expected to be expert in the matter of appraisement, and consequently, in up-country stations, where expert customs assistance is not available, it is certain that Government suffers a heavy loss of revenue. It is accordingly proposed to amend sections 24 and 67 of the Post Office Act, 1898, so as to empower the Postal authorities to detain at the port of landing or other place at which they may be received any postal articles suspected to contain anything liable to customs duty, and to hand them over to the Customs authorities to be dealt with in accordance with the provisions of the Sea Customs Act, 1878 (VIII of 1878), or of any other law for the time being in force.

No. 20 OF 1921.

A Bill further to amend the Indian Marine Act, 1887.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Indian Marine Act, 1887; It is hereby enacted as follows :— XIV of 1887.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Indian Marine (Amendment) Act, 192 .

Amendment of section 52 (1), Act XIV of 1887.

Amendment of section 66 (2), Act XIV of 1887.

3. In sub-section (2) of section 66 of the said Act, the words "with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council" shall be omitted.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Section 52 (1) of the Indian Marine Act, 1887, requires the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council to the assembly of an Indian Marine Court for the trial of a gazetted Officer of the Royal Indian Marine. In order to obtain the necessary personnel for the trial of a Royal Indian Marine Officer, it is usually necessary that two ships should be in port at the same time; especially in view of the fact that the Commander of the ship on which the accused is serving is generally the prosecutor and consequently not available as a member of the Court. It has happened in the past that the delay consequent on having to obtain the sanction of the Governor General in Council has resulted in an opportunity for the assembly of the Court having been missed. This necessitates a delay which may extend to several weeks before another opportunity arises. To prevent lengthy periods of suspense to the accused and to obviate this decided inconvenience, it is considered necessary to confer on the Director, Royal Indian Marine, power to convene the Courts in question. The power to confirm the sentences awarded by such Courts will, however, remain with the Governor General in Council as at present.

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 5th September, 1921 :—

No. 21 OF 1921.

A Bill further to amend the Indian Works of Defence Act, 1903.

VII of 1903. WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Indian Works of Defence Act, 1903 ; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title. 1. This Act may be called the Indian Works of Defence (Amendment) Act, 192 .

VII of 1903. Amendment of section 2, Act VII of 1903. 2. In section 2 of the Indian Works of Defence Act, 1903 (hereinafter referred to as the said Act), for clauses (c) and (d), the following clauses shall be substituted, namely :—

"(c) the expression "District" means one of the Districts into which India is, for military purposes for the time being, divided; it includes a Brigade area which does not form part of any District, and any area which the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, declare to be a District for all or any of the purposes of this Act :

(d) the expression "General Officer Commanding the District" means the officer for the time being in command of the forces in a District."

3. In section 7 of the said Act—

Amendment of section 7, Act VII of 1903.

(a) in sub-clauses (i) and (iv) of clause (a), in the first proviso to sub-clause (i) of clause (b), and in sub-clause (ii) of clause (b), for the words "General Officer Commanding the Division" the words "General Officer Commanding the District" shall be substituted ; and

(b) in the first proviso to sub-clause (ii) of clause (a) and in the second proviso to sub-clause (i) of clause (b), for the words "General Officer Commanding the Division, District or Brigade" the words "General Officer Commanding the District" shall be substituted.

Repeal. 4. So much of the Schedule to the Amending (Army) Act, 190., as relates to the said Act, is hereby repealed.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The amendments of the Indian Works of Defence Act, 1903, which are embodied in this Bill, are of a purely formal nature, and are necessitated by the recent change in the organisation of the Army in India.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 hours on Wednesday, the 7th September 1921, based on the Indian Daily Weather Reports of the period.

1. During the past week the monsoon has been stronger than usual, but the distribution of rainfall has been uneven. This was owing to the rainfall having been controlled by two depressions. The first of these formed in the north of the Bay and slowly developed into a storm, which crossing the Orissa coast reached the southeast of Rajputana towards the end of the week. The second depression was of an extremely unusual type: it formed over Gujarat on the 2nd and moved into the Arabian Sea by the morning of the 4th. Under the influence of these two depressions rainfall was practically concentrated in the belt of country from Orissa to Sind and Gujarat. At the end of the week the monsoon extended into the Punjab.

2. Burma.—In Lower Burma rainfall was nearly general between the 31st and 4th, and local on the other days; in Upper Burma rain fell locally on the 31st, 1st, 2nd, 4th and 5th, and at a few stations on the remaining days.

Northeast India, including Orissa.—Nearly general rain fell in Bengal on the 5th and 6th, in Bihar on the 5th, in Orissa between the 1st and 6th, and in Chota Nagpur on the 2nd, 3rd, 5th and 6th; rainfall occurred locally or at a few stations during the rest of the week in Bengal, Orissa and Chota Nagpur, and on four other days in Bihar. In Assam there was local rain on the 4th and 5th, with a few falls on two other days.

The United Provinces, Central India and the Central Provinces.—There was nearly general rain in the United Provinces East on the 31st, in the United Provinces West on the 31st and 1st, in Central India West on the 31st, 1st, 2nd, 4th, 5th and 6th, in Central India East on the 31st, 1st and 3rd, in the Central Provinces West on the 1st, 3rd, 4th, 5th and 6th, in the Central Provinces East between the 1st and 6th; rain fell locally or at a few stations during the remaining day or days in the Central Provinces and the United Provinces West, on two other days in Central India East and on four other days in the United Provinces East.

Northwest India.—Rainfall was nearly general in Sind on the 5th, in Rajputana East on the 2nd and 4th, and in Gujarat on the 2nd and 3rd; it occurred locally or at a few stations on three other days in Rajputana East and during the rest of the week in Gujarat. There was local rain in the east and west Punjab on the 2nd and 6th, and in Rajputana West on the 2nd, 3rd, 4th and 6th, with a few falls in the former area on two other days. There was no rain in the southwest Punjab; over the rest of the division rain was limited to a few scattered falls.

The Peninsula.—Nearly general rain fell in the Konkan on all days, in Malabar on the 31st, 1st, 2nd, 5th and 6th, in Hyderabad North on the 2nd, in Mysore on the 31st and 2nd, and on the north Madras coast on the 1st and 2nd; rainfall occurred locally or at a few stations on the remaining days in Malabar and Mysore, on two other days in Hyderabad North and on three other days on the north Madras coast. There was local rain in the Bombay Deccan and Hyderabad South on the 1st; a few falls occurred on five other days in the former area and on four other days in the latter. The week was rainless in the Madras Deccan, while in southeast Madras a few scattered falls occurred.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday, 3rd September, 1921.

Burma.—The rainfall during the week was general in Lower Burma. In Upper Burma the fall was satisfactory. Cultivation of the main rice crop is progressing in Lower and Upper Burma. Reaping of early sesamum and gathering of maize and millets continue in Upper Burma Standing crops are satisfactory. More rain is still needed in the dry zone. Cattle are generally healthy. The price of unhusked rice was Rs. 255 to 260 and of white rice (specials) Rs. 620 per hundred baskets.

Assam.—The weather is generally seasonable. Harvesting of autumn rice and jute, plucking of tea, and transplanting of winter rice continue. Prospects of tea and winter rice and outturn of autumn rice and jute are fair. Cattle disease is reported from three districts. The price of common rice rose slightly.

Bengal.—The rainfall was generally moderate to heavy. Transplantation of winter paddy is progressing briskly. Prospects are generally hopeful. Harvesting of autumn paddy is nearly completed and that of jute is much advanced in east and north Bengal. Elsewhere the operations are progressing satisfactorily. The average price of common rice has risen by 0·4 per cent.

Bihar and Orissa.—The rainfall during the week was general over the Province, the fall being heavy in Saran, Angul and in parts of Patna, Shahabad, Monghyr, Bhagalpur and Hazaribagh and light to moderate elsewhere. Transplantation of winter paddy is going on. Harvesting of bhadoi crops has commenced in some districts. Standing crops are doing well. 7,755 persons received gratuitous relief in Puri (including 180 persons on relief from the District Charitable Fund) and 177 persons in Cuttack. The price of common rice has risen in two districts, fallen in six and remained stationary in the remainder. The average price of local common rice at headquarters was 5·92 seers a rupee against 5·79 seers in the preceding week and that of maize was 7·60 seers a rupee against 6·79 seers in the preceding week. Cattle disease is reported from sixteen districts. The condition of standing crops in the Feudatory States of Orissa and Chota Nagpur is good.

United Provinces.—During the week rain fell throughout the Provinces. Slight damage by excessive rain and flood is reported from some districts. Preparation of land for spring crops, weeding of autumn crops and harvesting of extra crops are going on. Standing crops are doing well. Prospects are favourable. The condition of agricultural stock is good but cattle disease still exists. Fodder, water and market supplies are sufficient. Prices are still high.

The weekly report on scarcity in Garhwal, Almora and Mirzapur is as follows:—The rainfall was again good in affected tracts. Autumn operations are in progress. Standing crops are flourishing. Prospects are generally favourable. Agricultural stock is in satisfactory condition and no cattle disease is reported. Fodder and water are sufficient. Markets are generally well supplied but in the interior and in the south of Mirzapur stocks are reported to be insufficient. Steps are being taken to increase import. No relief works are now needed. Prices are stationary Price basis:—Garhwal 2 to 3½ seers, Almora 2 to 3 seers and Mirzapur 4 to 7 seers per rupee. Advances for importation of grain and subsistence takavi in Garhwal and Almora continue. Steps are being taken in Mirzapur. No wandering or immigration is reported. Emaciation is expected to disappear from the south of Mirzapur as soon as the autumn crops are harvested. The public health is generally good, though some cholera still exists Malaria is reported from parts of Almora. Free distribution of quinine in malarial tracts is being made. Numbers relieved :—Mirzapur—poor-house 110, gratuitous 12,947, total 13,057; Garhwal—gratuitous 2,833; Almora—gratuitous 921; grand total 16,811. Private charity is practically exhausted in Garhwal where the District Committee is unable to meet the demand for clothing. Funds are being realised in Mirzapur to supply clothing for the needy in the south.

Punjab.—Light showers which were useful for standing autumn crops and spring sowings fell in nearly all the reporting districts. The condition of sugarcane, cotton and other standing crops is generally normal. Sowings of gram, toria, taramira, and vegetables have been commenced in a few districts. Dry fodder is scarce. Green grass is available. Cattle are generally in fair condition. Water is sufficient. Prices are generally stationary. They are generally above scarcity rates. No test work was opened during the week. Stocks of foodgrains are insufficient except in a few districts. Price of wheat :—Ferozepore 3¾, Lahore, 4⅛, Rawalpindi 3½ and Ambala and Lyallpur 4¼ seers per rupee.

North West Frontier Province.—Light showers fell in parts. Autumn crops, oilseeds and vegetables are being sown. The condition of standing crops is promising. Picking of cotton is in progress in one district. Scarcity of fodder and water prevails in one district. Wheat is selling in Peshawar at 4⅛ seers and in Dera Ismail Khan at 3 7/16 seers per rupee.

Jammu.—Slight rain fell during the week in some parts. Prices are rising. Fodder is insufficient.

Kashmir.—The week was generally rainless. Standing crops are in good condition. No disease is reported. Fodder is sufficient. Prices are high.

Baluchistan.—Report not received.

Rajputana.—The rainfall during the week was scanty throughout Rajputana and Ajmer-Merwara except Karauli, where the maximum fall reported was 6 inches. The sky remains cloudy. Weeding continues. Standing crops are in good condition but require more rain. Irrigation from wells is in progress in Merwara. Damage to crops from caterpillers is reported from places in Marwar. Fodder is insufficient in Kishengarh. Cattle disease exists in Tonk. Cholera is reported in the Karauli town and in parts of Kotah. Malaria is prevailing in parts of Karauli. Prices are fallng in Dungarpur and rising in Jodhpur, Dholpur and Karauli.

Central India.—The rainfall during the week was general. It was sufficient only in the Rampura-Bhanpura district, Khargon mahal, Dewas (Junior) and in some parts of Rutlam. Weeding continues. Land is being prepared for spring crops in Dewas (Junior), Jamra Piploda and Manpur. The condition of standing crops is fair to good except in some mahals of the Rampura-Bhanpura district. Crops are in danger of being damaged in the Rampura-Bhanpura district for want of rain. The condition of agricultural stock is fair to good except in the Rampura-Bhanpura district. Cattle disease prevails in parts of Rewa and Jaso. Fodder is insufficient in the Rampura-Bhanpura district and in Khargon mahal. Prices are high.

The weekly report on famine in Rewa is as follows:—The number of persons in receipt of gratuitous relief was 2,080 in Deosar. Poor-houses had 779 inmates. Poor-houses and relief in Deosar will be stopped at the end of September. Prices are stationary. The condition of the people is fair.

Gwalior.—The rainfall during the week was sufficient. The condition of standing crops is good. Prices of food grains are high Central Provinces.—The weather has been cloudy and rainy. Moderate to heavy rain was received in all districts except Akola and Amraoti, ranging from half an inch in Yeotmal to twelve inches in Seoni. Harvesting of minor crops has commenced in parts of five districts. The condition of all standing crops is, at present, good and prospects are bright. Weeding of autumn crops and preparation of land for the sowing of spring crops continue. Fodder and water are ample. Cattle are generally in good condition. Fluctuations are irregular in prices which still rule high.

Feudatory States.—Light to moderate rain fell in the States. Transplantation of rice is nearing completion and weeding is in full swing.

The weekly report on famine and scarcity is as follows:—Rain varying from 1·07 inches in Nagpur to 3·40 inches in Mandla was received in all infected districts except Betul, Chhindwara, Chanda, Drug and Raipur where rain less than one inch was received. Early crops are being harvested in the Jubbulpore, Damoh, Betul and Chhindwara districts. The number of persons on relief work fell from 24,383 to 20,959, and of those in receipt of gratuitous relief fell from 41,646 to 28,450. Final dole has been given in Damoh, Bilaspur and the greater part of the Drug district. Mortality is normal and the public health is fair except for general prevalence of malarial fever. The price of wheat is rising in the north of the Provinces. Crime is still heavy in Mandla and normal elsewhere.

Bombay.—The rainfall during the week was heavy in parts of Gujarat, good in the Konkan and the west Deccan and elsewhere slight and partial. More rain is needed in parts of the Deccan and the Karnatak for standing crops and for the sowing of spring crops. Sowing of autumn crops has been generally completed. Transplantation continues. Standing crops have been damaged slightly in parts of Gujarat by heavy and continuous rain and are suffering from want of moisture in parts of the west Deccan and Bijapur. The fodder supply is generally sufficient. Drinking water is adequate. Water for irrigation is sufficient. Cattle are in good condition. Prices are rising.

The weekly report on famine and scarcity is as follows:—Distress continues to decrease as labourers get sufficient employment. Three works are in progress in Ahmednagar and seven in Bijapur. Gratuitous relief to the decrepit and the needy and dole to inferior village servants continue. Number on relief :—Workers—Ahmednagar 3,779 and Bijapur 5,316; dependants—Ahmednagar 1,544; gratuitous—the Panch Mahals 270, Broach 617, West Khandesh 954, Ahmednagar 11,184, Poona 4,851, Sholapur 4,079, Satara 3,358, Bijapur 4,218 and Belgaum 3,214. The condition of the people on works and in receipt of dole is good.

Hyderabad.—The rainfall during the week was scanty. The average for the Dominion was 20 cents. Standing crops are suffering owing to a break in the monsoon conditions. Autumn crops are withering and causing anxiety, while preparation for the sowing of spring crops has been retarded. More rain is urgently required. Sowing of early rice is nearing completion. Fodder and water are sufficient. Cattle disease is reported in parts of the Parbhani district. The condition of agricultural stock is improving. Prices of foodgrains continue to be high and almost stationary. Juar is selling at 3 seers in the Bir district.

The weekly report on famine for the week ending 18th August is as follows:—The rainfall during the week was scanty in the affected districts. The number of persons on relief is decreasing. Relief works are being closed gradually. Prices of foodgrains continue to be high. Juar is selling at 3½ to 6¼ seers and rice at 4½ to 7½ seers per rupee. Number on relief works 10,000, gratuitous 16,000, total 26,000.

Mysore.—The rainfall during the week was good in the Bangalore, Kolar, Mysore and Shimoga districts and light to fair elsewhere. Prices of foodgrains are generally steady. Markets are well supplied. Standing crops are in good condition. Ragi and paddy are being sown. Weeding and transplanting are in progress in parts. Prospects of the season are fair but more rain is needed in the Tumkur, Hassan, Kadur and Chitaldrug districts. Cattle are generally healthy. Water and fodder are available.

Coorg.—The rainfall during the week was moderate. Transplanting has been almost completed. Water and fodder for cattle are available. Cattle are generally healthy. The public health is fair. Prices of food grains are high.

Madras.—The rainfall during the week was very heavy in South Kanara, heavy in Salem, Malabar and the Hills, light in Bellary, Tanjore and Ramnad and fair to moderate elsewhere. Standing crops are fair generally but more rain is required in parts of Chittoor and the Deccan except Cuddapah The outturn of the harvested paddy and dry crops in parts of most distiets is generally fair. Sowings of paddy and dry crops are proceeding generally except in the Circars. The condition of cattle is good generally. Water is generally sufficient except in parts. Pasture and fodder are sufficient generally. Prices are steady. Prospects are not encouraging in parts of Kurnool and fair elsewhere. Three test works are in progress in Kurnool with an attendance of 1,623 persons and gratuitous relief was given to 266.

The weekly report on famine in Bellary and Anantapur is as follows:—Four relief works are in progress in Bellary and five in Anantapur. Distress is moderate. The number of persons relieved is gradually increasing owing to withholding of rain. Coolie classes are mostly affected. People are freely resorting to works. There is no marked foreign influx. The condition of people on relief and the public health is generally fair. No emaciation is noticeable. Relief measures are adequate. No special relief to weavers and artizans is necessary now. Grain doles and cooked food are provided by private charity in Bellary and clothing and cooked food in Anantapur. State loans are being advanced. The price of cholam in Bellary was 6·5 and in Anantapur 6·2 seers per rupee. Number on relief :—Bellary—works 11,930, gratuitous 2,782, total 14,712 and Anantapur—works 7,272, gratuitous 3,655, total 10,927.

No. 644-R.—In pursuance of Regulation (3) of the 'Regulations for the appointment of Representative Members' forming Part IV of the First Regulations appended to the Constitution of the Chamber of Princes, published with the Notification of the Government of India in the Foreign and Political Department, No. 262-R., dated the 8th February 1921, and amended by Notifications No. 321-R., dated the 16th March 1921, and No. 353-R., dated the 13th April 1921, His Excellency the Viceroy is pleased to direct that the States in Central India specified in Part V of the Appendix to Regulation IV shall constitute a single group for the purposes of the aforesaid Regulation (3).

No. 645-R.—In pursuance of Regulation (5) of the "Regulations for the appointment of Representative Members" forming Part IV of the First Regulations appended to the Constitution of the Chamber of Princes, published with the Notification of the Government of India in the Foreign and Political Department, No. 262-R., dated the 8th February 1921, and amended by Notifications No. 321-R., dated the 16th March 1921, and No. 353-R., dated the 13th April 1921, His Excellency the Viceroy has approved of the following Rules for the election of a Representative Member by the Rulers of the States specified in Part V of the Appendix to Regulation IV, being Ruling Chiefs of Central India, namely :—

(1) Each of the Ruling Chiefs specified in Part V of the Appendix to Regulation IV shall, provided that he is ruling over his own State, be (i) eligible for election as a Representative Member, and (ii) entitled to vote at an election of a Representative Member. Such Ruling Chiefs are hereinafter referred to as 'electors.'

(2) When it becomes necessary to hold an election the Agent to the Governor General in Central India shall direct Political Agents to ascertain from the electors which of them desire to stand for election, and shall appoint a date (hereinafter referred to as the appointed date) by which intimation must be given to the Political Agent concerned of the elector's desire to stand. He shall also fix a date (hereinafter referred to as the polling date) on which a poll shall be taken, if one be necessary under the provisions of Rule 6. The appointment of these dates shall be notified in Part II of the Gazette of India and copies of the notifications shall be sent to each elector through the Political Agent concerned.

(3) On the appointed date Political Agents shall forward to the Secretary to the Agent to the Governor General the names of those electors who desire to stand.

(4) No intimation of an elector's desire to stand received by the Political Agent concerned after the appointed date will be accepted.

(5) If there is only one candidate such candidate shall be declared duly elected.

(6) If there is more than one candidate, the Secretary to the Agent to the Governor-General shall forthwith inform the electors through their Political Agents of the names of the candidates and the date fixed for the poll. Such intimation shall be conveyed in duplicate, one copy of which shall be kept by the elector and the other signed by him and returned to the Secretary to the Agent to the Governor General through the Political Agent as an acknowledgment of receipt.

(7) Votes shall be recorded on voting papers in the Form appended to these Rules which shall be supplied to each elector by the Political Agent. The names of the candidates shall be entered in the voting paper before they are issued.

(8) Each elector shall have only one vote. Electors shall make a cross on the voting paper against the name of the candidate for whom they desire to vote, but shall not sign the papers.

(9) The electors shall then send their votes by registered post addressed to the Secretary to the Agent to the Governor General in Central India. Each voting paper shall be enclosed in a sealed cover, addressed to the Secretary to the Agent to the Governor General by name and this cover shall be accompanied by a separate letter signed by the elector. The sealed cover and the accompanying letter shall be enclosed in an outer cover which shall be addressed to the Secretary to the Agent to the Governor General.

(10) The Secretary shall examine the letter accompanying the inner sealed cover and shall permit any elector who desires to do so to examine the said letter and shall, if satisfied, that it is genuine, endorse the cover as "Accepted" and retain it in his personal custody.

(11) On the polling date the Secretary to the Agent to the Governor General shall—

(i) open the sealed covers ;

(ii) examine the voting papers and reject any paper—

(a) which is not duly marked,

(b) on which the elector has recorded more than one vote and shall endorse the word "Rejected" on any voting paper so rejected together with the grounds for rejection ;

(iii) count the valid votes given to each candidate, declare the election of the candidate to whom most valid votes have been given and report to the Hon'ble the Agent to the Governor General the result of the election.

In the event of a tie between 2 or more candidates lots shall be drawn between them in the presence of the Agent to the Governor General and in such manner as he may determine. The candidate successful in the drawing shall be declared elected.

(12) The name of the candidate elected shall be published in Part II of the Gazette of India.

(13) The Secretary to the Agent to the Governor General after making the report under Rule (11)(iii) shall retain the voting papers in his own custody in a sealed packet.

(14) While in the custody of the Secretary to the Agent to the Governor General the packet of the voting papers shall not be opened except under the orders of the Viceroy in connection with an objection lodged under Rule 16.

(15) The Secretary to the Agent to the Governor General shall retain the packet for a year and shall then, unless otherwise directed by the Viceroy, cause them to be destroyed.

(16) Any candidate or elector may, within 14 days from the date on which the result of the election has been published in the Gazette, present an objection to the Secretary to the Agent to the Governor General through the Political Agent concerned for submission to the Viceroy on any matter connected with the election.

Maj. & Bt. Lt.-Col. (A.-Lt.-Col.) Herbert Stuart Gaskell, D.S.O., R.E.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty whilst commanding a column operating in the Quraitu-Qisil Robat area, between the 18th and 28th August 1920. During this period, the column relieved two isolated posts, and fought three actions against a determined and numerically superior enemy. Although his troops were mainly young and untrained soldiers, he inflicted heavy casualties on the enemy, and cleared the area effectively. His many successes were mainly due to his rapid appreciation of a situation and his total disregard of danger.

Maj. & Bt. Lt.-Col. Henry Lawrence Scott, D.S.O., M.C., 1-1st (with 1-10th) Gurkha Rif., I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty on the 19th July, 1920, near Rumaitha. On his own initiative, he marched his column to the sound of the guns, and brought reinforcements at a critical moment. Later, by his capable handling of the battalion against a very superior enemy, he established a position across the river, and so enabled the whole force to get water which was urgently required. It was owing to his gallant example and bold leadership that the operations throughout the day were successful.

(D.S.O. gazetted 25th August, 1917.)

Awarded the Distinguished Service Order.

Capt. William Lewis Beales, 1-9th Inf., I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty on 19th-20th August, 1920, at Kifri. He was despatched from camp at night with two sections of his unit to reinforce a platoon which was being attacked by approximately 500 hostile tribesmen. Capt. Beales attempted to enter the village by the main street, but met with such opposition that he was compelled to withdraw. He then endeavoured to force an entrance by another route and after two hours' heavy fighting reached the platoon. Though under close fire of the enemy, he so inspired his men by his determination and absolute disregard of danger that the insurgents were forced to retire. When the officer commanding the platoon was severely wounded, he carried him under fire to a place of safety about 400 yards in rear, and then directed the retirement of his force. Had it not been for his pluck and the skilful handling of his men in face of overwhelming odds, it is doubtful whether the troops engaged would have been extricated.

Capt. & Bt. Maj. Edward Bradney, R.E.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty at Tuwariz, on the 12th October, 1920, whilst in command of a field company of Sappers and Miners, during an attempt to save a bridge from destruction by the insurgents and in the saving of another. This officer, by his daring and coolness under heavy fire at close quarters, inspired his command to a rigid determination, which was rewarded by a success of considerable importance. On all occasions, he has set a fine example of fearless leadership.

Maj. Roy Neil Boyd Campbell, O.B.E., 1-23rd Pnrs. (with 3-23rd Inf.), I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty on the 11th November, 1920, during an attack on Falbah, when his men were becoming disheartened owing to the shortage of ammunition. They were in an unfavourable position and being heavily counter-attacked at very close quarters. Regardless of danger, Maj. Campbell sprang out from cover and, shouting the Sikhs' war cry, led a successful bayonet charge with the most beneficial results. The success of this operation was mainly due to his fine example.

Maj. Harry Ernest Connop, 35th Scinde Horse, I.A.

For bold and skilful handling of two squadrons at Sufa, on the 17th October, 1920. He led two mounted attacks against the insurgents, sabreing three himself. He then seized an important tactical feature, from which considerable loss was inflicted on the enemy, and supported the main advance by machine-gun fire. Throughout his handling of the cavalry showed marked ability and power of command.

Lt. Arthur Leslie Hanna, 11th Lrs., I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty on the 11th August, 1920, at Shaik Ibrahim. He was sent up with a troop to reinforce a squadron which was heavily engaged. While passing over the open, he saw a dismounted man wave to him. He at once galloped over and found a wounded man who had been stripped of his clothing and equipment by the Arabs

While endeavouring to lift the man on to his horse the enemy opened a heavy fire, one bullet passing through his coat. Lt. Hanna got the man on to his horse and brought him safely in.

Maj. Arthur Sidney Hay, 31st Lrs., attd. 114th Mahrattas, I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty during the siege of Samawah, from July to September 1920. The situation was often critical, and the conditions under which the troops had to live were most trying owing to the intense heat and shortage of rations. Maj. Hay, by his cheerful endurance and unremitting zeal, not only overcame the many difficulties with which he had to contend, but also set a fine example of courage and devotion to duty.

Maj. Paul Fitzgerald Norbury, 34th Poona Horse, I.A., attd. Political Dept.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty during the siege of Kufah from the 20th July to 17th October, 1920. On one occasion, when a corner of the defences had been set on fire by the insurgents, Maj. Norbury and one other officer, with a small party, broke through the defences to discover the place from which the fire was originating. This party was heavily fired on by the enemy, and the other officer was killed, but Maj. Norbury remained outside until he had obtained the necessary information to enable the garrison to successfully extinguish the fire. Throughout the siege, his cheerfulness and disregard of personal danger afforded a fine example to the garrison.

Awarded a Bar to the Military Cross.

Capt. Walter Harley Crawford-Clarke, M.C., R.E. (S.R.), empld. Mes. Rlys.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty at Nail on the 18th July, 1920. During the advance of a column which was acting as escort to a train, he walked in front of the engine in order to see that the line was intact, and often came under heavy fire It was very greatly due to the courage and resource of this officer that the column was able to make a successful march.

(M.C. gazetted 26th July, 1917.)

Lt. Edward Neufville Crosse, M.C., R.F.A.

For conspicuous gallantry in action on the night of the 24th-25th July, 1920, near the Rustimiyeh Canal. During a rearguard action at night, when the infantry and cavalry were cut off from the rest of the column by Arabs, he repeatedly brought his section into action and drove off the enemy, who were attacking in superior numbers. When five of his men were wounded, he acted as one of the detachment, and thus enabled the gun to remain in action. Throughout the operations, he showed the greatest courage.

(M.C. gazetted 3rd June, 1918.)

Capt. Alfred Cyril Curtis, M.C., 45th Sikhs, I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty on the 20th July, 1920, during the relief of Rumaithah and the subsequent withdrawal. During an attack by a numerically superior force of Arabs, this officer, though severely wounded early in the operations, commanded the whole force of cavalry and infantry engaged. The enemy were constantly driven off and checked within thirty or forty yards. Capt. Curtis, by his marked ability, determination and coolness under fire, was largely instrumental in organising a successful attack, which ultimately drove the insurgents across a canal with much loss.

(M. C. gazetted 3rd July, 1915.)

Lt. Bernard Lorenzo de Robeck, M.C., R.F.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty on the night of the 24th-25th July, 1920. During the withdrawal of a column to Hillah, the rearguard was cut off by Arabs. He repeatedly brought his guns into action, and, by judicious control of fire, drove off the enemy, and thus enabled the column to advance unmolested. He set a magnificent example of courage and initiative.

(M. C. gazetted 18th January, 1918.)

Capt. John Ignatius Ennis, M.C., 1-10th Gurkha Rif., I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and skilful leadership on the 20th July, 1920, during the relief of Rumaithah, whilst second-in-command of his battalion. One of the companies of this battalion was checked, in a very exposed position, by heavy fire from a numerically superior enemy. Capt. Ennis was ordered out with a relief company to assist by covering fire in their withdrawal, and then himself to break off the action. By his skilful dispositions and determination, the forward company was able to extricate itself, at the same time bringing back all its dead and wounded, and defeating two enemy attempts to follow up. Having re-organised his force, he then successfully attacked and forced a river crossing, inflicting heavy casualties on the enemy. Throughout, he displayed the utmost bravery and disregard of personal safety, thereby setting a fine example to his command.

(M. C. gazetted 26th May, 1919.)

Lt. James Lennox Muir, M.C., 2nd Bn., R. U. Rif.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty on the 16th August, 1920, near Khaniqin Road station, when in command of a party of twenty men and a Lewis gun, which had been ordered out to relieve a wrecked train that had been subjected to heavy fire. He attacked and cleared the hill from which the insurgents were firing, and, by skilful leading and by employment of the Lewis gun, inflicted severe casualties on them. He joined forces with the train escort and brought back all wounded and stores with insignificant loss to his party. The success of this operation was mainly due to his pluck and marked ability.

(M. C. gazetted 24th June, 1916.)

Awarded the Military Cross.

T.-Lt. John Salmond Adamson, M.G.C., attd. 1-113th Inf., I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty during the defence of Tuz, 17th to 27th August, 1920. Throughout the siege, this officer inspired all ranks by his coolness and courage under fire. On one occasion he led a party to cut the dam which the insurgents had made to stop the water supply. Though counter-attacked by far superior numbers, he advanced fearlessly against the headquarters of the insurgents, beat off the counter-attack, and inflicted severe casualties. Later, when forced to retire in order to avoid being out-flanked, he conducted his withdrawal without loss. His pluck and initiative throughout were worthy of the highest praise.

Lt. (A.-Maj.) Herbert William Baker, Conn. Rang., attd. M.G.C.

For conspicuous gallantry and ability, on the 25th July, 1920, while in command of the armoured train which left Diwaniyeh conveying a day's rations through hostile country to a neighbouring force. Throughout, he was under heavy fire, fighting one action which lasted three hours, and during which he was wounded. He surmounted innumerable difficulties, and brought the train safely to its destination after dark. Later, his train acted as rearguard to the whole force, and, by his prompt and skilful action on this occasion, he saved the infantry many casualties. Throughout, his conduct was a fine example to all.

Capt. Harry Vyner Bragg, 1-16th Jats (with 1-99th Inf.), I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry, initiative and determination throughout the siege of Rumaithah, from the 3rd to the 20th July, 1920. He maintained his garrison against very heavy odds for seventeen days, though his force was repeatedly attacked by large numbers of the enemy. He set a splendid example to all ranks by his coolness and courage.

Capt. Stuart Douglas Nugent Cahusac, 10th Lrs., I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and skilful leadership on the 27th October, 1920, near Samawah. While covering the withdrawal of a small force, his squadron was heavily attacked by a large body of Arabs. By his quick grasp of the situation and by his bold leadership, Capt. Cahusac repulsed the enemy and inflicted severe casualties. Throughout, he set a fine example of courage and initiative, and skilfully withdrew his force with little loss.

Lt. Harold Desmond Corser, 1-55th Rif. (with 3-23rd Inf.), I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and determination on the 11th November, 1920, during an attack on Falbah. In face of heavy fire from the enemy, who were entrenched in a series of water cuttings, he steadily pushed forward in spite of considerable losses, and it was mainly due to his coolness and example that the company finally established itself in the southern portion of the village. In the subsequent attack, though wounded, he returned to command his company, thereby showing a splendid example of devotion to duty.

Lt. William Gordon Crask, 5th Bn., Sea. Highrs., attd. M.G.C.

For conspicuous gallantry and ability on the railway line south of Samarrah on 1st September, 1920. During operations against a party of insurgents, his armoured car was held up by damage to the line. He left his car under rifle fire, effected repairs to the line, and was thereby able to proceed down the line and cut off the retreat of a party of insurgents, whom he held to their ground till our infantry delivered its attack and inflicted heavy casualties on them. But for his action the insurgents, who were mostly mounted would have been able to escape before the infantry came up. It is largely due to his untiring energy and ability that the insurgents have been prevented from damaging the railway line between Samarrah and Beled since it was repaired on the 6th September, 1920.

2nd Lt. Edmund Frank Davies, 2nd Bn., R. U. Rif.

For bold and skilful leadership on the 7th October, 1920, during the advance on the Nahr Shah Canal. During repeated Arab attacks this officer led his men fearlessly against greatly superior numbers. His courage, initiative and resource have been most marked throughout the campaign, more especially on this occasion, when he frustrated all attempts of the enemy to break through.

Capt. Dermot Michael Dowling, 108th Inf., I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty whilst in command of the garrison of Kufah, which was besieged from the 20th July, 1920, to the 17th October, 1920. He was responsible for successfully resisting all attempts to take the town, and throughout the siege afforded a splendid example of courage and devotion to all ranks.

Ressaidar Fauja Singh, 11th Lrs., I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty on the 11th August, 1920, near Tel-Afar. While in command of the right flank guard, his troop came under heavy fire from three sides.

A number of horses were hit, including his gun team, and several casualties occurred among his men. With great coolness and skill, he withdrew his troop and Hotchkiss gun, his own horse being shot under him during this operation. While still under fire, he saw an officer fall, and at once took two horses to his assistance. One of these was shot and the other broke away, so he carried the officer to safety on his shoulders.

Capt. John Alexander Finlay, 45th Sikhs, I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and military ability on the 6th and 7th July, 1920, near Rumaithah. When commanding an advanced post, he overcame, by his initiative and bravery, a determined attack from the Arabs and ensured the advance of the column without any opposition. His courage, determination and leadership were deserving of the highest praise, and the success of the operation was due to his disregard of danger and coolness in action.

Capt. Lionel Alfred Foster, attd. 2-1st (with 1-3rd) Gurkha Rif., I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and marked ability during the attack on the pumping station at Samarrah on the 11th September, 1920. A small patrol, escorting a linesman repairing the telegraph line, having been held up about 400 yards from the pumping station, Capt. Foster with 20 rifles and two Lewis guns, was sent to reinforce and extricate it. He advanced to its relief under heavy fire until forced to retire in order to prevent the insurgents, who were in greatly superior numbers, from outflanking him and cutting him off. Further reinforcements were sent, and Capt. Foster was then able to make a successful attack on the insurgents and drive them off, thus enabling the patrol to withdraw. The boldness and skill with which he handled his men and his personal example ensured the success of the operation.

Lt. John Joseph Healy, 1st S. & M. (frmly. attd. 114th Mahrattas), I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty on the 13th July, 1920, at Rumaithah. He led two platoons of the besieged garrison in a sortie, and by his dash and skilful leading drove off the enemy and enabled the garrison to get food from the town. He displayed the greatest courage and initiative.

Capt. Edward James Hoare, 2nd Bn., R U. Rif.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty on the 26th October, 1920, at Kufah, when in command of a company in a perimeter camp, which was being heavily attacked. By his supervision of fire control and complete disregard of danger, he was mainly instrumental in inflicting great losses on the enemy.

Lt. James Herbert Douglas Hunter, 94th Inf., I.A

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty between the 14th and 31st August, 1920, at Quraghan. While in command of a bridgehead post, he repelled several attacks from a greatly superior enemy, and saved the lives of over 300 non-combatants, in addition to much valuable Government property. Again, on the 27th August, when fighting a rearguard action, he took back a small party to extricate a Vickers gun team in an overturned Ford van. The gun had jammed, and, although the enemy were within one hundred yards, he drove them off and brought the van and gun team safely back.

Lt. Richard Victor Louis Hutchings, Foresters, attd. M.G.C.

For gallantry on the 12th October, 1920, near Samawah. Though subjected to heavy fire at close range from the enemy, Lt. Hutchings led forward his machine-gun section to a point of vantage and inflicted severe casualties. This action very materially assisted the advance of the infantry and the success of the operations.

Lt. James Hay Graham Knox, attd. 35th Scinde Horse, I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty on the night of the 24th-25th July, 1920, south-west of Hillah. He commanded a squadron which was acting as rearguard to a column withdrawing at night, and, by his skilful dispositions, kept the enemy in check. Whilst leading his men, he was wounded, but quickly rallied the squadron and repeatedly charged the enemy, thus enabling the rearguard to fall back.

Lt. Ronald Nicholas Moore, I.A.R.O., attd. 1-113th Inf., I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty during the defence of Tuz. On the 19th August, 1920, a party of the insurgents succeeded in reaching the barbed wire and were cutting a way through. He, together with a bomber, crawled out under heavy fire and bombed them, inflicting severe casualties Throughout the subsequent attacks on his post, he inspired all ranks by his coolness and courage.

Lt. (A.-Capt.) Maurice Patrick O'Leary, attd. 122nd Inf., I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry, devotion to duty, and able leadership at Siah Rud on the 18th November, 1920. He led his company over a difficult mountain track, through dense jungle, and, at the end of a trying six hours' march, delivered a vigorous attack, which completely drove in the enemy's right flank. His timely and energetic action proved a decisive factor in the capture of a very important position.

Lt. Gerald Tirah Palin, R.G.A., attd. 45th Pack By., I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty on the 19th July, 1920, at Fazal Tyab. When his battery was in action at 900 yards' range, and communication with the infantry was cut, he twice went up under heavy fire across open ground to the firing line, and thus enabled effective artillery support to be given.

Lt. Nicholas Edgar Innes Pocock, 1-4th (with 13th) Rajputs, I.A.

For gallantry on the 12th October, 1920, near Tuwariz. When a bridge of boats, the destruction of which would have meant that the only means of communication across the river would be cut off, had been set on fire by the insurgents, this officer, regardless of all danger, at once rushed over at the head of his platoon and drove off the enemy. Whilst crossing the river, Lt. Pocock was subjected to heavy fire from the enemy at close range, and, by his action, not only saved the bridge from destruction, but also very materially assisted in the ensuing attack. Moreover, this sudden and unexpected assault so surprised the insurgents that they were compelled to retire, and fled in confusion.

Capt. Alfred Rea, 8th Rajputs, I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty on the 1st August, 1920, at Hillah. During an attack, the Arabs broke through the line of a neighbouring unit. He decided to counter-attack, and, though against far superior numbers, drove the enemy back, inflicting many casualties. By his initiative and leadership, he restored the line and saved the situation. It was mainly due to his coolness and bravery that the counter-attack was successful, and his pluck and resource were an example to all.

T.-Capt. Ivor Ridge-Jones, R.A.M.C., attd. 122nd Inf., I.A.

For conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty at Jubin on the 26th October, 1920. During a five hours' fight, he displayed great coolness and daring in bringing back the wounded from the front line under heavy rifle and machine-gun fire. Throughout, he set an excellent example and it was due to his pluck and resource that all the wounded were retrieved.

2nd Lt. William Eric Dixon Robinson, 35th Scinde Horse, I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty on the 24th July, 1920, south-west of Hillah. By skilful handling of his Vickers gun and by judicious control of fire, he prevented a very determined attempt to break through the line. His courage and initiative were a splendid example to his squadron. It was mainly due to his bold leadership and coolness in action that the enemy were driven back.

Lt. (A.-Capt.) James Michael Roche, R.F.A. (S.R.), attd. I.W.T.

For gallantry and devotion to duty as commander of the defence vessel "Greenfly." He maintained the defence of this vessel whilst it was aground in the Euphrates, six miles above Khidr, against continual assaults from numerous insurgents, from 10th to 20th August, 1920.

Lt. Alexander Alfred Russell, 43rd Regt. (with 122nd Inf.), I.A.

For conspicuously good leadership when sent out with his company on reconnaissance at Jubin, on the 26th October, 1920. About three miles out, he met with strong opposition, and, taking advantage of the high ground, attacked the enemy, who were about a thousand to fourteen hundred strong, with field guns in front and at flank. After an engagement lasting for five hours, he withdrew his company, bringing back his wounded, after obtaining very valuable information regarding the strength and dispositions of the enemy. By his initiative, he thoroughly disheartened the enemy, and was largely responsible for their retreat on the following day.

Capt. Clifford Fredrick Scott-Ruffle, I.A.R.O., attd. 2nd S. and M., I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty during the operations in the Quraitu-Qisil Robat area, between the 21st August and the 30th September, 1920. On the 25th August, 1920, while in command of sixty sappers engaged in constructing a strong post, he was attacked by three hundred insurgents, but, by his personal example and good dispositions, he held them off for two and a half hours until a relief column arrived. During the action, he inflicted considerable casualties on the enemy with but slight loss to his own force.

Lt. (A.-Capt.) Edward Samuel Storey-Cooper, attd. 114th Mahrattas, I.A.

For gallantry and devotion to duty during the evacuation of a railway station near Samawah, on the 3rd September, 1920. By his quick grasp of the situation and by his able control of fire, he successfuly checked a vastly superior enemy who were within a hundred yards of his position, and thus ensured the safe withdrawal of his company. His skill and determination enabled the whole of the railway garrison to withdraw with comparatively few casualties.

T.-Capt. William Henry Suffolk, Gen. List, empld. I.W.T.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty on the 27th and 28th August, 1920, whilst in command of the Euphrates Defence Flotilla. He displayed initiative and leadership, firstly in relieving the crew of a vessel which had run aground on an invisible sandbank, and secondly in making a determined effort to refloat this vessel whilst subjected to heavy fire from the insurgents. His coolness and courage were a fine example to his crew.

Capt. John Reginald Howard Tweed, M.B.E., 1-94th Inf., I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty during the defence of the Serai at Kifri on the 19th-20th August, 1920. He was in command of one platoon, which was garrisoning the Serai, and was attacked by a force of approximately 500 insurgents. Capt. Tweed at once led bombing parties against them in a most dashing manner, inflicting heavy casualties. Although wounded in the head early in the proceedings, he carried on and conducted the defence with great skill, suffering few casualties. On the arrival of the relieving force, he arranged the evacuation of the wounded until he was wounded a second time. His pluck and initiative were a fine example to his men.

Capt. Geoffrey Baynton Williams, 8th Rajputs, I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry during the attack on the Taziah Canal, south-west of Hillah, on the 7th October, 1920. Though opposed by far superior numbers, he turned the enemy's position by capturing the head of the canal. From this point, he was able to enfilade the insurgents, who were holding a strong position. Throughout the operations, Capt. Williams has shown himself to be a bold and skilful leader, especially on this occasion, when he was severely wounded for the third time.

War Office,
10th August, 1921.

His Majesty the KING has been graciously pleased to approve of the undermentioned rewards for distinguished service in the Field with the Waziristan Force, India :—

Awarded the Military Cross.

2nd Lt. Jack Selwyn Jenkins, 1-9th Inf., attd. 58th Rif., I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry in action. Near Rogha Kot, on the 17th March, 1921, this officer was in command of the advanced platoon of the road protection troops. The head of the convoy had just reached the area, which he was protecting, when the enemy, estimated at 40 rifles, opened heavy close range fire. The convoy was thrown into great confusion, several camel drivers were killed and wounded, and the remainder took cover. Lt. Jenkins, with his orderly and a few men, under heavy and accurate fire, got the convoy under cover. This officer thereafter made excellent dispositions to prevent the convoy being rushed, and, notwithstanding accurate enemy fire, carried off both his own wounded and those camel sowars who had been killed and wounded. He, later, went forward under heavy fire, established communication with an officer of the Tanai mobile troops, and made arrangements for the withdrawal. By his coolness, example and good dispositions, this officer saved the convoy from capture.

Lt. Gilbert Pawson, attd. 6th Gurkha Rif. (with 4-39th Rif.), I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty, on 24th March, 1921, near Zuar Killi, when commanding the rearguard of the 4-39th Garhwal Rifles. Though wounded early in the action, he carried on for two hours, till again seriously wounded whilst crossing open ground under heavy close-range fire, in order to assist two men who had been left behind and were believed to be wounded.

Lieutenant George Francis Miles Stray, attd. 1-22nd (with 2-30th) Punjabis, I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry in action. On 30th January, 1921, he was in command of two platoons of a covering party returning from the north bank of the Shahur Tangi. On hearing that casualties had occurred in his forward section, he, personally, under heavy fire, led an attack on the hills already vacated, and enabled the killed and wounded to be removed. It was owing to his prompt action, personal dash and courage that the bodies were recovered.

Lieutenant William Simeon Edmund Warran, 2-10th (with 3-11th) Gurkha Rif., I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. On the 23rd April, 1921, at the point of liaison between the Sorarogha and Ladha Road Protection troops, this officer showed a total disregard of danger from heavy enemy fire by repeatedly moving out from cover, to collect the camel drivers and to organise the withdrawal of the abandoned camels and the evacuation of the wounded. Lieutenant Warran had the button of his helmet shot off, and was, on more than one occasion, struck by fragments thrown up by bullets striking the ground at his feet while standing in the open. It was very largely due to his splendid example that the wounded were evacuated and the camels withdrawn.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill further to amend the Indian Penal Code was presented to the Legislative Assembly on the 15th September, 1921 :—

WE, the undersigned, Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill further to amend the Indian Penal Code was referred, have considered the Bill and have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill as amended by us annexed thereto.

In clause 2 we have suggested the omission of the words " forfeiture of all his property or to " after the words " liable to."

We consider that it is better to proceed against the property of an offender under these sections by the imposition of a fine rather than by forfeiture. At present the law does not provide for this, as section 386 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, does not permit of fines being levied on immoveable property. We, therefore, recommend that fines imposed as a result of a conviction under section 121, 121A or 122 of the Indian Penal Code shall be recoverable from the immoveable property of the offender if they cannot be recovered from his moveable property, and that this be provided for in the Bill for the comprehensive amendment of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, which is at present under consideration. We understand that in England fines can be levied on immoveable property under the law.

3. Geo. IV, c. 46.
4. Geo. IV, c. 37.
Halsbury Laws of England, Vol. 10, pages 14, et seq.

Consequent on the amendments made in this Bill we recommend that the necessary consequential amendments be made in Schedule II to the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, in the main Bill for the amendment of that Code, which is now under consideration.

2. The Bill was published in the Gazette of India, dated the 26th February, 1921.

3. We think that the Bill has not been so altered as to require re-publication, and we recommend that it be passed as now amended.

4. Rai Jadunath Majumdar Bahadur did not attend the first two meetings of the Select Committee.

He attended the final meeting and wishes to record that he does not agree to the proposal to recover fines from immoveable property.

A Bill further to amend the Indian Penal Code.

XLV of 1860.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Indian Penal Code; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Indian Penal Code (Amendment) Act, 1921.

XLV of 1860.

Amendment of sections 121 and 122, Indian Penal Code.

2. In sections 121 and 122 of the Indian Penal Code (hereinafter referred to as the said Code), for the words "and shall forfeit all his property" the words "and shall also be liable to fine" shall be substituted.

Amendment of section 121A, Indian Penal Code.

3. In section 121A of the said Code, after the words "ten years" the words "and shall also be liable to fine" shall be inserted.

Repeal of sections 61 and 62, Indian Penal Code.

4. Sections 61 and 62 of the said Code are hereby repealed.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to facilitate the enforcement in British India of Maintenance Orders made in other parts of His Majesty's Dominions and Protectorates and vice versa was presented to the Legislative Assembly on the 15th September 1921 :—

WE, the undersigned, Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to facilitate the enforcement in British India of Maintenance Orders made in other parts of His Majesty's Dominions and Protectorates and vice versa was referred, have considered the Bill and have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill as amended by us annexed thereto.

Clause 1.—We have added an extent sub-clause to make it clear that this Act will extend only to British India, though it applies in respect of certain orders made elsewhere but enforceable in India.

Clause 2.—Definitions :—

(a) The words " other than illegitimate children " have been omitted from the definition of dependants, and the corresponding words of the English Act, i.e., " other than an order of affiliation " have been inserted in the definition of " maintenance order " so as to follow the wording of the English Act.

(b) The definition of " maintenance order " has also been amplified to make it clear that such an order includes orders passed by Courts either in the exercise of civil or criminal jurisdiction.

(c) A definition of " proper authority " has been inserted, as it was considered to be incorrect to prescribe by rules the authority of the reciprocating territory, from which communications should be received. The laws passed, or to be passed, in such territories will provide for the proper authority for the transmission of communications. Consequential amendments following this definition have been made in clauses 4, 5, 6 and 7 of the Bill.

(d) The definition of " reciprocating British possession " has been changed into a definition of " reciprocating territory " as the term " British possession, " as defined in the General Clauses Act, 1897, does not include the United Kingdom. Consequential amendments have been made throughout the Bill to give effect to this change in definition.

Clause 4, sub-clause (1).—The words " in Council " have been omitted after the words " Governor General " where they first occur, as, under the English Act, communications have to be addressed to the " Governor " of the possession, and the term " Governor " under the English Interpretation Act, 1889, as applied, means the Governor General, and not the Governor General in Council.

Clause 6. Marginal heading.—The words " of Summary Courts " have been inserted in the marginal heading to make it clear that the making of provisional orders is confined to Summary Courts.

Clause 6. sub-clause (1).—The words " if such person had wilfully neglected to attend the Court " have been substituted for the words " if a summons had been duly served on the person and he had failed to appear at the hearing," to bring the wording of this sub-clause into conformity with the wording of section 488 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898.

Sub-clause (6).—The words " or to which it was sent for confirmation " have been inserted after the words " was confirmed " in the proviso to this sub-clause, as it is proposed that a Court, which has made a provisional order, may vary or rescind that order after the taking of further evidence before the order has actually been confirmed in the reciprocating possession, and also that it may vary or rescind the order after it has been confirmed.

Sub-clause (7) of clause 6 has been omitted following the provisions of the maintenance sections in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898. There is no appeal from an order of maintenance under that Code, and this sub-clause would therefore be misleading. In the absence of any provision for such appeal, we do not consider it desirable that there should be an appeal in the cases dealt with under this clause, which are treated as analogous to maintenance cases dealt with under the Code of Criminal Procedure.

Sub-clause (4) of clause 7.—We are of opinion that the clause, as it stood, would perhaps not permit of the confirmation of a provisional order, made for example in the United Kingdom, for a sum greater than Rs. 50 per mensem, which is the limit imposed by section 488 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898. The limit for maintenance orders in the case of a wife in the United Kingdom is two pounds a week, and for a child one pound a week. It was considered desirable that it should be open to the Court to enforce provisional orders up to the full amount of the provisional order, but not to increase the order beyond that amount. Amendments to impose a limit as aforesaid have been made in this clause.

Provision has been made in sub-clauses (5) and (6) for the transmission of records in the same manner as is provided in the proviso to sub-clause (6) of clause 6.

Sub-clause (7) of clause 7 has been omitted for the same reason as sub-clause (7) of clause 6.

Clause 8, sub-clause (1).—The words " in the exercise of its civil jurisdiction " have been inserted after the words " High Court " to make it clear that, except in the case of orders executed by Courts of summary jurisdiction, which will be orders for the payment of comparatively small amounts, the procedure in execution will be in accordance with the Code of Civil Procedure. The difference in execution procedure in the various High Courts necessitates a double procedure in the Bill so as to cover registration in High Courts possessing only appellate jurisdiction.

A new clause 9 has been inserted, as we think that it is just to a wife or other person, in favour of whom a maintenance order is made, that such person should receive the full amount awarded and not be debited with the costs of transmission, and other incidental charges. Such charges should be borne by the person against whom the order is made.

Clauses 9, 10 and 11 have been re-numbered clauses 10, 11 and 12.

Provision has been made in clause 12, as re-numbered, for the fixing by rules, made by the Governor General in Council, of a scale of costs and charges in connection with things done under this Act. We consider it expedient that the rules in this matter should be made by the Governor General in Council, as there will be communications between British India and countries outside, and the Governor General in Council is in the best position to fix a fair scale of charges in this respect.

2. The Bill was published in the Gazette of India, dated the 19th February 1921.

3. We think that the Bill has not been so altered as to require re-publication, and we recommend that it be passed as now amended.

[AS AMENDED BY THE SELECT COMMITTEE.]

[Words printed in italics indicate the amendments suggested by the Select Committee.]

A Bill to facilitate the enforcement in British India of Maintenance Orders made in other parts of His Majesty's Dominions and Protectorates and vice versa.

WHEREAS it is expedient to facilitate the enforcement in British India of Maintenance Orders made in other parts of His Majesty's Dominions and Protectorates and vice versa; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title and extent.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Maintenance Orders Enforcement Act, 1921.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, including the Sonthal Purgannas and British Baluchistan.

Definitions.

2. In this Act, unless there is anything repug nant in the subject o context,—

" Court of summary jurisdiction " means th Court of a Chief Presidency Magistrate o of a District Magistrate;

" dependants " means such persons as a perso against whom a maintenance order is mad is liable to maintain according to the law in force in the part of His Majesty' Dominions in which the maintenance orde is made;

" maintenance order " means an order, othe than an order of affiliation, made by Court in the exercise of civil or crimina jurisdiction for the periodical payment o sums of money towards the maintenanc of the wife or other dependants of th person against whom the order is made;

" prescribed " means prescribed by rules mad under this Act;

"Proper authority" means the authority appointed by, or under the law of, a reciprocating territory to receive and transmit documents to which this Act applies; and

"reciprocating territory" means any part of His Majesty's Dominions in respect of which this Act for the time being applies.

Reciprocal arrangements.

3. (1) If the Governor General in Council is satisfied that provisions have been made by the legislature of any part of His Majesty's Dominions for the enforcement within that part of maintenance orders made by Courts in British India, the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, declare that this Act applies in respect of that part of His Majesty's Dominions, and thereupon it shall apply accordingly.

(2) The Governor General in Council may, by like notification, declare that this Act applies in respect of any British protectorate, or in respect of any State in India, and where such a declaration has been made, this Act shall apply as if such protectorate or State were a reciprocating territory.

Registration in British India of maintenance orders made in other parts of His Majesty's Dominions.

4. (1) Where a maintenance order has, whether before or after the passing of this Act, been made against any person by any Court in any reciprocating territory, and a certified copy of the order has been transmitted by the proper authority of that territory to the Governor General, the Governor General in Council shall send a copy of the order to the prescribed officer of a Court in British India for registration, and on receipt thereof the order shall be registered in the prescribed manner.

(2) The Court in which an order is to be so registered as aforesaid shall, if the Court by which the order was made was, in the opinion of the Governor General in Council, a Court of superior jurisdiction, be a High Court, and, if the Court was not, in his opinion, a Court of superior jurisdiction, be a Court of summary jurisdiction.

Transmission of maintenance orders made in British India.

5. Where a Court in British India has, whether before or after the commencement of this Act, made a maintenance order against any person, and it is proved to that Court that the person against whom the order was made is resident in a reciprocating territory, the Court shall send to the Governor General in Council, for transmission to the proper authority of that territory, a certified copy of the order.

Power of Summary Courts to make provisional maintenance orders against persons resident in His Majesty's Dominions outside British India.

6. (1) Where application is made to a Court of summary jurisdiction in British India for a maintenance order against any person, and it is proved that that person is resident in a reciprocating territory, the Court may, in the absence of that person, if after hearing the evidence it is satisfied of the justice of the application, make any such order as it might have made if that person had wilfully neglected to attend the Court; but in such case the order shall be provisional only and shall have no effect unless and until confirmed by a competent Court in such territory.

(2) The evidence of every witness who is examined on any such application shall be reduced to writing, and such deposition shall be read over to, and signed by, him.

(3) Where such an order is made, the Court shall send to the Governor General in Council, for transmission to the proper authority of the reciprocating territory in which the person against whom the order is made is alleged to reside, the depositions so taken and a certified copy of the order together with a statement of the grounds on which the making of the order might have been opposed if the person against whom the order is made had been duly served with a summons and had appeared at the hearing and such information as the Court possesses for facilitating the identification of that person and ascertaining his whereabouts.

(4) Where any such provisional order has come before a Court in a reciprocating territory for confirmation, and the order has by that Court been remitted to the Court of summary jurisdiction which made the order for the purpose of taking further evidence, that Court shall, after giving the prescribed notice, proceed to take the evidence in like manner and subject to the like conditions as the evidence in support of the original application.

(5) If it appears to the Court hearing such evidence that the order ought not to have been made, the Court may rescind the order, but in any other case the depositions shall be sent to the Governor General in Council and dealt with in like manner as the original depositions.

(6) The confirmation of an order made under this section shall not affect any power of a Court of summary jurisdiction to vary or rescind that order:

Provided that, on the making of a varying or rescinding order, the Court shall send a certified copy thereof to the Governor General in Council for transmission to the proper authority of the reciprocating territory in which the original order was confirmed, or to which it was sent for confirmation and that, in the case of an order varying the original order, the order shall not have any effect unless and until confirmed in like manner as the original order.

Power of Court of summary jurisdiction to confirm maintenance order made out of British India.

7. (1) Where a maintenance order has been made by a Court in a reciprocating territory and the order is provisional only and has no effect unless and until confirmed by a Court of summary jurisdiction in British India, and a certified copy of the order, together with the depositions of the witnesses and a statement of the grounds on which the order might have been opposed, has been transmitted to the Governor General, and it appears to the Governor General in Council that the person against whom the order has been made is resident in British India, the Governor General in Council may send the said documents to the prescribed officer of a Court of summary jurisdiction, with a requisition that a summons be issued calling upon the person to show cause why that order should not be confirmed, and, upon receipt of such documents and requisition, the Court shall issue such a summons and cause it to be served upon such person.

(2) A summons issued under sub-section (1) shall for all purposes be deemed to be a summons issued by the Court in the exercise of its original criminal jurisdiction.

(3) At the hearing it shall be open to the person to whom the summons was issued to raise any defence which he might have raised in the original proceedings had he been a party thereto, but no other defence, and the certificate from the Court which made the provisional order stating the grounds on which the making of the order might have been opposed if the person against whom the order was made had been a party to the proceedings shall be conclusive evidence that those grounds are grounds on which objection may be taken.

(4) If at the hearing the person served with the summons does not appear or, on appearing, fails to satisfy the Court that the order ought not to be confirmed, the Court may, notwithstanding any pecuniary limit imposed on its power by any law for the time being in force in British India confirm the order either without modification or with such modifications as to the Court after hearing the evidence may seem just:

Provided that no sum shall be awarded as maintenance under this section, or shall be recoverable as such, at a rate exceeding that proposed in the provisional order.

(5) If the person to whom the summons was issued appears at the hearing and satisfies the Court that for the purpose of any defence it is necessary to remit the case to the Court which made the provisional order for the taking of any further evidence, the Court may for that purpose send a certified copy of the record to the Governor General in Council for transmission to that Court through the proper authority of the reciprocating territory, and may adjourn the proceedings.

(6) Where a provisional order has been confirmed under this section, it may be varied or rescinded in like manner as if it had originally been made by the confirming Court, and where on an application for rescission or variation the Court is satisfied that it is necessary to remit the case to the Court which made the provisional order for the purpose of taking any further evidence, the Court may for that purpose send a certified copy of the record to the Governor General in Council for transmission to that Court through the proper authority of the reciprocating territory, and may adjourn the proceedings.

Enforcement of maintenance orders.

8. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, where an order has been registered under this Act in a High Court, the order shall, from the date of such registration, be of the same force and effect, and all proceedings may be taken thereon as if it had been an order originally obtained in the High Court in the exercise of its civil jurisdiction, or in such Civil Court subordinate to that High Court as may be named by the High Court in this behalf and that Court shall have power to enforce the order accordingly.

(2) A Court of summary jurisdiction in which an order has been registered under this Act or by which an order has been confirmed under this Act, and the officers of such Court, shall have such powers and perform such duties, for the purpose of enforcing the order, as may be prescribed.

Payment of charges for transmission of sums awarded as maintenance and other costs and charges.

9. A Court in registering or confirming an order for maintenance in accordance with the provisions of this Act shall direct that the charges for the transmission to the Court, from which the order has been received or in which the provisional order has been made, as the case may be, of the sum awarded as maintenance shall be borne by the person against whom the order has been so made or confirmed, and shall be recovered from him in addition to the sum awarded as maintenance and in addition to and in the same manner as such other costs and charges as may be awarded or levied by the Court.

Proof of documents signed by officers of Court.

10. For the purposes of this Act, any document purporting to be signed by a judge or officer of a Court outside British India shall, until the contrary is proved, be deemed to have been so signed without proof of the signature or judicial or official character of the person appearing to have signed it, and the officer of a Court by whom a document is signed shall, until the contrary is proved, be deemed to have been the proper officer of the Court to sign the document.

Depositions to be evidence.

11. Depositions taken in a Court in any reciprocating territory may, for the purposes of this Act, be received in evidence in proceedings before Courts of summary jurisdiction under this Act.

Rule-making power.

12. The Governor General in Council may make rules for the purpose of carrying into effect the purposes of this Act, and in particular may make rules for the levy of the costs or charges for anything done under this Act and for all matters which are directed or permitted to be prescribed.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 10th September, 1921 :—

No. 22 of 1921.

A Bill to amend the Hindu Law relating to exclusion from inheritance of certain classes of heirs, and to remove certain doubts.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Hindu Law relating to exclusion from inheritance of certain classes of heirs, and to remove certain doubts; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title, commencement and application.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Exclusion from Inheritance Act, 192 ;

(2) It shall come into force on the ; and

(3) It shall apply to all Provinces of India, except Bengal.

Persons not to be excluded from inheritance or share in joint-family property.

2. Notwithstanding any rule of Hindu Law or custom to the contrary, no person governed by the Hindu Law shall be excluded from inheritance or from a share in joint-family property by reason only of any disease, deformity, physical or mental defect.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Certain classes of persons have been excluded from inheritance presumably on the ground that their present condition is due to sins in the former birth and that they are therefore not entitled to share in the patrimony ; without questioning the soundness of this reason of the rule, I am of opinion that in the times that we live in such grounds of exclusion should not be allowed to deprive a person of temporal rights : These persons stand in greater need of assistance than their more favoured brethren who can earn their living. Public opinion has expressed itself strongly against the disability which the present state of the Hindu Law imposes on them.

My reason for excluding Bengal from the operation of the Act is based on the opposition which the motion for codifying Hindu Law met from the Bengal Representatives in the Legislative Assembly. It may be that the Members who spoke on that occasion only expressed their individual views and did not expound the collective opinion of that province. In that case the clause relating to the exclusion of Bengal may be modified in the Select Committee. If on the other hand Bengal is as orthodox as it has been represented to be, by seeking to apply the provisions of the Bill to that province, the passing of the measure so far as the other provinces are concerned may be jeopardised. This is my reason for excluding Bengal.

No. 23 of 1921.

A Bill to prescribe a registered instrument as necessary for a valid adoption.

WHEREAS it is expedient to prescribe a registered instrument as necessary for a valid adoption; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title, commencement and extent.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Adoption (Registration) Act, 192 ;

(2) It shall come into force on the ; and

(3) It extends to the whole of British India.

Definitions.

2. In this Act—

"adoption" means the adoption of a son or any other relative permissible by any law for the time being in force in British India ; and

"attested" includes attestation of an instrument by a witness to whom the executant had immediately after its execution admitted that fact.

Adoption to be by registered deed.

3. No adoption by any person is valid unless it is evidenced by a registered instrument executed by the person making the adoption or some other person duly empowered in that behalf and attested by at least two witnesses.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

As far back as 1835 the Privy Council insisted upon the necessity of having a contemporaneous reliable record of an adoption (5 W.R. 109 P.C.), and more recently, it made a point of the absence of a deed of adoption (44 C. 201, 205 P.C.). The fact that adoptions usually affect property of some, and sometimes of great value, and the fact that oral evidence adduced to prove such adoptions is not always free from suspicion or doubt, occasioning at times failure of justice, sufficiently justify this measure. Moreover, most transfers of any value are now compulsorily registrable, and there is no reason why an adoption should not now be also compulsorily registrable.

No. 24 of 1921.

A Bill to provide for the levy of customs-duty on lac exported from British India.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for the creation of a Fund to be expended for the promotion of the improvement of methods of cultivation and manufacture of lac in India;

AND WHEREAS for this purpose it is expedient to levy customs-duty on lac produced in India and exported from British India;

It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title and extent.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Indian Lac Cess Act, 192 .

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, except Aden.

Definitions.

2. In this Act—

(a) "The Lac Association" means the Indian Lac Association for Research, registered as a society on the twelfth day of September 1921, under the provisions of the Societies Registration Act, 1860; [XXI of 1860.]

(b) "Collector" means, in reference to lac exported by sea, a Customs-collector as defined in clause (c) of section 3 of the Sea Customs Act, 1878, and, in reference to lac passing out of British India by land, the Collector of the district; [VIII of 1878.]

(c) "lac" includes any form of manufactured or unmanufactured lac other than refuse lac;

(d) "lac cess" means the customs-duty imposed by section 3 of this Act and by section 5 of the Indian Tariff Act, 1894. [VIII of 1894.]

Imposition of duty on exports of lac and refuse lac.

3. On and from the 1st January, 1922, a customs-duty shall be levied and collected on all lac and refuse lac produced in India and exported from any customs-port to any port beyond the limits of British India or to Aden at the rate of 4 annas per maund in the case of lac, and 2 annas per maund in the case of refuse lac, or at such lower rate as the Governor General in Council may, on the recommendation of the Lac Association by notification in the Gazette of India, prescribe.

Application of proceeds of lac cess.

4. (1) At the close of each month, or as soon thereafter as may be convenient, the Collector shall pay the proceeds of the lac cess, after deducting the expenses of collection (if any), to the Lac Association.

(2) The said proceeds and any other monies received by the Lac Association in this behalf shall be applied by the Association towards meeting the cost of such measures as the Association may consider it advisable to take for the promotion of improved methods of cultivation and manufacture of lac by means of scientific research, experimental cultivation and the dissemination of knowledge, or by such other means, as it may be expedient to employ, for testing the value of the results obtained by such research.

Keeping and auditing of accounts.

5. (1) The Lac Association shall keep accounts of all monies received and expended under section 4.

(2) Such accounts shall be examined and audited annually by auditors appointed in this behalf by the Governor General in Council; and such auditors may disallow any item which has, in their opinion, been expended out of any money so received otherwise than as directed by or under this Act.

(3) If any item is disallowed, an appeal shall lie to the Governor General in Council whose decision shall be final.

Power to make rules.

6. (1) The Governor General in Council may, after previous publication, make rules to carry out the purposes of this Act.

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may provide for—

(a) the levy and payment of the lac cess; and

(b) the form of accounts to be kept and the publication of an abstract of such accounts with the reports of the auditors thereon.

(3) All such rules shall be published in the Gazette of India.

Time during which sections 2 to 6 are to remain in force.

7. Sections 2 to 6 shall remain in force only until the 31st day of December, 1926 :

Provided that the Governor General in Council may, on the recommendation of the Lac Association, declare by notification in the Gazette of India, that the said sections shall continue in force for any further period specified in such notification :

Provided also that, if at any time the Lac Association is dissolved, the said sections shall cease to be in force from the date of such dissolution.

Disposal of surplus proceeds of lac cess.

8. If any proceeds of the lac cess or any monies, so received as aforesaid, remain unexpended, when sections 2 to 6 cease to be in force, they shall, notwithstanding anything contained in any law for the time being in force, vest in His Majesty.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to provide for the levy of a small cess on Indian shellac and refuse lac exported from India for the purpose of creating a Fund to finance research work beyond the scope of the Provincial Forest Departments. It is proposed to entrust the administration of the Fund to a Lac Association consisting of members representing European and Indian shippers, manufacturers and brokers. Those interested in the lac industry are unanimous in recommending that the proposed legislation should be undertaken.

27C. Every application made under the second proviso to section 27B shall be heard and determined in the manner provided by sections 99D to 99F of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, by a Special Bench of the High Court constituted in the manner provided by section 99C of that Code. V of 1898.

Jurisdiction barred.

27D. No order passed or action taken under section 27B shall be called in question in any Court otherwise than in accordance with the second proviso to that section."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

On the 21st March, 1921, a Committee was appointed to examine the Indian Press Act, 1910, the Newspapers (Incitements to Offences) Act, 1908, and the Press and Registration of Books Act, 1867, and to report whether any of these enactments should be repealed or modified, and, if so, to what extent. The recommendations made by the Committee are fully explained in their Report which has been published. The present Bill is designed to give effect to these recommendations. Provision has been made in the Bill to render it unnecessary to declare anew forfeitures already made.

Opportunity has, at the same time, been taken to make two small changes in section 5 (1) of the Press and Registration of Books Act to meet the inconvenience, represented to the Committee, which results from the wording of that section. The alterations are intended to enable a declaration under the Act to be made at the place of printing, where the place of printing and publishing a paper differ, or at the place of residence of the printer or publisher, and to allow the printer and publisher to appear before the Magistrate, for the purpose of making a declaration, through an authorised representative.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 hours on Wednesday, the 14th September 1921, based on the Indian Daily Weather Reports of the period.

1. During the past week the monsoon has again been stronger than usual, but the distribution of rainfall has continued uneven. The storm from the Bay which was entering the southeast of Rajputana on the 7th disappeared there during that day, but weather remained disturbed in northwest India during the next four days, when abundant rain fell in Gujarat, Rajputana and Central India west. The monsoon subsequently strengthened in the Gangetic plain, and there was more than the normal amount of rain in the region from the west of the United Provinces to Assam. Over the greater part of the Peninsula, however, the monsoon has been much less active than usual almost throughout the week. Towards the end of the week conditions had become favourable for the formation of a depression in the Bay and the monsoon was strengthening in the Peninsula.

2. Burma.—In Lower Burma rainfall was nearly general except on the 12th ; in Upper Burma there was local rain on the 8th, 9th and 10th, with a few falls on the other days.

Northeast India, including Orissa.—Nearly general rain fell in Assam on the 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th and 12th, in Bengal on the 10th, 11th and 12th, in Orissa on the 11th and 13th, in Chota Nagpur on the 11th, 12th and 13th, and in Bihar between the 9th and 13th ; rainfall occurred locally or at a few stations on four other days in Orissa and during the rest of the week in the other sub-divisions.

The United Provinces, Central India and the Central Provinces.—Rainfall was nearly general in the United Provinces East on the 7th, 9th, 11th, 12th and 13th, in the United Provinces West on the 11th and 12th, in Central India West on the 7th, in Central India East on the 11th, 12th and 13th, in the west of the Central Provinces on the 7th and 12th, and in the east of the Central Provinces on the 8th and 10th ; rain fell locally or at a few stations on three other days in Central India East, on four other days in Central India West and the east of the Central Provinces, and on the remaining days over the rest of the division.

Northwest India.—There was nearly general rain in Rajputana East on the 8th and 9th, and in Gujarat on the 7th ; rainfall occurred locally or at a few stations on two other days in the former area and on five other days in the latter. In Rajputana West rain fell locally on the 7th and 8th. The week was rainless in Sind, while over the rest of the division rainfall was limited to a few scattered falls.

The Peninsula.—Nearly general rain fell in the Konkan on the 7th, 8th, 9th and 13th, in Hyderabad North on the 1?th, in Hyderabad South on the 13th, in Mysore on the 10th, the Madras Deccan on the 13th and on the north Madras Coast on the 10th and 13th ; rainfall occurred locally or at a few stations during the rest of the week in Mysore, on four other days in Hyderabad North and on the north Madras Coast, on three other days in Hyderabad South and the Madras Deccan, and on two other days in the Konkan. There was local rain in Malabar on the 13th and in southeast Madras between the 8th and 11th, with a few falls on two other days in the former area and on one other day in the latter. In the Bombay Deccan there was no rain except for two light falls at Belgaum.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday, 10th September, 1921.

Burma.—The rainfall during the week was general throughout the Province, being light in most districts of Upper Burma. Cultivation of the main rice crop is progressing normally in both Lower and Upper Burma. Harvesting of early sesamum, maize and millets is still in progress in Upper Burma. Standing crops are generally fair. More rain is still needed in the dry zone. Cattle are generally healthy. The price of unhusked rice was Rs. 255 to 260 and of white rice (specials) Rs. 635 per hundred baskets.

Assam.—The weather is seasonable and favourable. Harvesting of autumn rice and jute, plucking of tea and transplanting of winter rice continue. The outturn and prospects of crops are fair. Cattle disease is reported from four districts. The price of common rice fell slightly.

Bengal.—The rainfall was generally light to moderate. Transplantation of winter paddy is well advanced. Weeding is in progress. Harvesting of autumn paddy and jute is progressing satisfactorily in west Bengal districts. Elsewhere operations are nearing completion. Prospects of standing crops are generally favourable. The average price of common rice has fallen slightly.

Bihar and Orissa.—The rainfall during the week was general over the Province, the fall being heavy in Patna, Darbhanga, Monghyr, Purnea, Angul and Sambalpur and light to moderate elsewhere. Transplantation of winter paddy is nearing completion. Harvesting of early bhadoi crops has commenced. Standing crops are doing well. More rain is wanted in parts of Puri. 7,599 persons received gratuitous relief in Puri (including 190 persons on relief from the District Charitable Fund) and 131 persons in Cuttack. The price of common rice has risen in two districts, fallen in five and remained stationary in the remainder. The average price of local common rice at headquarters was 5·98 seers a rupee against 5·92 seers in the preceding week and that of maize was 7·96 seers a rupee against 7·60 seers in the preceding week. Cattle disease is reported from fourteen districts. The condition of standing crops in the Feudatory States of Orissa and Chota Nagpur is good.

United Provinces.—General rain fell throughout the Provinces. Slight damage by excessive rain is reported from a few districts. Preparation of land for spring crops and harvesting of autumn crops continue. Standing crops are in good condition. Prospects are favourable. The condition of agricultural stock is good but cattle disease is still prevalent in a number of districts. Fodder, water and market supplies are sufficient. Prices are generally stationary.

The weekly report on scarcity in Garhwal, Almora and Mirzapur is as follows :—The rainfall was beneficial to scarcity tracts. Sunshine is needed in parts of Garhwal. Weeding of autumn crops and harvesting of extra crops are going on. Standing crops are doing well. Prospects are favourable. So far no cattle disease is reported. Fodder and water are sufficient. Markets are fairly well stocked except in the south of Mirzapur, where the deficiency will be made good by new crops. Imports continue. Prices are almost stationary with a tendency to fall in Almora. Price basis:—Garhwal 2 to 3¼ seers, Almora 2 to 2¼ seers and Mirzapur 4 to 7 seers per rupee. Advances for importation of grain continue and subsistence takavi is being distributed both in Garhwal and Almora. Steps are being taken to distribute takavi for the sowing of spring crops in Mirzapur. Crime is increasing in Mirzapur. Elsewhere it is normal. No wandering or immigration is noticeable. Emaciation in the south of Mirzapur is expected to disappear as soon as autumn crops are harvested. The public health, on the whole, is good, though cholera has not totally subsided. Malaria continues in parts of Almora, where quinine is freely distributed. Numbers relieved :—Mirzapur—poor-house 74, gratuitous 12,947, total 13,021; Garhwal—gratuitous 2,673; Almora—gratuitous 1,121; grand total 16,815. Private charity is practically exhausted in Garhwal. Funds are being realised in Almora and Mirzapur to supply clothing for the needy.

Punjab.—Light showers fell in a few reporting districts and were useful for standing autumn crops. The condition of sugarcane, cotton and other standing crops is generally normal. Sowings of gram, toria and vegetables continue in parts of a few districts. Dry fodder is scarce. Green grass and chari are available. Cattle are generally in fair condition. Water is sufficient. Prices are generally stationary. They are generally above scarcity rates. No test work was opened during the week. Stocks of food grains are generally insufficient. Prices of wheat :—Lahore 4, Ambala 4¼, Ferozepore 3¾, and Lyallpur 4⅜ seers per rupee.

North-West Frontier Province.—Good rain fell in one district. Autumn crops, oilseeds and vegetables are being sown. The condition of standing crops is promising. Picking of cotton is in progress in one district. Scarcity of fodder and water prevails in one district. Prices of food grains are dangerously high and are still rising. Wheat is selling at Peshawar at 3 15/16 seers and in Dera Ismail Khan at 3 1/16 seers per rupee.

Jammu.—Slight rain fell during the week. Prices are rising. Fodder is sufficient in certain tracts.

Kashmir.—The week was cloudy but scarcely rainy. Standing crops are fair. Malaria and cholera appearing in Muzaffarabad. Prices are high.

Baluchistan.—During the week good rain fell in parts of Zhob and some in parts of the Loralai district. It is badly wanted elsewhere for khushkaba crops which are beginning to wither. Economic conditions have not improved and considerable distress exists among the people in Barkhan as prices are abnormally high. There were 665 persons on relief works in the Pishin and Chaman sub-divisions, 100 on Wanechi works, 600 on Musakhel works and 227 on Nuski-Galangur road. Marri kitchen had 33 inmates and Musakhel kitchen 604. The number of persons receiving gratuitous relief was 279 at Fort Sandeman and 33 at Killasaifulla. Mekhtar relief work has been suspended temporarily. Cholera has reappeared in the neighbourhood of Quetta—seizures 8, deaths 6. Chaman—seizures and deaths 2. Prices are unchanged.

Rajputana.—The rainfall during the week was general throughout Rajputana. The maximum fall was 5 inches 24 cents in the Patan tahsil of the Jhalawar State. The sky remains cloudy. Weeding continues. Standing crops are in good condition. Damage to crops from caterpillars is reported from places in Marwar. Fodder and water are insufficient in parts of Jhalawar. Cattle disease exists in Tonk and parts of Dholpur. Cholera is reported in the Karauli city and in parts of Kotah. Malarial fever is prevailing in the Karauli town. Prices are rising in Dholpur and Karauli and falling in Partabgarh.

Central India.—The rainfall during the week was general. It was insufficient only in the Rampura-Bhanpura district, Dewas (Junior) and in parts of Rutlam. Weeding continues. Land is being prepared for spring crops in Bundelkhand, Dewas (Junior), Jaora and Manpur. Harvesting of light grain has commenced in Barwar. The condition of standing crops is fair to good. Cattle disease prevails in Lugasi. Prices are high.

The weekly report on famine in Rewa is as follows :—The number of persons in receipt of gratuitous relief in Deosar was 1,976. Poor houses had 656 inmates. The condition of people is fair. Prices are stationary.

Gwalior.—Report not received.

Central Provinces.—The weather continued to be cloudy with good showers of rain. During the week the quantity of rain registered at headquarters ranged from 3 to 5¼ inches in the Jubbulpore division, 2 to 3¼ inches in the Nerbudda division, 75 cents to 4½ inches in the Nagpur division, 83 cents to 2¼ inches in the Chattisgarh division and 69 to 93 cents in Berar. A most opportune break now seems to have set in which is required in seven districts. The condition of standing crops is excellent and prospects are favourable. Ploughing of fields for spring sowings is in progress. No deficiency of fodder and water exists anywhere. Sporadic rinderpest prevails in parts of certain districts, otherwise cattle are fairing well. Wheat in Raipur and gram in Drug rose by one seer per rupee. Other variations are unimportant but indicate a slight upward tendency.

Feudatory States —There was ample rain in the States. Transplantation and thinning of rice and weeding continued.

The weekly report on famine and scarcity is as follows :—The rainfall has been general in affected districts during the week. A break is now required in northern districts. Harvesting of early millets and weeding and preparation of land for spring crops continue. Prospects are still excellent. The number of persons on relief works fell from 20,957 to 16,621. All works have been closed except in Mandla and Jubbulpore. The number of persons in receipt of gratuitous relief fell from 28,450 to 26,406. The public health is fair except for the prevalence of malarial fever. Crime is normal. Prices are generally stationary or rising very slightly.

Bombay.—The rainfall during the week was good in parts of Sind, Gujarat and the Konkan and slight and partial elsewhere. More rain is needed is parts of the Deccan and the Karnatak for standing crops and for the sowing of spring crops. Sowing of autumn crops has been generally completed. Transplantation continues. Standing crops have been slightly damaged by excessive moisture in parts of Nawabshah, Thar and Parkar and Gujarat and are suffering from want of moisture in parts of the Deccan, Dharwar and Bijapur. They have been damaged by rats in parts of Karachi and Hyderabad. The fodder supply is generally sufficient. Drinking water is adequate. Water for irrigation is sufficient. Cattle are in good condition. Prices are almost stationary.

The weekly report on famine and scarcity is as follows:—Distress continues to decrease as labourers get sufficient employment. Three works are in progress in Ahmednagar and six in Bijapur. Gratuitous relief to the decrepit and the needly and dole to inferior village servants continue. Numbers on relief :—Workers—Ahmednagar 3,236, Bijapur 4,369 ; dependants—Ahmednagar 1,445 ; gratuitous—West Khandesh 555, Ahmednagar 6,531, Sholapur 3,721, Bijapur 3,227 and Belgaum 3,120. The condition of the people on works and in receipt of dole is good.

Hyderabad.—The rainfall during the week was insufficient and partial. The average fall for the dominions was 23 cents. The weeks rain benefitted standing crops in the Aurangabad, Parbhani, Warangal and Karimnagar districts. Elsewhere crops are withering. Sowings of the early rice crop are almost over. Sowings of spring crops have been retarded for want of rain. The supply of water and fodder is adequate except in parts of the Raichur and Usmanabad districts. The condition of agricultural stock is satisfactory except for cattle disease in the Wardha district. Prices of foodgrains continue to be high and almost stationary. Juar is selling at 3 seers per rupee in the Bir district.

The weekly report on famine for the week ending 25th August is as follows :—The rainfall during the week was scanty in some districts. The number of persons on relief is decreasing. Large number of relief works have been closed but a few works are being maintained to relieve those unable to find work on fields. Prices of grains continue to be high. Juar is selling at 3½ to 6½ seers and rice at 2½ to 4½ seers per rupee. Number on relief :—Works 10,000, gratuitous 11,000, total 21,000.

Mysore.—The rainfall during the week was good in the Kadur district and light to fair elsewhere. Prices of food grains are generally steady. Markets are well supplied. Standing crops are in good condition. Ragi and paddy are being sown. Weeding and transplanting are in progress in parts. Prospects of the season are fair but more rain is needed in the Tamkur, Hassan, Shimoga and Chitaldrug districts. Cattle are generally healthy. Water and fodder are available.

Coorg.—The rainfall during the week was light. Transplanting of rice is nearing completion. Water and fodder for cattle are available. Cattle are generally healthy. The public health is fair. Prices of food grains are high.

Madras.—The rainfall during the week was heavy in the Agency Ganjam and South Kanara, light in Godavari, Kurnool, Bellary, Nellore, Chingleput, Coimbatore, Ramnad and Tinnevelly, nil in Madras and fair to moderate elsewhere. Standing crops are fair generally but more rain is required in parts of the Deccan except Cuddapah, Vizagapatam and Madura. The outturn of the harvested paddy and dry crops in parts of most districts is generally fair. Sowing of paddy and dry crops is proceeding in parts of seventeen districts. The condition of cattle is good generally. Water is generally sufficient except in parts. Pasture and fodder are sufficient generally. Prices are steady. Prospects are not encouraging in parts of Kurnool and Guntur and are fair elsewhere. Three test works are in progress in Kurnool with an average attendance of 2,336 persons and gratuitous relief was given to 263.

The weekly report on famine in Bellary and Anantapur is as follows:—Four relief works are in progress in Bellary and five in Anantapur. Distress is increasing. The coolie classes are mostly affected. People are freely resorting to works. There is no marked foreign influx. The condition of people on relief and the public health is generally fair. No emaciation is noticeable. Relief measures are adequate. No special relief to weavers and artizans is necessary now. Clothing and cooked food are provided by private charity in Bellary and in Anantapur. Grain doles are distributed in Bellary by private charity. Cheap grain shops are opened in Anantapur by private relief committee. State loans are being advanced. The price of cholam in Bellary was 6·4 and in Anantapur 6·1 seers per rupee. Number on relief:—Bellary—works 14,152, gratuitous 3,229; total 17,381 and Anantapur—works 9,268, gratuitous 4,199 ; total 13,467.

REMARKS.

During the week ending the 26th March 1921, 6,553 deaths were registered in 83 towns in the various provinces in India with an aggregate population of 7,921,277. The annual death rate equivalent to this figure would be 43·0 per thousand of population.

77 of the towns for which figures are available registered 3,509 births, giving an annual birth rate of 28·6 per mille. In the same towns 4,640 deaths were recorded.

The following towns recorded a death rate of over 50 per mille :—

Patna (60·5), Muzaffarpur (78·8), Puri (69·0), Multan (70), Nagpur (61·31), Jubbulpore (72·40), Raipur (82·41), Bombay (73·9), Poona (52·77), Sholapur (67·66), Ahmedabad (56·02) and Mandalay (60·0).

In Delhi, Howrah, Lahore, Amritsar and Sholapur the chief mortality was from fevers; in Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, Poona, Ahmedabad and Rangoon, from respiratory diseases, and in Patna and Muzaffarpur from plague.

Cholera was responsible for 201 deaths, small-pox for 127 and plague for 251. Of the total mortality from cholera 159 deaths were registered in ten towns in Bengal Presidency ; of the total deaths from small-pox 28 deaths were reported from Bombay and 22 from Jubbulpore, and 54 deaths from plague were recorded in Muzaffarpur, 53 in Patna, 34 in Bombay, 32 in Multan and 30 in Rangoon.

To

THE RIGHT HONOURABLE EDWIN MONTAGU,

His Majesty's Secretary of State for India.

Delhi, the 4th March 1921.

SIR,

WE have the honour to forward our views on the suggestions put forward by the Foreign Office in the correspondence forwarded by the Secretary in your Revenue and Statistics Department in his letters No. R. & S. 6478-20, dated the 17th September 1920, No. R. & S. 8057-20, dated the 13th October 1920, and No. R. & S. 8695-20, dated the 26th October 1920.

2. From the correspondence forwarded it appears that His Majesty's Government, in order to give effect to the provisions of the International Opium Convention of 1912 and generally to prevent the improper consumption of opium, morphine, cocaine and similar drugs, have under consideration a draft form to be utilised in the exchange of letters with foreign countries on this matter, in which it will be stated that the exportation of specified drugs from the United Kingdom to all destinations has been prohibited except under license, and that applications for the grant of licenses for exportation will in future be considered only in those cases where the application is accompanied by a certificate previously issued under the authority of the Government of the country to which the export is made to the effect that they are satisfied that the consignment is required for legitimate medicinal or scientific purposes and will not be re-exported. The drugs specified are raw opium, morphine, cocaine, ecgonine, and diamorphine (commonly known as Heroin) and their respective salts and medicinal opium, and any preparation, admixture, extract or other substance containing not less than one-fifth of morphine or one-tenth per cent. of cocaine, ecgonine, or diamorphine. Our opinion is asked whether we would like arrangements similar to those proposed for the United Kingdom to be made on our behalf, and whether we would be prepared to grant reciprocity in the matter of issuing certificates for our own imports. We shall send to you shortly the report asked for in your despatch No. 98-Revenue, dated the 9th October 1919, containing a comprehensive survey of the existing laws, regulations and practice with regard to the traffic in opium and other drugs, and reviewing the whole position in the light of the terms of the Hague Opium Convention. But the proposals contained in the correspondence referred to above can most conveniently form the subject of a separate despatch, since they appear to us to be entirely outside the proposals made in the terms of that Convention.

3. We are unable to understand why it is proposed to treat raw opium in the same manner as the other drugs mentioned in the draft note. We have never admitted, nor did the Opium Convention admit, that it should be so treated. Our views upon this subject are contained in our despatch No. 285, dated the 23rd November 1911, and it may suffice in the present connection to give the following extracts from that despatch regarding the practice of opium-eating in India, as we are in full agreement with the views therein expressed.

"The prohibition of opium-eating in India we regard as impossible, and any attempt at it as fraught with the most serious consequences to the people and the Government. We take our stand unhesitatingly on the conclusions of the Royal Commission (for India) which reported in 1894, viz., that the opium habit as a vice scarcely exists in India; that opium is extensively used for non-medical and quasi-medical purposes, in some cases with benefit, and for the most part without injurious consequences; that the non-medical uses are so interwoven with the medical uses, that it would not be practicable to draw a distinction between them in the distribution and sale of the drug; and that it is not necessary that the growth of the poppy and the manufacture and sale of opium in British India should be prohibited except for medical purposes. Whatever may be the case in other countries, centuries of inherited experience have taught the people of India discretion in the use of the drug, and its misuse is a negligible feature in Indian life. Even if it were possible to suppress the cultivation of opium in India, geographical and political limitations would place it beyond our power to prevent illicit import and consumption on a serious scale. The point is one which we do not propose to labour. But some useful light is thrown upon the use of opium by the results of the latest medical inquiry, conducted under our orders, into the drug habit in India. It will be seen from the statistics of lunatic asylums in India during 1909 that, among the cases of insanity caused by the use of intoxicants, the use of opium in all its forms is scarcely responsible for any appreciable number. While 10 per cent. of the cases are due to hemp in its various forms, 3·35 per cent. to alcohol and 1·26 per cent. to other drugs (principally cocaine), only 0·46 per cent. are due to opium. These figures are all the more remarkable when we contrast the old-established use of opium in India with the entire novelty of cocaine, coupled with the fact that the use of the latter has hardly penetrated yet beyond the limits of the large towns."

"The great majority of Indian opium-eaters are not slaves to the habit. They take small doses as required, and can and do give up the allowance when the need of it is past. Opium is in virtually universal use throughout India as the commonest and most treasured of the household remedies accessible to the people. It is taken to avert or lessen fatigue, as a specific in bowel complaints, as a prophylactic against malaria (for which its relatively high anarcotine content makes it specially valuable), to lessen the quantity of sugar in diabetes, and generally to allay pain in sufferers of all ages. The vast bulk of the Indian population, it must be remembered, are strangers to the ministrations of qualified doctors or druggists. They are dependent almost entirely on the herbal simples of the country; distance and the patient acceptance of hardships standing in the way of prompt access to skilled medical relief. In these circumstances, the use of opium in small quantities is one of the most important aids in the treatment of children's sufferings. It is also a frequent help to the aged and infirm, and an alleviation in diseases and accidents which are accepted as incurable. To prevent the sale of opium except under regular medical prescription would be a mockery; to many millions it would be sheer inhumanity."

We still adhere to these views regarding the consumption of opium in British India, and we would add that the arguments apply with even greater force to the consumption of opium in Indian States. It would be a hopeless task to attempt to persuade the Indian Rulers to pohibit the practice of opium-eating in Native States, and in practice it would also be impossible to compel them to do so. Since we do not consider it either advisable or necessary to restrict the consumption of opium in India to medical and scientific purposes we cannot be expected to take steps to secure that other nations shall so restrict the use to which Indian opium may be put.

4. That the "Opium Convention" held similar views is clear from the method in which they dealt with this question. They drew a clear distinction between the restrictions to be imposed upon raw opium as distinguised from prepared opium and from medicinal opium, morphine, cocaine, etc., all of which are dealt with separately in 3 separate Chapters of the Convention. While the provisions of Chapter III regarding medicinal opium, morphine, cocaine, etc., provide in Article 9 that the contracting parties "shall enact pharmacy laws and regulations to confine to medical and legitimate purposes the manufacture, sale and use of morphine, cocaine and their respective salts" and "shall co-operate with one another to prevent the use of these drugs for any other purpose," no such provision is contained in Chapter I which deals with raw opium. The only provisions relating to the export and import of raw opium are Article 2 under which the contracting Parties are required to limit the number of towns, ports and other localities through which the importation or exportation of raw opium shall be permitted, and Article 3 under which the contracting Parties are required to take measures to prevent the exportation of raw opium to countries which shall have prohibited the entry thereof and to control the exportation of raw opium to countries which shall have limited the importation thereof, and Article 5 which provides that the contracting Powers shall not allow the export and import of raw opium except by duly authorised persons In our despatch referred to in paragraph 2 above we shall show that before these provisions were made formally operative, they had been accepted and adopted by the Government of India for several years past, and that we have in practice gone further than the provisions of the Hague Opium Convention require. The Hague Convention contemplated the use of opium for other than purely medical and scientific purposes; it did not stigmatise the use of opium for such purposes as an abuse and it placed the responsibility for regulating the import of the drug upon the importing country. If any Government desires to restrict its importation of opium to the requirements of 'legitimate medicinal or scientific purposes' and asks us to allow to be exported to that country only the quantity which it considers sufficient for such purposes, we shall immediately agree to its proposal. But we are unable to accept the proposal that whether the importing Nation desires or not we should in every case inquire into the uses to which opium exported will subsequently be applied, and forbid the exportation under any circumstances of raw opium unless it is certified by the importing country to be required purely for medicinal or scientific purposes. The restrictions that we have already put upon the export of opium, and more particularly the stoppage of exports to China, has been the cause of an extra burden of over £4,000,000 of taxation in India. We are not prepared to accept the proposal which would merely result in the transfer of the present restricted trade in opium from India to other opium growing countries—a proposal moreover which runs contrary to the conclusions arrived at after full consideration by the Hague Convention, the more particularly as no arguments are adduced in the correspondence forwarded to justify such a radical alteration in the decisions of that Convention.

5. As regards the other drugs referred to in the correspondence, we are prepared to accept the arrangement with one qualification to which we shall refer below. In order to give effect to it so far as exports from India are concerned, we are prepared to issue a notification under section 19 of the Sea Customs Act, 1878, restricting the export of the drugs in question to cases where the consignment to be exported is covered by a certificate issued under the authority of the Government of the country concerned to the effect that it is required exclusively for legitimate medicinal or scientific purposes and will not be re-exported. It will be necessary that when we are notified of a country's adherence to the agreement we should at the same time be informed of the authority by which the necessary certificates will be issued. As regards imports into India we are prepared to arrange for the issue of similar certificates to would-be importers for presentation in the country from which the consignment is to be exported. It will be necessary for us to ask local Governments and Administrations for assistance in this respect and we are therefore not in a position at once to indicate the authorities who will issue the certificates. There is, however, one point with regard to which we must insist on a slight modification of the proposed agreement as a condition of our adherence to it. Considerable quantities of these drugs are imported as Government medical stores for re-export to countries outside India where Indian troops, political officers, etc., are employed. In these circumstances, it would not be possible for us to certify of any consignment imported on Government account that it is not for re export, as a portion of it might well be re-exported. We therefore propose that in respect of consignments imported by a Government department on Government account the certificate which will accompany the indent for supply should contain no assurance that the consignment will not be re-exported.

We have the honour to be,

SEPARATE REVENUE.
Opium.

THE RIGHT HONOURABLE EDWIN MONTAGU,

His Majesty's Secretary of State for India.

Delhi, the 18th March 1921.

SIR,

IN your despatch No. Revenue-98, dated the 9th October 1919, you pointed out that under Article 23 (c) of the Peace Treaty the Members of the League of Nations had agreed to entrust the League with the general supervision of the execution of agreements with regard to the traffic in opium and other dangerous drugs; that under Article 295 of the Peace Treaty it had been agreed that the Hague Opium Convention of January 1912 should be brought into force and the necessary legislation should be enacted without delay; that it is necessary for the Government of India, therefore, to review the whole position as regards the laws and regulations affecting opium, morphia and other drugs and to make such changes in these laws and regulations as may be necessary to give the fullest effect to the provisions of the Convention; that it is probable that His Majesty's Government will lay the proposals of the Government of India in this matter, along with those of the Colonies, before the League of Nations, so that the League may consider their adequacy or otherwise with due regard to the information which it will no doubt possess as to the proceedings of other nations; and in view of this you asked us to submit a report in the form of a comprehensive survey of the existing laws, regulations and practice, and to communicate at the same time in full detail the steps which we propose to take in order to bring these into conformity with the Convention. These matters have already formed the subject of lengthy correspondence with you in connection with the Shanghai International Opium Convention of 1909 and the Hague Opium Convention, 1912: and the report must, therefore, necessarily repeat and recapitulate much of the information contained in previous despatches. We propose to deal in this despatch with the production and export of 'raw opium' as defined in Chapter I of the Convention and to address you later with regard to the other matters.

2. The first Article of the Hague Opium Convention provides that

"The Contracting Powers shall enact effective laws or regulations for the control of the production and distribution of raw opium unless laws and regulations on the subject are already in existence."

The cultivation of the poppy, the trade in opium and the opium habit existed in India long before the period of British rule, and the system of opium administration as it exists to-day has a basis in historical and political conditions which can only be alluded to in this report, but should not be overlooked. For over a century the Indian Government have been engaged in the gradual acquisition of control over the production, transit and sale of the drug throughout the continent; by the practical concentration of the cultivation, so far as British India is concerned, within restricted areas; by the discontinuance of cultivation in many of the internal Indian States, as the outcome of negotiation; and by the inclusion of all the different provinces in the general system as they were gradually acquired, or as the necessity for regulation became manifest. So far as administration and control are concerned, India consists of two parts—(1) British India over which the Government of India exercises direct control and which comprises an area of more than a million of square miles and a diversity of population of 244 millions and (2) the Indian States with a total area of 675,000 square miles and a population of 71 millions over which the Government of India exercise no direct control. It will be convenient to deal with these separately.

3. Throughout the whole of British India (apart from the exceptional case mentioned in paragraph 6) the cultivation of opium is regulated by Act No. XIII of 1857 (as amended by Act I of 1911), and Act I of 1878, copies of which are inclosed. Under those Acts the cultivation of the poppy within British India is permissible only under a license; the total area to be sown is fixed by the Government from year to year; and the license specifies the exact area which the licensees may cultivate. With the insignificant exception mentioned in the next paragraph, the cultivator who receives advances when required to assist him in production, is bound to sell the whole of his turnout to the Government at a rate fixed from time to time by the latter. The crude opium so made over to the opium department is conveyed to the Government factory at Ghazipur, and is there made up into 'raw opium' as defined in Chapter I of the Convention. The total area to be cultivated in any one year is determined by the Government of India on a consideration of the amount required for internal consumption and the amount to be exported to foreign countries. The production of this opium is controlled by the opium department which had formerly two agencies, one stationed at Patna in the province of Bihar and Orissa and the other at Ghazipur in the United Provinces. Consequent, however, on the large reductions made in the export trade, it was found possible to combine the two agencies into one, and the Patna agency was abolished. It has further been found possible to restrict the cultivation of the poppy to certain districts in the United Provinces. This has made it now a comparatively easy task to supervise the growing of opium under license and to prevent the illicit cultivation of the poppy. Statement No. 12 attached to this despatch shows the area under poppy cultivation and the outturn of opium under the Bengal monopoly system for each year during the present century. It will be seen that the outturn bears no consistent proportion to the area under cultivation, since owing to climatic and other causes the annual outturn per acre is a variable quantity. The policy adopted by the Government of India is to secure that the cultivation shall be rigidly limited to the amount necessary for meeting the annual demand and shall not vary too greatly owing to variations in seasonal conditions. For this purpose an attempt is made to keep a sufficient stock in hand to cope with such variations. The price paid for the opium which is taken over by the Government from the cultivator bears no relation to the market rate for opium. The trade element does not, therefore, enter into any of the operations until the opium is issued from the Government factory. It will be observed from the statement that mainly owing to the large reduction in the export trade, which is referred to in paragraph 8 below, the area cultivated for poppy under the Bengal monopoly system has fallen from 612,831 acres in 1903-04 to 163,125 acres in 1919-20, and that the outturn of opium has fallen from 10,227,867 lbs. in 1902-03 to 1,876,114 lbs in 1919-20. Since opium may only be grown on Government account and the operations from start to finish are rigidly supervised by officers of the Government, we consider that the control exercised under this monopoly system is the most restrictive, short of total prohibition, that it is possible to devise.

4. The exception mentioned in the preceding paragraph is that of the cultivation of poppy in the Punjab. The system in force in this province is slightly different from that which prevails in the rest of British India where, as explained in the preceding paragraph, the operations are entirely controlled by the opium department. No restriction had been placed by the Sikh administration on the cultivation of the poppy in the Punjab, although the production was nowhere very considerable. Since the province came under British rule, steps have been taken to control the cultivation of the poppy, and in this province, as elsewhere in British India, such cultivation is now only permitted under license. The cultivation is undertaken mainly for the production of poppy heads but partly also for the extraction of opium. The matter is regulated by the Opium Act I of 1878 and the rules made thereunder by the Punjab Government copies of which are enclosed. The cultivation for poppy heads is permitted in only two districts and cultivation of the poppy for the extraction of opium is only permitted in one tahsil of the Simla Hill district and in one sub-division of the Kangra district The area under cultivation is inconsiderable, having been gradually reduced to about 2,000 acres. The only difference between this system and the Bengal monopoly system is that the enforcement of the provisions of the law is entrusted to the revenue and excise authorities of the province and not to the opium department of the Government of India, and that the produce is handed over to licensed vendors instead of to the opium department. The control over the production of raw opium in this province is, therefore, as rigid as in the rest of British India.

The regulations regarding the growing of poppy in Ajmer-Merwara—a small enclave surrounded by Indian States—are similar to those in the Punjab, but no poppy has been cultivated in this area since 1909-10.

5. The Indian States stand in a different category. Over the production of opium in these territories the Government of India can exercise no direct control. They have, however, in the past dealt with it by fiscal and other checks when it passed into their territories as it has to do when destined for consumption in British India or for export to foreign countries. The most important centre of opium production in Indian States consists of a number of States in Central India and Rajputana, where what is known as "Malwa" opium is produced. The great bulk of the opium formerly produced in these tracts was destined for export mainly to China, but the cessation of the trade with China has led to a large reduction in the area under cultivation. Apart from the control exercised over the export of opium from these States, the only other method in which the Government of India can deal with the question in Indian States is by negotiation. Several States have come into line with the Indian Government and have entered into separate agreements to prohibit the cultivation of poppy in their territories; those agreements bind them to supply themselves with the opium required by them from the Government depots, and to retail it in their territories at a price not lower than the retail price in force in British districts. In return for the acceptance of these obligations they obtain their opium on favoured terms. As regards the States in which opium is produced, the transit of opium through British India is only permitted on behalf of the Government of India, or of some other Indian State which has received permission from the Government of India to obtain a specific quantity for its internal consumption. A certain amount of the Malwa opium is purchased by the Government of India from the Malwa States and despatched direct to the Ghazipur Factory. The risk of smuggling from these States has been greatly reduced owing to the decline in cultivation consequent on the extinction of the China trade and also owing to the fact that Malwa opium can readily be distinguished from Bengal opium. But while the Government of India have been able by negotiation to bring certain Indian States into line with their policy regarding the production of opium and while no opium produced within their territories can pass into British India except under permit, we must at the same time point out that as regards the production of opium in Indian States for consumption therein, the Government of India can exercise no effective regulation. To attempt to enforce any policy of suppressing or restricting the cultivation of opium in these States, apart from any arrangements that may be entered into in treaty obligations, would mean an interference with the internal administration of the States, which the Government of India have no power to exercise either by prescriptive or treaty rights.

6. The exception mentioned in the opening sentence of paragraph 3 of this despatch refers to the remote and inaccessible tracts which border on the Chinese frontier, where difficulties have always been experienced in the control of the cultivation of the poppy and the export of opium. The cultivation of the poppy has been prohibited throughout Burma proper, except in an area lying along the Yunnan frontier. The control of Government over these frontier tracts is in some cases very shadowy, in others incomplete, and in the case of all, any action involves interference with liberties which the untutored tribes in these States are likely to resent. One uniform line of action would be impracticable, and repressive measures must in the main depend on political considerations and on the degree of administrative control actually exercised. Even such measures as may be atttempted cannot be properly enforced owing to the complication caused by the growing of opium in the province of Yunnan. The increase of opium growing in China has, as a matter of fact, led to a considerable fall in the price of opium in this neighbourhood, and latterly to smuggling of opium from China into Burma.

Up to 1913 there was no prohibition of the cultivation of opium in the Kachin Hills and the Burmese side of the frontier, but in that year the cultivation of the poppy was prohibited in several districts over which this Government has control. The Government of Burma have now recommended, and we have agreed, that further steps be taken. Copies are enclosed of the Kachin Hill-Tribes Regulation, 1895, and of the Upper Burma and Arakan Hills Frontier Distributed Districts Regulation, 1907, which will show the nature of the control that may be exercised over these tribes. It is proposed to amend the Kachin Hill-Tribes Regulation 1895, so as to enable the cultivation of the poppy in the Kachin Hill-Tracts in the Katha, Bhamo and Myitkyina districts to be prohibited. Under these arrangements orders will be proclaimed in the hill tracts that after the present season the cultivation of the poppy will be entirely prohibited, that any crop found will be destroyed, and that the owner of the crop will be liable to prosecution, and that Chinese subjects found cultivating the poppy on the Burmese side of the frontier will be expelled from British territory.

In the Shan States the question is much more difficult. In this case it is not only the ordinary Shan population that has to be considered, but also the attitude of the Chiefs. Unless their co-operation is secured, any action that may be taken is likely to prove a failure. Even here however it is proposed to take action in the cis-Salween States. In the trans-Salween States any immediate control is impossible In certain of these areas the Government has no authority, while in the Kengtung State which has more geographical and racial affinities with the population across the border than with Burma, there are difficulties of communication. In the cis-Salween States it is proposed to issue a notification to the effect that it is the intention of Government to control the output of opium after two years in all these States, and the control exercised will be directed to reducing poppy cultivation at first to the barest minimum required for internal consumption in these States, and eventually to suppressing it completely.

7. Article 2 of the Convention runs as follows:—

> "Due regard being had to the difference in their commercial conditions, the Contracting Powers shall limit the number of towns, ports, or other localities through which the export or import of raw opium shall be permitted"

Under our notification No. 4311, dated the 5th November 1872, issued under the Sea Customs Act, the export of opium from British India is restricted to the ports of Calcutta and Bombay.

8. Article 3 of the Convention contains the following provisions:—

"The Contracting Powers shall take measures—

(a) to prevent the export of raw opium to countries which shall have prohibited its entry ; and

(b) to control the export of raw opium to countries which restrict its import, unless regulations on the subject are already in existence."

Simultaneously with the steps taken to control the production of raw opium, steps were also taken to control the export of opium from India. The opium produced in British India is, as stated above, taken over entirely by the Government and removed to the Government factory at Ghazipur where it is made up into raw opium for internal consumption or for foregin export. The only opium produced in India that can be exported is opium purchased from the Government of India. The Malwa opium produced in Indian States had formerly a considerable share in the foreign trade, and towards the end of last century the average annual number of chests exported from these States amounted to about 35,000. Opium from the Indian States to Bombay could only be sent under a pass granted by an official of the Government of India. When under the agreement with China steps were taken to restrict and ultimately to abolish the trade with China, the Government of India placed a limit upon the total amount of opium that might be exported from the whole of India. Statement No. 14 appended to this report shows the volume of the foreign trade. It will be observed that the total exports have fallen from 71,937 chests in 1903 to 14,060 chests in 1919. The explanation of the sudden drop from the years 1907-08 lies in the agreement with China for the limitation of the total exports from India. Under that agreement it was decided to restrict the aggregate volume of exports of opium from India to 61,900 chests in 1908, 56,800 chests in 1909 and 51,700 chests in 1910, and it was further agreed that if during these three years the Chinese Government had duly carried out their arrangements for diminishing the production and consumption of opium in China, this annual diminution of the export after the three years in question should be continued in the same proportion. As the producers of Malwa opium in Indian States were affected by this arrangement, the Government of India agreed to distribute the total amount to be exported to China between the opium grown in British India and that grown in the Indian States. The Government of India also arranged to restrict the permissible amount of opium to be exported to other foreign countries to a maximum of 16,000 chests a year, a figure that was arrived at by deducting from the total exports from India the amount of the imports of Indian opium into China. Subsequently, the Government of India agreed to further action in favour of China by reduction of the annual amounts allowed to be exported in a proportion greater than that required by the agreement, and finally closed down the trade altogether in 1913. Quite apart from the Pekin Agreement, the Government of India also voluntarily reduced their exports to the extra-China markets by 2,800 chests, not because they believed that the genuine demand for Indian opium in these markets had diminished, but because they desired to help China against opium being smuggled from other countries under the stimulus of the enormously high prices prevailing within her borders, and in this way the total amount fixed for export to foreign countries was reduced in 1912 to 13,200 chests. Now that the trade with China has entirely ceased, only opium purchased direct from the Government of India can be exported from India.

The increase and subsequent decrease in the exports and also in the area under cultivation from the year 1916 onwards was due to the requirements of the British Government of opium for medical purposes during the war. This immediate demand was met by depleting the reserve stock maintained for the purposes described in paragraph 3 above.

The only country which has prohibited the entry of raw opium is, so far as we are aware, China, and as export to China is now not permitted from our ports, clause (a) of this Article has been given effect to.

From the year 1915 the Government of India have continuously pursued the policy of endeavouring to supply opium direct to the Governments of consuming countries in substitution for the sales by public auction. The contracting Government is expected to take substantially its whole requirements from India, but no obligation is imposed on it to take a minimum quantity, and on occasions the Government of India have supplied less than the quantity required. The Governments with which such arrangements have been made are those of the Straits Settlements (including the Malay States), Hongkong, Siam, British North Borneo, Dutch East Indies and Ceylon. The responsibility for limiting their demands to their legitimate requirements, and for preventing re-export is thus in these cases placed clearly and definitely on these Governments who alone are in a position to gauge the demand, to limit their imports accordingly and to prevent exports. Last year about three-fourths of the total exports were made direct to the Governments of the consuming countries. The rest of opium for foreign export is disposed of by public auction at Calcutta. The opium remains in the Government warehouses while in Calcutta and may only be removed therefrom under a system of supervision designed to ensure that a chest may not be tampered with or the opium contained in it diverted for illicit consumption within British India. Negotiations are afoot for direct contracts with the remaining large importers of Indian opium. These Governments are Japan, Portugal (for Macao) and France (for French Indo-China or Saigon), and when and if these negotiations are carried to a successful conclusion, the necessity for the public auctions will probably disappear. It will be obvious therefore that this Article of the Hague Convention has been complied with by this Government. The provisions of the Article had in fact been accepted and adopted in practice long before they became formally operative. India exports no opium to any country which prohibits import; it exports no opium in excess of the quantities which the Government of the consuming country desires to admit; and it has in practice gone further than the provisions of this Article require, and has voluntarily placed a limit on the total exports from India irrespective of what the particular demands may be. This policy has been consistently pursued, although the curtailment of the trade has involved us in a loss of over £4 millions a year, and has seriously interfered with the balance of trade.

9. Article 4 of the Convention is as follows :—

> "The Contracting Powers shall make regulations requiring that every package containing raw opium intended for export shall be marked in such a way as to indicate its contents provided that the consignment exceeds 5 killog."

All chests of opium for export are packed in gunny, and marked with a number, a red stripe, and the words "Benares opium."

10. Article 5 of the Convention runs thus :—

> "The Contracting Powers shall not allow the import and export of raw opium except by duly authorised persons."

Paragraph 8 of this report shows that we have endeavoured to secure that consignments of opium are made over as far as possible direct to the Government of the importing country where it so desires. All exports of raw opium are strictly regulated by rule 40 of the rules made by the Bengal Government in Notification No. 562, dated the 2nd March 1918, and the subsidiary instructions contained in the Notification No. 293, dated 30th January 1920, copies of which are enclosed. We shall deal in the separate communication referred to in paragraph 1 above with the question of imports.

11. With reference to Article 14 of the Convention, we may note that, as stated in paragraph 8 of this despatch, a certain amount of medicinal opium was exported from the Ghazipur factory, during the war, though this trade has now entirely ceased. Apart from that, a certain quantity of opium derivatives is ordinarily manufactured in the Ghazipur factory, a portion of which has been shipped from time to time to London for disposal in that market and the rest is used for meeting legitimate medicinal requirements in India. A statement is attached giving the more recent statistics of this business.

12. Article 21 of the Convention runs as follows :—

> "The Contracting Powers shall communicate to one another, through the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Netherlands—
> (a) The texts of the existing laws and administrative regulations respecting the matters referred to in the present Convention, or promulgated in virtue of the clauses thereof;
> (b) Statistical information as regards the trade in raw opium prepared opium, morphine, cocaine, and their respective salts, as well as in the other drugs or their salts or preparations referred to in the present Convention.

These statistics shall be furnished with as many details and within a period as short as may be considered possible."

The statistics supplied in accordance with this requirement are enumerated in the schedule attached to this despatch.

We have the honour to be,

Secretary to the Government of India.

No. 1945-S.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE.

INTOXICATING DRUGS.

Simla, the 17th September, 1921.

RESOLUTION.

The following paper is published for general information :—

Despatch to His Majesty's Secretary of State for India, No. 14, dated the 24th March 1921.

In our despatch No. 28, dated the 18th March 1921, we dealt with the production and export of "raw opium" as defined in Chapter 1 of the Hague Opium Convention and promised to address you later with regard to the other matters dealt with in Convention. In the present despatch, we propose to deal with the distribution and import of raw opium and with Chapters II, III and V of the Convention.

2. Article 1 of the Convention requires that the Contracting Powers shall enact effective laws or regulations for the control of the distribution of raw opium unless laws or regulations on the subject are already in existence. The distribution of raw opium in India is controlled primarily by section 4 of the Opium Act, 1878, which prohibits the manufacture, possession, transport, import, export and sale of opium except as permitted by rules framed under the Act. How far the control thus imposed is effective can only be seen by an examination of the rules framed by each Local Government and Administration separately, in accordance with the varying local circumstances of each province or area. Until recently such rules could be made only with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, and we have thus hitherto been able to secure uniformity in the main lines of administration. We, therefore, do not propose to examine the provincial rules in detail but to show how the distribution of opium is controlled by the main provisions of the rules which are uniform. The questions to be examined may be stated concisely as, what opium can the ordinary individual obtain and how can he obtain it? Such opium must either have been produced in India or have been imported from abroad. We have already shown in our despatch with regard to the production and export of raw opium how the production of opium in India is controlled. The produce of the poppy cultivated on Government account must all be delivered to the Government Opium Department, and such opium can, therefore, only be obtained from Government. The produce of the poppy cultivated by licensed cultivators in the Punjab can only be sold to licensed vendors and cannot be obtained direct by the ordinary consumer. Government, or "Excise," opium is issued only to licensed wholesale or retail vendors. The wholesale vendors may sell such opium or opium obtained from a licensed cultivator only to other licensed vendors or to licensed druggists : the retail vendor and the licensed druggist may sell to individuals. Thus the individual can obtain opium produced in India only from a licensed retail vendor or a licensed druggist. Each stage of the distribution down to the retail vendor is safeguarded by an elaborate system of transport passes while the conditions governing the license of a retail vendor are most stringent. He may not sell to any one person at one time more than the quantity of opium which an individual may lawfully possess ; he may sell only for cash and only on premises for which he is licensed ; he must not allow consumption on such premises and he must keep correct daily accounts of his sales which shall be open at all times to inspection by Excise officers. The number of licensed shops in an area is fixed so as not to exceed what is necessary to satisfy the moderate needs of legitimate consumers and is constantly being reduced as improvements in communications or other changes in local circumstances render centralization of supply more easy.

3. Equally strict control is maintained over the supply of Indian grown opium obtainable from a licensed druggist and the supply of imported opium. A notification in our Department of Commerce and Industry under the Sea Customs Act, 1878, No. 720—79, dated the 4th February 1911, prohibits absolutely the import of opium by sea or by land by means of the post and restricts its import by other means to cases in which it is imported by persons permitted to import it by a Local Government or Administration. The rules as to import made by Local Governments vary considerably in detail, but generally speaking it may be said that only licensed druggists and medical practitioners are permitted to import opium in quantities of which they may lawfully be in possession by means of a special permit or license. Exceptions are made in the case of visitors of distinction from countries outside India and foreign horse-dealers, who are allowed to import small quantities for the personal use of themselves and their attendants or for their horses as the case may be. In the Punjab (rules 14 to 17 of the Opium Rules), licensed vendors are also permitted to import on passes opium produced in the Simla Hill States and the Hill States of Chamba, Mandi, Suket and Sirmur. Similarly in Ajmer-Merwara, licensed wholesale and retail vendors may import Malwa opium on pass. The further distribution of opium thus obtained from Indian States is regulated in exactly the same manner as the distribution of Excise opium described above. Imports by licensed druggists and supplies obtained by them from licensed vendors can only be sold for medicinal purposes in quantities not in excess of the amount which the purchaser may legally possess, and correct accounts must be maintained showing the amount of opium in the possession of the licensee from day to day.

4. In the description which we have given above of the system by which the distribution of raw opium is controlled, we have not made any distinction in respect of Burma. So far as it goes that description is true of Burma also, but it is not complete ; for the circumstances of Burma are peculiar. We shall, however, have to refer in detail to the history of Opium Regulation in Burma in connection with article 6 of the Convention, and it is sufficient here to state that the sale of opium to Burmans in Upper Burma, except for medical purposes, is absolutely forbidden, while in Lower Burma opium may only be sold to such Burmans as have been registered as consumers. The number of such registered consumers decreased from about 12,000 in 1912 to 5,405 in 1920 : none of the survivors is less than 52 years of age and with the death of the last of these there will be absolute prohibition of opium to Burmans, except for medical purposes, in the whole of Burma. It may also be observed that this special treatment of Burmans involves an even closer control of the sale of opium to non-Burmans than that exercised over the sale of opium in India proper.

5. We may, therefore, confidently claim that effective laws and regulations for the control of the distribution of raw opium in India already exist, and that article 1 of the Convention is thus complied with in full. We are aware that the policy of the Government of India in permitting and deriving revenue from the consumption of opium at all is still at the present day as in the past denounced as incompatible with those humanitarian principles which underlie the whole spirit of the Hague Opium Convention. That policy was, however, clearly expounded to the delegates of the various countries participating in the Hague Opium Conference of 1912, and the result is shown in the striking difference between the articles of the Convention which relate to raw opium and those which are concerned with prepared opium. Though, however, we are not strictly concerned in this despatch to do more than show that we have complied with the provisions of the Convention, we feel that in order to remove any possibility of misconception of our attitude, we should reiterate in this place what was said by Lord Hardinge's Government in 1911. In their despatch No. 285, dated the 23rd November 1911, they said, "The prohibition of opium eating in India we regard as impossible, and any attempt at it is fraught with the most serious consequences to the people and the Government. We take our stand unhesitatingly on the conclusion of the Royal Commission which reported in 1895, viz., that the opium habit as a vice scarcely exists in India, that opium is extensively used for non-medical and quasi-medical purposes, in some cases with benefit, and for the most part without injurious consequences ; that the non-medical uses are so interwoven with the medical uses that it would not be practicable to draw a distinction between them in the distribution and sale of the drug ; and that it is not necessary that the growth of the poppy and the manufacture and sale of opium in British India should be prohibited except for medical purposes. Whatever may be the case in other countries, centuries of inherited experience have taught the people of India discretion in the use of the drug, and its misuse is a negligible feature in Indian life. Even if it were possible to suppress the cultivation of opium in India, geographical and political limitations would place it beyond our power to prevent illicit import and consumption on a serious scale :" and again "The great majority of Indian opium-eaters are not slaves to the habit. They take small doses as required and can and do give up the allowance when the need of it is past.

Opium is in virtually universal use throughout India as the commonest and most treasured of the household remedies accessible to the people. It is taken to avert or lessen fatigue, as a specific in bowel complaints, as a prophylactic against malaria (for which its relatively high anorcotine content makes it specially valuable,) to lessen the quantity of sugar in diabetes, and generally to allay pain in sufferers of all ages. The vast bulk of the Indian population, it must be remembered, are strangers to the ministrations of qualified doctors or druggists. They are dependent almost entirely on the herbal simples of the country ; distance and the patient acceptance of hardships standing in the way of prompt access to skilled medical relief. In these circumstances the use of opium in small quantities is one of the most important aids in the treatment of children's sufferings. It is also a frequent help to the aged and infirm, and an alleviation in diseases and accidents which are accepted as incurable. To prevent the sale of opium except under regular medical prescription would be a mockery ; to many millions it would be sheer inhumanity.''

6. In article 5 of the Convention the Contracting Powers engage not to allow the import of raw opium except by duly authorized persons. In our description of the arrangements in force to control the distribution of raw opium, we have already shown how import is restricted to duly authorized persons.

7. Chapter II of the Convention relates to "Prepared Opium." This is defined as the product of raw opium, obtained by a series of special operations, especially by dissolving, boiling, roasting and fermentation, designed to transform it into an extract suitable for consumption. It is also declared to include dross and all other residues remaining when opium has been smoked. In an India Office letter dated the 16th December 1911, the Foreign Office was informed that on the assumption that the motion referred solely to opium prepared for smoking there was no objection to authorizing the British delegates to the Opium Conference to vote in favour of the motion binding the participating Governments to prohibit the importation and exportation of prepared opium, and it is obvious from the report of the British delegates to the Conference that it was the intention of the Conference that opium which is eaten should be understood to be "raw opium," while smoking preparations should be considered "prepared opium." We have laboured this point as the definition which we quoted above refers to consumption and not specifically to consumption by smoking, and by stretching the language employed and ignoring the obvious intentions of the framers of the Convention, it might have been argued that the mere process of dissolving and straining raw opium for the purpose of drinking is sufficient to bring raw opium thus treated within the definition of prepared opium.

The inclusion within the meaning of prepared opium of dross and all other residues remaining when opium has been smoked is not of great importance. None of the provincial rules make specific provision for such dross and residues, but so far as they contain opium or morphine they are covered by the general rules and nothing further appears to be required.

8. Article 6 of the Convention requires the Contracting Powers to take measures for the gradual and effective suppression of the manufacture of, internal trade in and use of prepared opium, with due regard to the varying circumstances of each country concerned, unless regulations on the subject are already in existence. In dealing with this article, we shall have to distinguish between India proper and Burma the circumstances of which, as we have already remarked in paragraph 4, are peculiar. In India, so far as the manufacture of and internal trade in prepared opium are concerned, the position is simple. None of the rules permit the manufacture of smoking preparations except by an individual for his own use from opium lawfully in his possession. In some provinces, moreover, the conditions of the license issued for the vend of opium contain a categorical prohibition of the boiling of opium by the licensee for any purpose whatsoever. Similarly the sale of smoking preparations is nowhere permitted by the rules. Such manufacture and sale are, therefore, absolutely prohibited under section 4 of the Opium Act, and so far there is the fullest compliance with the terms of this article. There remains the question of the gradual and effective suppression of the use of prepared opium. In a Resolution No. 533-F.E., dated the 19th August 1912, dealing with the resolutions adopted by the International Opium Commission at Shanghai, Lord Hardinge's Government pointed out that it had long been recognized and could not be too clearly understood that in India opium-smoking stood on a very different footing from opium-eating. Opium-smoking was universally reprobated by public opinion ; it was rarely resorted to for quasi-medical purposes but was generally indulged in as a social vice ; and the danger of its contagion, when practised in public, furnished strong justification for adopting measures which approached as nearly as was practicable to total prohibition. They pointed out the severe restrictions to which opium-smoking was already subject, in particular the restriction to one tola of the amount of smoking preparations which an individual might lawfully possess. They were of opinion that the quantity of opium daily used by an opium-smoker was so large in comparison with that used by an opium-eater and the inconvenience and difficulty involved in the repeated preparation for smoking were so great that those restrictions hardly fell short of legal prohibition. They considered, however, that the time was ripe for further steps in the direction of direct and unqualified prohibition and that it was desirable to suppress all public gatherings for the purpose of smoking opium, whether they were called saloons, clubs or social assemblies and to prohibit all manufacture of opium-smoking preparations save by an individual of a small quantity for his own private consumption and not even on behalf of another. The measures which they suggested to further their purposes were :—

(a) to provide that an assembly of three or more persons for the purpose of smoking opium should be declared illegal, no exception being made in favour of members of the same family, and that the presence of opium-smoking pipes or other apparatus or of any quantity of smoking preparations should be held sufficient to raise the presumption of an intention to smoke opium ;

(b) the reduction of the maximum limit of private possession of opium smoking preparations to the amount which constitutes the daily dose of an ordinary consumer ;

(c) the reduction of the maximum limit of private possession of opium other than smoking preparations ;

(d) the raising of the issue price of opium.

9. The change in the rules, which allowed manufacture on behalf of a smoker as well as by himself, contemplated in this resolution has, we have already seen, been carried out in all provinces as have also the other measures referred to in the preceding paragraph with the exception of (a). The limit of private possession of opium-smoking preparations and of other opium has been reduced since 1912, as shown in the following table :—

10. The measures described above while they make the habit of opium-smoking more difficult and more expensive have nothing in them in the nature of the unqualified prohibition which it was the aim of Lord Hardinge's Government to enforce in part by suppressing all public gatherings for the purpose of smoking opium. The measures contemplated to this end are described in (a) in paragraph 8 above, and more than one local Government expressed their willingness to legislate on the lines that had been suggested. The Government of Madras went further and were prepared to prohibit the practice of opium-smoking altogether. It was, however, represented that such legislation would more suitably be effected in the Imperial Legislative Council and the main lines on which such legislation should proceed were agreed upon by Lord Hardinge's Government. At the same time they felt that they could not during the war introduce a measure which was bound to be contentious and they resolved to postpone further action until the end of the war. Since then the position was changed owing to the introduction of the constitutional reforms. Excise in all Governor's provinces is a provincial, and in all Governor's provinces, except Assam, a transferred subject, and any legislation to be undertaken must be initiated and carried in the reformed provincial Legislative Councils. We propose, however, to invite local Governments to consider the question of proceeding with such legislation on the lines decided on in 1915 in the areas for which they are responsible.

11. We have remarked that the Madras Government were prepared to prohibit the practice of opium-smoking altogether. To this course the Government of India have never been able to agree and we are not prepared to abandon the position which has been taken up by our predecessors. In their despatch of 23rd November 1911, to which we have already referred Lord Hardinge's Government said, "We have arrived at these conclusions after full deliberation, in preference to an attempt at the categorical prohibition of the smoking of opium by individuals. To declare the act in itself illegal would, we are convinced, have been impracticable, impolitic and even dangerous. It would have been necessary for us, in the first instance, to ascertain and register all persons habituated to smoking, as China has endeavoured to do. This, we believe, would present serious difficulty unless we were to register opium-eaters as well—an impossibility under present conditions in India. But there are more imperative objections to the declaring of private opium-smoking an offence. If made effective it would only lead to the increased use of other and probably more deleterious drugs. But to make it effective would mean domiciliary visits and the closest supervision over persons suspected of the practice. It would open the door to blackmail, espionage and an amount of interference with the inner domestic life of the people which would be absolutely intolerable." With this declaration we are in the fullest accord. The gradual and effective suppression of the use of prepared opium required by article 6 of the Convention is now as in the past our ideal, and we may with confidence claim that we have taken and are still taking every practicable step towards its realization with due regard to the circumstances of this country. More than this the Convention does not require.

12. We have still to consider the case of Burma and in this connection we cannot do better than quote the memorandum presented by Sir William Meyer to the International Conference at The Hague in 1912.

"The case of Burma (as stated by the Government of India in the despatch from which I have so freely quoted) in regard to opium regulation stands by itself.

"Historical considerations, ethnic characteristics, and local circumstances have had to be carefully weighed in the evolution of the present opium policy in Burma. When Upper Burma was annexed in 1885 the Government of India had had sufficient administrative experience of opium and its effects on Burmans in Lower Burma to warrant the application of a prohibitory policy as regards the indigenous population. This policy was supported by Buddhist public opinion, which was entirely against opium, and by the nominal prohibition of opium by the Burmese dynasty which preceded our rule. The prohibition under Burmese rule was not, however, very effective, and the native rulers, while punishing those who sold opium and liquor to Burmans, levied customs dues on all liquor and opium imported into Upper Burma. The British Government, having before it the proved injurious effect of opium on the Burmese race in Lower Burma, absolutely prohibited its sale to or possession by Burmans in Upper Burma except for medical purposes, and this prohibition still continues. The absolute prohibition of non-medical opium, whether for eating or smoking, to Burmans was extended to Lower Burma in 1893. In Lower Burma, however, a class of opium-smoking Burmese had grown up, and an exception had to be made in their favour. It was provided that all Burmans of 25 years or upwards who desired to continue the use of opium must register themselves, Burmans under 25 years of age not being eligible for registration. The system of registration was not entirely successful from the beginning, and the registers had to be revised from time to time, though of course no names were brought on the revised registers except those of Burmans who could prove their eligibility for registration in 1894, and there are now some 15,000 registered Burman consumers purchasing at the shops in a population of about 10 millions. These consumers were all 25 years of age or more in 1894, and are therefore above 40 years of age at the present day. The rate of decrease ought to be more rapid now, and the race of registered consumers will shortly die out. With their extinction there will be absolute prohibition of opium to Burmans, except for medical purposes, in the whole of Burma, that is, to the great mass of the population of the province.

"The consumption of opium by non-Burman races is allowed as in India proper, but subject, as I shall presently explain, to still more stringent restrictions. It is principally confined to Chinese who smoke, and Indian immigrants belonging to classes who eat opium in moderation in India proper and who continue to do so in Burma.

"Taking the province, as a whole, however, smoking is the prevalent form of consumption, and consequently the shopkeepers in Burma are allowed to make up the raw opium supplied to them in smoking preparations and to retail such preparations to persons entitled to make use of them. The limit of private possession by such persons, whether as regards raw opium or smoking preparations, is 3 tolas or a little more than 1 ounce.

"The policy of forbidding opium consumption to Burmans other than registered smokers in Lower Burma proved very difficult to carry out in practice owing to the large amount of smuggling and illicit sales which it provoked. These difficulties arose mainly from the following circumstances : as has been above explained, the registration of confirmed Burman smokers in 1894 had been very incomplete, largely owing to the ignorance of the people in regard to the new restrictions to which they were to be subject. It became a profitable industry to supply the cravings of smokers thus excluded, and this category was further swelled by licit consumers (non-Burmans and registered Burmans) whom a too drastic limitation in the number of licensed shops had deprived of a legitimate source of supply. The extensive seaboard of the province facilitated smuggling from India proper, while the high rate of taxation far exceeding that in India, which the Burma Government had imposed in order to diminish consumption made it profitable not merely to send over illicit opium from India, but to add stuff which had been licitly procured at Indian shops. In Upper Burma, again, the contiguity of opium-producing tracts in Yunan and the Shan States, and a long and difficult frontier provoked smuggling from those areas. Lastly, it was found that the licensed shop-keepers themselves were largely joining in the contraband traffic, adding smuggled opium to their licit supplies and sending out hawkers to vend the stuff outside the shops, while legitimate possessors were being tempted to dispose of some of their purchases to non-registered Burmans. And I need hardly add that the development of this contraband industry threatened to infect the rising generation of Burmans, who could in no case have claimed registration in 1894, with the smoking habit.

"Difficult as the problem thus was, the Government of India can claim to have dealt with it in a satisfactory and efficient manner. In the first place, as already explained, Burman opium smokers who might have been registered in 1894, but had not been so, were brought on the registers, thus enabling them to get their opium in a lawful instead of in an unlawful manner. The number of sanctioned shops was at the same time somewhat increased, though it still amounts to only 120 for the whole of the vast province.

"Secondly, the strength and efficiency of the preventive staff has been enormously increased at a cost which has severely strained the financial resources of the Provincial Government.

"Thirdly, the shop system has been entirely recast on lines which all but amount, in practice, to a policy of official vend. The method is thus described in the Government of India's despatch :—

"Each shop, though let to a private licensee, is placed in the charge of a separate resident Excise officer, who is required to take charge of the opium when the shop is closed, to be present at the shop throughout the hours of sale, to see that the name of each purchaser and the quantity sold to him are correctly recorded in the shop registers by the licensed vendor or his staff, and to restrict the quantities sold month by month to each purchaser to the purchaser's probable consumption and means of purchase. This latter restriction on sales was introduced in order to stop the sale of opium to men buying for resale to Burmans who cannot under the law purchase opium. Careful enquiry has been necessary in order to eliminate purchasers who were not consumers, and to restrict allowances to consumers so as to afford them little or no margin for sale to others. In addition to the record kept in the daily sale registers, personal ledgers have been opened in the shops for all consumers whose daily allowance is fixed above one-eighth of a tola. Each consumer non-Burman or (in Lower Burma) registered Burman, is given a page in the register the total quantities of opium purchased by him, both at the shop within whose sphere he resides and at other shops, are recorded month by month under his name and note is made of the man's occupation and income with other information bearing on the allowance of opium made to him. The whole of these operations are carried on under the closest official supervision, though the profits on the sales, after payment of a fixed license fee, accrue to the licensed vendor."

"The retail price to consumers is fixed at 1 rupee per tola (or say 3s. 6d. per oz.) for raw opium and 1¼ rupees (or 3s. 10d. per oz.) for smoking preparations, save at a few special shops where it has been pitched lower owing to the special facilities for smuggling. Further, in four districts in which 'foreign opium' (a term I shall presently explain) is supplied the rates at present are 10 annas (10d.) per tola for raw and 15 annas per tola for prepared opium. The cost of the drug has thus been made much higher than in India proper, where it is by no means low. Thus, comparing like with like—the amount of taxation which the Government levies on each seer (about 2 lbs.) of opium as I stated in my previous paper, amounts on the average, on the last statistics available, to 26 rupees in India proper, while in Burma it is 65 rupees per seer, or more than double.

"The 'foreign opium' above referred to is the product of Chinese areas and the Shan States bordering on Upper Burma, which has been allowed in for licit consumption, under strict Government control, in four districts of the province into which it could otherwise be easily smuggled ; and in this category has to be included opium grown in certain Kachin villages where poppy cultivation is allowed because, though the villages are nominally within British Burma, their situation in remote hills has hitherto rendered it impossible to make any prohibition of such cultivation effective. Subject to these exceptions the cultivation of the poppy is prohibited throughout Burma, and the sole source of licit supply is Bengal opium obtained from India by Government channels.

"Lastly, steps have been taken to cope with the smuggling into Burma of opium licitly procured by private persons in India proper by restricting the supply to shops in certain districts of Bengal, where this method of contraband supply was found to prevail, to quantities rigidly fixed with reference to estimated local requirements.

"Though the smuggling trade still constitutes a grave danger, against which the utmost precautions are necessary, and though, in spite of these precautions, it is believed that there is still a considerable smuggling trade between India proper and Burma, the fact remains that the special measures which I have described, the vigilance of the Excise staff, and the frequent seizures they make have produced a very salutary effect. Thus I find from the last Excise Administration Report of Burma that the enquiries of the preventive staff lead to the conclusion that the price of illicit opium at Rangoon, the chief entrepot of the smuggling trade from India, which was 75 or 80 rupees per seer in the early part of 1909, had risen to 125 rupees per seer in 1911, and this immense increase in price clearly indicates a materially diminished source of supply. And, as in the case of India proper every diminution of the area under poppy cultivation there, consequent on the shutting down of the trade with China must diminish the sources from which this contraband traffic is supplied. I may further mention that while the consumption of licit opium in Burma was about 83,000 seers seven years ago, it has shrunk to 52,000 seers in 1910-11.

"I now turn to the further measures which the Government of India have been considering since the Shangai Commission reported. In the first place, as has been already pointed out, the number of Burmans specially permitted to consume opium forms a factor which is progressively diminishing to total extinction.

"As regards the non-Burman consumers, the Government of India have carefully considered whether the time has come for the absolute prohibition of the use of opium, except for medical purposes, throughout Burma, but have had to reply to the question in the negative in the light of present-day conditions. 'We consulted,' to use their own words, 'the Government of Burma which after a thorough enquiry has come to the conclusion that the proposal is impracticable at present. The present sources of the supply of opium to Burma are India, the transborder provinces of China, and the difficult country of the semi-barbarous tribes—the Shans, Kachins, and Wa—within the British sphere. The licit supply from India could be stopped at once, but our local officers report that the production of opium in Chinese territory just across the border of Burma has not yet been successfully stopped. There will also be difficulty in enforcing the prohibition of opium in the tribal country, and much discontent will inevitably be caused by the attempt. Unless these supplies are cut off there will be the strongest stimulus given to smuggling, under which even the present protection given to Burmans will be rendered nugatory. There is considerable smuggling of opium already from India into Burma on account of the very high prices ruling in Burma relatively to India, and this will be enormously increased if the licit supply is cut off, unless the preventive staff is strengthened to an extent altogether beyond the resources of the Provincial Government. Further, the only method by which a total prohibition against non-Burman races in Burma could be enacted with any hope of success would be by a system of registration (of persons already addicted to the habit) similar to the registration of Burman opium consumers in Lower Burma. The non-Burmese population, however, consists of a large floating population of Indians and of Chinese from the Straits Settlements, who are not settled in Burma but come there as coolies, sepoys (Sikhs), merchants, clerks, domestic servants, or in pursuit of other professions. It would be impossible to introduce registration once for all among such a migratory population, and a proposal which ignored new-comers who are consumers would most certainly fail. The hill tribes of northern Burma would have to be excepted in any case. And the danger of more deleterious drugs, such as morphia, cocaine, and the derivatives of hemps, taking the place of opium is greater in Burma..........................than in other provinces,' owing to the greater wealth and relatively luxurious habits of the population there.

"It should be noted, however, as evidence that everything is being done, short of prohibition, which existing circumstances permit that, as the Government of India observe, 'the Government of Burma has, as lately as 1910, completely recast its opium rules in the direction of greater stringency as regards the possession and sale of opium. Again, under the Burma Opium Law (Amendment) Act (Burma Act VII of 1909), persons who are believed to earn a livelihood in whole or in part by unlawfully trafficking in opium or by abetting such traffic can be dealt with in a similar manner to that provided for under section 110 of the Criminal Procedure Code. That section empowers magistrates to require security from habitual thieves, burglars, and other criminals and in default of security to send them to prison. Under the same Burma Act the powers of Excise and other officers to arrest and search for opium have been enhanced,' while it may be mentioned that a similar attempt is being made to strengthen the law in respect of cocaine and other intoxicating drugs which show a tendency to take the place of opium with every increase in the stringency of the opium regulations. Further, the Government of Burma along with the other Provincial Governments is about to reduce the limit of private possession of smoking preparations."

13. The position in 1912 thus described is substantially correct at the present day. We have already remarked that the number of registered Burman consumers has now been reduced from the original 34,000 to 5,405 and the retail price to consumers has been raised from 1 rupee per tola of raw opium and 1¼ rupees per tola of smoking preparations to Rs. 1-6 and Rs. 1-11, respectively. These changes are, however, unimportant compared with the step which the Government of Burma, with our approval, proposes to take with effect from the 1st April next, viz., to prohibit the sale of prepared opium throughout Burma. When this has been done an effective advance will have been made in bringing the position in Burma into line with that of the rest of India, and though the peculiar circumstances of Burma necessitate that the process of suppressing the use of prepared opium in that province should be more gradual than in the rest of India, the history of the efforts directed to this end which we have quoted above is sufficient to show that in spite of the difficulties involved we are consistently acting up to the obligation imposed by Article 6 of the Convention.

14. Article 7 of the Convention requires the contracting powers to prohibit the import and export of prepared opium. As none of the provincial rules permits such import and export they are forbidden under section 4 of the Opium Act and this Article is therefore complied with. In the circumstances the question whether the requirements of Article 8 are fulfilled does not arise.

15. Chapter III of the Convention deals with the control of morphine, cocaine and other similar and allied drugs. The control of morphine in India is exercised by means of the Opium Act, 1887, and rules made thereunder, while cocaine is regulated by the various provincial Excise Acts or Regulations and rules thereunder, the rules in both cases being made by the Local Governments and Administrations.

16. In paragraph 23 of the despatch of Lord Hardinge's Government, No. 285, dated the 23rd November 1911, it was stated that the law on the subject of morphia in India varied from province to province and in paragraph 10 of the Resolution of the Government of India, No. 533-F.E., dated the 19th August 1912, a copy of which was forwarded to the India Office with Mr. Howard's letter No. 744-F.E., dated the 3rd October 1912, the attention of Local Governments was drawn to the urgent necessity of a self-contained body of rules relating to morphia and allied opium compounds and the desirability of having unified rules for the whole of British India. It was not, however, until 1918 that a standard set of rules was agreed upon and Local Governments were invited to adopt them with such modifications as local conditions might require. Since then all Local Governments and Administrations have adopted these standard rules with slight immaterial modifications and we propose to examine the rules in force in Bengal as typical of all.

17. The fact that there is no self-contained body of rules regulating cocaine drugs in each province makes it less easy to follow exactly how they are controlled, but as the Excise Acts or Regulations of all provinces and areas follow the same main lines, we trust that the general account which we give of the system with reference to the provisions of each Article of the Convention concerned will make it a simple matter to compare the existing regulations in each province with the requirements of those Articles.

18. It will be seen that in the rules which deal with morphia drugs those drugs are defined as including all alkaloids of opium and their salts, while the general definition of cocaine given in the Acts or partly in the Acts and partly in supplementary notifications under the Acts includes within this term coca leaves, alkaloids of coca, every drink or substance prepared from the coca plant (Erythroxylon coca), every drug, synthetic or other, having a like physiological effect to that of cocaine and every preparation or admixture of any article already mentioned. The rules, therefore, cover both morphine and cocaine and their salts as defined at the beginning of Chapter III of the Convention and dealt with in Articles 9 to 13.

19. Article 9 of the Convention requires the Contracting Powers to enact pharmacy laws or regulations to confine to medical and legitimate purposes the manufacture, sale and use of morphine, cocaine, etc., unless laws or regulations on the subject are already in existence. The morphia rules in force in India allow only licensed dealers or licensed chemists to manufacture (rules 3 and 4) or sell (rules 19 and 21) morphia drugs. The licensed dealer may sell only to other licensed dealers or to licensed chemists or approved practitioners, i.e., registered to registrable medical practitioners and dentists or other persons engaged in medical or veterinary practice approved by the Chief Excise Authority (rule 19). The licensed chemist may sell only on the prescription of an approved practitioner while the approved practitioner may possess morphia drugs only for use in his practice and not for sale (rule 20). Ordinary individuals may only possess such quantity of morphia drugs as has been at one time dispensed and sold for their use under the rules (rule 5). The existing rules thus fully comply with Article 9.

20. So too with regard to cocaine. All the provincial regulations agree in permitting the manufacture of cocaine only by license : in practice, however, no cocaine is manufactured and its manufacture is not contemplated by the rules which restrict possession to various classes of persons among whom the licensed manufacturer of cocaine is not included. The only persons who are allowed to possess cocaine are licensed vendors—who are always approved chemists—approved practitioners, medical officers in charge of hospitals and dispensaries and persons to whom it has been dispensed on the prescription of an approved medical practitioner. The licensed vendors may sell only to other licensed vendors or to approved practitioners or to other persons on a prescription given by an approved practitioner. The approved practitioners may possess cocaine only for use in his practice and not for sale. Article 9 is thus fully complied with in respect of cocaine also.

21. Under Article 10 the Contracting Powers undertake to use their best endeavours to adopt or cause to be adopted certain specific measures in order to give effect to the general policy of controlling all persons manufacturing, importing, selling, distributing and exporting morphine, cocaine, etc., as well as the buildings in which such persons carry on such industry or trade.

(a) The first measure is to confine the manufacture of morphine, cocaine, etc., to those establishments and premises which have been licensed for the purpose. In practice no morphine is manufactured in India except in the Government factory at Ghazipur, though rule 3 of the rules under examination permits a licensed dealer or chemist to manufacture morphia drugs from opium or morphia drugs lawfully in his possession. The form of license granted to the licensed dealers or chemists permits sale of morphia drugs only on the premises for which the license is given, but nothing is said as to manufacture and to this extent the rules are defective. We are, therefore, suggesting to Local Governments the desirability of amending rule 3 so as to permit manufacture by licensed dealers or chemists only on the premises for which they hold a license.

We have already pointed out that there is no manufacture of cocaine in India and that the rule made by the provincial Governments do not contemplate it. In Burma, however, there is a general rule (5) applicable to all holders of licenses for the manufacture or vend of excisable articles to the effect that the license-holder shall enjoy the privileges conferred by the license within the premises therein described and not elsewhere. Similarly all forms of license for the sale of cocaine prescribe that it shall be sold only on the premises in respect of which the license is given, and if forms of license for the manufacture of cocaine should ever be found necessary, a condition of this nature would undoubtedly be prescribed. In existing circumstances, however, there is no occasion to regulate manufacture which is not carried on and the question whether clause (a) of Article 10 is complied with or not does not really arise.

(b) The second measure to be taken under Article 10 is to require that all persons engaged in the manufacture, import, sale, distribution or export of morphine and cocaine shall be furnished with a license to engage in these operations. This requirement is fulfilled in respect of morphine in rules 3 to 20, and in respect of cocaine by the sections of the various Excise Acts, which prohibit the manufacture, import, export, transport or sale of an excisable article except under the authority and subject to the conditions of a license.

(c) The third measure is to require that persons engaged in the manufacture, etc., of morphine and cocaine should be required to enter in their books the quantities manufactured, imports, sales and all other distribution and exports of morphine. The forms of license require licensed dealers and chemists to keep a correct account of all transactions in morphia drugs showing the quantity and source of supplies received and the quantity and destination of all amounts disposed of. Similar accounts are prescribed in most of the forms of license for the vend of cocaine and when this is not so a general provision applicable to all licenses for the vend of excisable articles requires such accounts to be kept. Requirement (c) of Article 10 is, therefore, substantially complied with in both cases.

22. Article 11 requires the Contracting Powers to take measures to prohibit as regards their internal trade the delivery of morphine, cocaine, etc., to any unauthorized persons. Article 12 binds the Contracting Powers to use their best endeavours to restrict to authorized persons the import of morphine, cocaine, etc. These two articles may be considered together. In this connection we would invite attention to the notification in our Department of Commerce and Industry No. 720-79, dated the 4th February 1911, issued under Section 19 of the Sea Customs Act, 1878, by which the import by post, by sea or by land of all alkaloids of opium and cocaine is absolutely prohibited, while import by other means is restricted to cases of import by persons permitted to import by a Local Government or Administration. Similarly by the provincial rules import and transport of morphia drugs and cocaine by post is absolutely prohibited. Importation of morphine drugs by other means is permitted only in the case of persons permitted by the rules to possess such drugs (rules 10 to 13, 25 and 26), while transport is only allowed under a pass (rules 16 and 27). In the case of cocaine the provisions of the rules with regard to possession and sale which have been described above are supplemented by rules forbidding transport except under cover of a pass and import except on special permits issued on each occasion of import. Articles 11 and 12 are thus fully complied with.

23. Article 13 relates to the export of morphine and cocaine, and the Contracting Powers undertake to use their best endeavours to adopt or cause to be adopted measures to ensure that morphine and cocaine shall not be exported to persons resident in the territories of other Contracting Powers unless such persons are furnished with the licenses or permits provided for by the laws or regulations of the importing country. The provincial rules in most cases permit export without reference to destination on an order granted by the Chief Excise Authority and to this extent are defective. We have, however, already informed you in our despatch No. 21, dated the 4th March 1921, that we are prepared to prohibit export of morphine, cocaine, etc., unless the consignment to be exported is covered by a certificate granted by the Government of the country to which it is to be exported to the effect that it is required solely for medicinal or scientific purposes, in the case of countries which enter into the reciprocal arrangements proposed by the Board of Trade. We have at present no information as to which of the signatories of the Hague Opium Convention require imports of morphine to be covered by a license or permit but on the receipt of such information we are prepared at once to issue a notification under the Sea Customs Act forbidding the export of morphine and cocaine to the country concerned unless it is covered by a license or permit granted in accordance with the laws or regulations of such country.

24. Article 14 requires the Contracting Powers to apply the laws and regulations respecting the manufacture, import, sale or export of morphine, cocaine, etc., to four classes of articles.

(a) The first of these is medicinal opium. In none of our provincial rules is medicinal opium as defined in the Convention regulated as such : so far as it is regulated at all it is regulated merely as opium or as an intoxicating drug, and the rules with regard to morphia drugs and cocaine do not apply to it. In this respect, therefore, our rules do not comply with the requirements of the Convention and we are inviting the attention of Local Governments and Administrations to the desirability of amending their definition of morphine drugs so as to include in it medicinal opium as defined in the Convention.

(b) The definitions of morphia drugs and of cocaine in our rules are such as to include all preparations containing morphine and cocaine in however small quantities. The morphia and cocaine rules, therefore, already apply to the preparations mentioned in clause (b) of Article 14. It will, however, be observed that certain specific preparations have been expressly excluded from the operation of the rules on the ground that they contain only negligible quantities of morphine or cocaine. In order, therefore, to make certain that our rules shall be in strict compliance with the terms of the Convention we are having the lists of exempted preparations examined with a view to inviting Local Governments to exclude such preparations as may be found to contain more than 0.2 per cent. of morphine, 0.1 per cent. of cocaine, or 0.1 per cent. of heroine.

(c) Up to the present it has always been taken for granted that heroine was within the meaning of "morphia drug" as defined in the provincial morphia rules. We are, however, doubtful whether as a derivative of an alkaloid of opium and not a preparation containing such an alkaloid heroine can be considered to come within the definition of morphia drug. We are, therefore, suggesting to Local Governments the desirability of amending their definition of "morphia drug" so as to include all derivatives direct or indirect of alkaloids of opium and their salts and the salts of such derivatives. Meanwhile we may say that in practice heroine is already subject to the same rules as morphine and that clause (c) of Article 14 is, therefore, complied with.

(d) It will be seen that the definition of morphia drugs when amended as proposed and the existing definition of cocaine already cover all cases contemplated in clause (d) of Article 14.

25. Article 20 in Chapter V of the Convention requires the Contracting Powers to examine the possibility of enacting laws or regulations making it a penal offence to be in illegal possession of raw opium, prepared opium, morphine, cocaine and their respective salts unless laws or regulations on the subject are already in existence. In this connection we would invite attention to Section 9 of the Opium Act, 1878, and to the penalty clauses of the various provincial Excise Acts and regulations, from which it will be seen that penalties are already provided for such illegal possession.

26. In compliance with Article 21 we forward copies of the texts of existing laws, rules and administrative regulations respecting the matters referred to in the Convention, together with statistical information regarding the trade in raw opium, prepared opium, morphine, cocaine, (e) Mr. A. U. Crowe, late of the Assam Frontier Tea Company.

3. To represent the workers—

Delegate.

(a) Mr. N. M. Joshi, M.L.A., of the Servants of India Society, Bombay, Adviser.

(b) Mr B. P. Wadia.

Mr. D. Chaman Lall had also been nominated as an adviser to the workers' delegate but on the 10th September, intimation was received that he was unable to proceed to Geneva and the Government of India decided that time did not admit of arrangements being made for another adviser.

4. The representatives of the employers have been nominated on the recommendation of the Provisional Committee of the new Federation of Indian Industries now in the process of formation.

5. The workers' representatives have been nominated on the recommendation of the All-India Trade Union Congress Committee.

ORDERED that this Resolution be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India.

ORDERED also that the Resolution be communicated to each delegate and adviser named therein, the Secretary, Bombay Millowners' Association (for the Federation of Indian Industries), the Secretary, All-India Trade Union Congress, and the Accountant General, Central Revenues.

A. C. CHATTERJEE,

Secretary to the Government of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Allahabad, 22nd August 1921.

No. 187—S.-11.—In supersession of Notification No. 38-S-11, dated the 28th February 1921, the agreement printed below, which has been entered into by the Shrimad Dayanand Orphanage, Lucknow, in accordance with the provisions of part VII of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, is hereby published for general information, under section 42 of the said Act.

An agreement entered into this seventeenth day of August nineteen hundred and twenty-one between the Secretary of State for India in Council (hereinafter called the Secretary of State) of the one part and the Dayanand Orphanage, Lucknow, registered under the provisions of Act XXI of 1860 (hereinafter called the Orphanage) of the other part.

Whereas the aforesaid Orphanage has made an application to the Government of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh (hereinafter called the Local Government) to acquire for the purposes of the said Orphanage under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act (Act I of 1894) the plots of land described in the schedule and delineated on the Plan hereto annexed amounting to 1 Rood 32·85 Poles and whereas the aforesaid Local Government is satisfied that the said Orphanage is a Company within the meaning of Section 3, Clause (e) of the aforesaid Land Acquisition Act (Act I of 1894) and whereas the aforesaid Local Government after making and holding such enquiry as is required and prescribed by law is satisfied that the acquisition of the aforesaid land required for the said Orphanage is needed for building residential quarters for orphans and staff of the said Orphanage and which are likely to prove useful to the public and whereas under Section 41 of the aforesaid Land Acquisition Act (Act I of 1894) the said Orphanage is required to enter into an agreement with the Secretary of State regarding the matters specified in the aforesaid sections, it is hereby agreed and declared as follows :—

(1) That the said Orphanage will pay to the Local Government or such person or persons as the said Local Government may appoint in this behalf all such sum or sums of money as shall be awarded under the provisions of the aforesaid Land Acquisition Act of 1894 as compensation to any person or persons who may be found on enquiry held under the provisions of said Act to be interested in the land hereinbefore mentioned as required by the said Orphanage.

(2) That the said Orphanage will pay to the Local Government from its funds all such other charges as may be incidental to the acquisition of the aforesaid land under the provisions of the said Act.

3. That upon the said Orphanage having made all payments incidental to the acquisition of the aforesaid land as mentioned in the foregoing paragraphs 1 and 2 of this agreement the Local Government will forthwith, in consideration of the payment of the compensation money and cost of the acquisition, convey and grant to the said Orphanage the aforesaid plot of land containing by admeasurement 1 Rood 32·85 Poles shown in the schedule and on the plan annexed hereto free from all encumbrances and occupancy and other rights in the manner following :—

4. That the said Orphanage will perpetually hold and enjoy the aforesaid plot and use the said land for the purposes hereby agreed upon, subject to the following provisions :—

(i) That if the land is no longer required by the Orphanage for its original purposes, it will be relinquished and restored in the manner laid down in Board Circular 9-VIII.

(ii) That the said Orphanage will allow free use of the Orphanage to the public under the rules and byelaws of the said Orphanage which have been registered and deposited with the Registrar of the Joint Stock Companies of the United Provinces and will keep the said Orphanage in good repair.

(iii) That the said Orphanage will complete the proposed building within a year, from the time of the land being made over to the said Orphanage.

In witness whereof, the parties have set their hand the day and the date first mentioned.

INSTRUCTIONS.—This register is meant to show in detail every document filed, bearing Court-fee stamps except certified copies, the stamps on which should be entered in the Register of the Court or office which issues them. At the time the stamps are first punched, a serial number should be entered in every document (including certified copies issued), immediately below the stamps and in column 1 of this Register, in the remaining columns of which will be entered the amount of the fees realised on the document. Court-fees on account of process-fees and court-fees on account of boat-hire may be affixed to the same paper, but where this is done the court-fee stamps on account of boat-hire must be separate from the court-fee stamps on account of process-fee and must be affixed at a separate part of the paper and will receive a separate number. In order to distinguish the fees for affidavits and for boat-hire from "other fees" for entry in column 6 and in column 7, the letter "A" and the letter "B" should be added to the "Serial number of document" given in column 1 to affidavits and boat-hire respectively. The entries in columns 2 and 3 will be totalled daily, and the results entered in columns 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9, and initialled daily by the presiding officer. The entries in the latter five columns should also be totalled monthly. A few specimen entries have been made in the form with the object of showing how it is intended that the Register should be maintained.

PREFATORY NOTE.

Prices of Country Produce and Salt in India in the first half of August 1921, as compared with the preceding half month.

The average level of wholesale prices of food grains and pulses in India in the first half of August, 1921, showed a rise of 3 per cent as compared with the preceding fortnight, the percentage increase being 8 in wheat, 5 in gram, 4 in barley and maize, and 1 in rice and bajra. Prices of jawar showed no change, but arhar dál recorded a fall of 1 per cent.

Prices of ghi advanced by 3 per cent and of raw sugar (gúr) by 1 per cent. Salt remained stationary.

As regards provincial prices, the noticeable fluctuations are as follows:— In the Punjab, wheat showed a rise of 12 per cent, maize 23 per cent, gram 11 per cent and barley 9 per cent, but jawar fell by 12 per cent. In Delhi, wheat advanced by 16 per cent, in the North-West Frontier Province by 15 per cent and in the Central Provinces and Berar by 10 per cent. In Assam, ghi increased by 13 per cent. The price of rice in Bengal rose 1 per cent.

These fluctuations are stated in the summary table below:—

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

HOME DEPARTMENT.

RESOLUTION.

POLITICAL.

Simla, the 19th September, 1921.

No. 714.—By Home Department Resolution no. 533-Political, dated the 21st March 1921, as subsequently amended, the Governor General in Council was pleased to appoint a Committee to examine the repressive laws on the Statute Book and to report whether all or any of them should be repealed or amended. The Report submitted by the Committee is published below for general information.

2. The Governor General in Council has considered the Report and has decided to accept the recommendations made by the Committee. Steps will be taken as soon as may be to introduce legislation to give effect to them.

ORDERED that the Resolution be published in the Gazette of India; and that a copy be forwarded to all local Governments and Administrations and to the several Departments of the Government of India.

H. D. CRAIK,

Offg. Secretary to the Government of India.

Report to the Government of India of the Committee appointed to examine repressive laws.

A Resolution was moved on the 14th February 1921 in the Council of State by the Hon'ble (now the Right Hon'ble) Mr. Srinivasa Sastri to the effect that a Committee be appointed by the Governor General in Council to examine the repressive laws on the Statute book, and to report whether all or any of them should be repealed or amended. This Resolution was carried, and in accordance with the instructions contained in Resolution no. 533-Political, dated March 21st, 1921, we have examined the following Regulations and Acts:—

(1) The Bengal State Offences Regulation, 1804;
(2) Madras Regulation VII of 1808;
(3) Bengal State Prisoners Regulation, 1818;
(4) Madras Regulation II of 1819;
(5) Bombay Regulation XXV of 1827;
(6) The State Prisoners Act, 1850;
(7) The State Offences Act, 1857;
(8) The Forfeiture Act, 1857;
(9) The State Prisoners Act, 1858;
(10) The Indian Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1908;
(11) The Prevention of Seditious Meetings Act, 1911;
(12) The Defence of India (Criminal Law Amendment) Act, 1915;
(13) The Anarchical and Revolutionary Crimes Act, 1919.

2. Appendix A to this report gives the names of the witnesses who were invited to give evidence. We examined at considerable length 2 witnesses, some of whom came from distant provinces at much personal inconvenience. We desire to record our appreciation of their public spirit. We have also considered the opinions of local Governments and some written statements sent by witnesses or by recognised associations. In addition we perused a large amount of documentary evidence in the shape of reports of disturbances, confidential reports on the political situation, speeches delivered at public meetings, debates in the Legislative Council when the Acts under consideration were introduced, and correspondence with local Governments regarding the exercise of powers under these Acts, and the proceedings of the previous Committees, including the Sedition Committee.

3. The reports from local Governments shew that recourse was had to these 'repressive' or 'preventive' enactments only in cases of emergency, or to deal with exceptional disorder for which the ordinary law did not provide any adequate remedy. It is also proved that the Government of India have scrutinized with the greatest care all requests for either the introduction of the Seditious Meetings Act or action under the Defence of India Act or the Indian Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1908. During the war the maintenance of internal peace was a supreme consideration and early preventive action was essential.

The first question then that we have to decide is whether with the conclusion of the war and the introduction of constitutional changes in the Government of India, there has been such an improvement in the general situation as to justify the repeal of all or any of these measures. We have particularly to consider whether there exists such an anarchical movement as prevailed in Bengal during the last decade, or any probability of recrudescence of a movement, which at that time seriously disturbed the tranquillity of certain parts of India. On this point plain speaking is unavoidable.

4. The evidence of many witnesses indicates that the constitutional reforms have produced a distinct change for the better in the attitude towards Government of the larger portion of the literate classes. As regards the illiterate masses, the position is much less satisfactory. It must be recognised that recent appeals to racial feeling, religious prejudice or economic discontent have in fact shaken respect for law, government and authority, and "created an atmosphere of preparedness for violence" Intimidation, social boycott and the establishment of courts, the jurisdiction of which is in some cases enforced by violence and insult, are among the methods employed to create a situation full of dangerous potentialities. Similarly, while many witnesses expressed the view that the general position had improved and that the cult of non-co-operation had generally failed to appeal to more thoughtful persons, we are forced to the conclusion that the leaders of this movement have succeeded in arousing a deep and widespread feeling of hostility towards Government. It is, however, as yet more marked in urban than in rural areas. The large number of serious riots during the past seven months* cannot be regarded merely as passing ebullitions of temporary discontent. The disturbances in places so widely apart as Rae Bareli, Malegaon, Nagpur, Giridih, Dharwar, Aligarh and Matiari indicate a growing contempt for law and order. We have no doubt that economic and agrarian discontent has been exploited by agitators, and that these riots have in many cases disclosed a disregard of authority or an attempt to intimidate the courts or officers carrying out the orders of the courts, which justifies us in ascribing them to an active and malicious propaganda. In attempting any survey of the present political situation we cannot leave out of account further dangerous developments adumbrated by leaders of the non-co-operation party. To illustrate this point we cite some extracts from recent speeches.

(1) "Mahatma Gandhi says that if you are determined Swaraj can be attained within one year. The machinery of the Government is entirely in your hands. * * * * . At first we will request the military and the police to throw up their services with the Government If this request is rejected the public will be asked to refuse to pay taxes and then you will see how the machinery will work. We do not recognise the authorities of the present Government and refusal to pay taxes will settle everything. This can only be achieved by unity. Now it rests with you whether you will sit under the Satanic flag or will come under the flag of God. The day will come when the sweepers, washer-men and others will be asked to boycott those who are on the side of Satan."

(2) "I believe that the real struggle with Government will commence when we withhold payment of taxes. In that case Government will come to its senses. I require students these days. Some are required for (work among the) tenantry. When they will refuse to pay taxes and Government will issue warrants and send its sepoys, the peasants will boldly defy its order and will say "Kill us or put our property to auction, but we would not pay taxes with our hands."

(3) We may also quote an extract from an article in "Young India" by Mr. M. K. Gandhi :—

> "Civil Disobedience was on the lips of every one of the members of the All India Congress Committee. Not having really ever tried it, every one appeared to be enamoured of it from a mistaken belief in it as a sovereign remedy for our present-day ills. I feel sure that it can be made such if we can produce the necessary atmosphere for it. For individuals there always is that atmosphere except when their Civil Disobedience is certain to lead to bloodshed. I discovered this exception during the Satyagraha days. But even so a call may come which one dare not neglect, cost it what it may. I can clearly see the time coming to me when I must refuse obedience to every single state-made law, even though there may be a certainty of bloodshed (our italics). When neglect of the call means a denial of God, Civil Disobedience becomes a peremptory duty."

*Vide Appendix B.

(4) The following are Resolutions passed by the All-India Congress Committee of Bombay :—

(i) "The All-India Congress Committee advises that all persons belonging to the Congress shall discard the use of foreign cloth as from the 1st day of August next and advises all Congress organisations * * * to collect foreign cloth from consumers for destruction or use outside India at their option."

(ii) "It is of opinion that Civil Disobedience should be postponed till after the completion of the programme referred to in the Resolution on Swadeshi after which the Committee will not hesitate, if necessary, to recommend a course of Civil Disobedience even though it might have to be adopted by a special Session of the Congress. Provided however it is open to any Province or place to adopt Civil Disobedience subject to the previous approval of the Working Committee obtained within the Constitution, through the Provincial Congress Committees concerned."

Witnesses unanimously agreed that Civil Disobedience particularly if it took the form of a "no-revenue" or "no-rent" campaign, would result in widespread disorder, and that a boycott, whether of foreign goods or of liquor, if accompanied by intimidation, might result in violence. The boycott of foreign cloth is apt to raise prices, and the consequent economic distress would end in "hat looting" such as has occurred in the past.

5. In the light of the evidence before us it is therefore impossible to describe the state of affairs to-day as normal. Nor is India singular in this respect: the reaction from the war is world wide and no country has escaped its effects. There are however grounds for hoping that an improvement has begun: there are signs of a gradual adjustment to post bellum conditions: a favourable monsoon would do much to remove economic discontent: the relations between Government officials and the public, between the Ministers and officers serving under them are admittedly undergoing successful re-adjustment: finally, the response made to the opportunities offered by the Reformed Councils, no less than the attitude of the Executive and the Legislators of mutual co-operation is encouraging. But as militating against this improvement, there is an active widespread campaign which, if judged by recent utterances, is certain to increase economic difficulties and to promote disaffection and violence.

6. We have carefully scrutinised the evidence dealing with the Khilafat movement. With its religious aspect the Committee is in no way concerned: indeed we fully sympathise with the desire for favourable peace terms for Turkey, but it is our duty to examine closely the activities of the extreme leaders of this movement and the methods by which they seek to attain their aims. We are informed that any real appreciation of the difficulties of the situation is confined to a small class, but it cannot be denied that the terms of the Turkish peace treaty have been used to cause a dangerously bitter feeling amongst the masses, and that religious enthusiasm exploited by unscrupulous agitators has in many places developed into fanatical hostility to the British Government. Thus, despite frequent and authoritative contradiction by the Government in the Legislative Assembly and outside, the lie that holy places have been desecrated is still repeated. We cite below extracts from reports of speeches submitted to us.

(1) At Karachi a Hindu 'Ecclesiastical' supporter advised "sympathy with their Moslem brothers because the power that had caught hold of the Muslim holy places would not spare those of the Hindus."

(2) Or again, "The British had caused Hindu and Muhammadan brothers to fight and have thus made straight their own road. They had destroyed Mecca and Medina. Shots had even fallen on the Prophet's remains. All Muhammadans who had fought against the Turks should be divorced."

(3) "Referring to the fight in Mecca he said that the Sharif was the master of the place. There were only 30 or 35 Turkish soldiers. When the British Army reached Mecca they killed 3 of the Turkish soldiers who were found marketing. Two others, who took shelter in the Kaaba (the holy temple) where not a tiger nor even a fly was allowed to be killed according to religion, were slaughtered by the British soldiers. Moreover the holy carpet of the Kaaba which was prepared by the hands of the innocent little girls was burnt by the fire of the British shells."

(4) The following extract refers to the Kheri murder case :—

"I am going to pronounce the order of God that if the slayer of a heathen is killed, he will certainly become a martyr. If he dies it is your duty to pray for him.

"One Englishman has died here; lakhs of Hindus and Mussalmans have been martyred there—

"If after lakhs of Mussalmans have been martyred in Smyrna, somebody has killed Christians, Christians have retaliated entering Constantinople. If he has committed the murder for the sake of religion and he is slain he will attain martyrdom. Heavens await him and the houries are standing (to welcome him) with cups in their hands."

7. It was, we were told by a frontier officer, statements of this kind, particularly relating to the defilement of holy places, which has created such bitterness and led to the Hijrat from Upper Sindh and Peshawar with such disastrous consequences. Instances of gross misrepresentation are numerous. Nor does it end here. Perhaps the most sinister feature in this campaign of calumny is the direct attempt to seduce the military and the police force from their allegiance. Evidence has been adduced of many specific instances of such attempts, which the military authorities regard as most mischievous. Speeches have also been reported :—

(1) "Tell every Muhammadan clearly that it is his religious duty to avoid being recruited for the army. Do not give a single soldier that he may behead his brother with his own hands."

(2) "Your religion is calling for help, but you do not lay down your life for God; you join the army or police on fourteen rupees a month. You say you are a Government servant; but you are God's servant."

8. We have also had placed before us reports of many speeches made by various leaders of the movement which can only be considered as direct incitements to disloyalty and internal disorder, as well as an encouragement to foreign invasion. The following are instances :—

(1) "If the Amir of Kabul does not enslave India and does not want to subjugate the people of India who have never done any harm and who do not mean to do the slightest harm to the people of Afghanistan or elsewhere, but if he comes to fight against those who have always had an eye on his country, who wanted to subjugate his people, who hold the Holy Places of Islam, who want to crush Islam in their hostile grip, who want to destroy the Muslim faith and who were bent on destroying the Khilafat, then not only shall we not assist, but it will be our duty and the duty of every one who calls himself a Mussalman to gird up his loins and fight the good fight of Islam."

(2) "When we have to kill all Englishmen we will not come stealthily, we will, that very day, declare openly that there is (war with) the sword between you and us now and it will be sheathed only when either your neck disappears or ours."

(3) "The object of my speaking so plainly is to assure you that in the question of Khilafat we have not gone an inch against the doctrines of Islam. In my religion, to die and to kill in the cause of God are both good deeds."

(4) "He told his audience that their time had at last come. Everything was ready for jehad and the signal was about to be given. He exhorted them to be bold and steadfast. The weapons of the British soldiers and sepoys could not harm them for he had the power to render them innocuous. This time there was little talk of non-co-operation. The business for the moment was war."

(5) "If you do not come forward, God shall raise another nation for Islam's defence. Those who wage the war of jehad will not mind any remonstrances. * * * Swaraj is a religious obligation with me. I am doing my work for the sake of the holy Kaaba, Medina and the Qoran. It is better to be slaves of Muhammadans than of the English. It is our duty to help the Amir if he comes to carry on jehad. I am prepared to fight the battle of Independence whether my Muhammadan brothers help me or not."

(6) "In the next Congress in December, which is to be held at Ahmedabad, the Indian Musalmans will ask the Congress to tear up their old creed, which is twelve months old, and take India out of the British Empire and hoist a tri-coloured flag of Indian independence with a spinning wheel in the centre and declare India a republic. This is our reply. This is our ultimatum. You have not given an ultimatum to the Turks, but we give an ultimatum to you. There is peace between you and us for three months more. After three months there will be conflict. After conflict there will be peace. And the peace will be that you will go out of India. You wanted to turn out the Turks bag and baggage, but we will make you leave the bags and baggage here as it is ours."

Such quotations could be multiplied. After a careful perusal of these and other similar utterances, we have no hesitation in holding that this form of propaganda is directly calculated, when addressed to an impressionable and excitable audience, to lead to violence.

9. We endeavoured to ascertain the effect of this combined movement (the Non-co-operation and the Khilafat) on the student community, and have received valuable evidence from educational authorities. The situation was at one time disquieting. Direct appeals were issued of which we give one example by a prominent leader of the Khilafat movement :—

"Those who read the newspapers know the part taken by the students in all countries in these days. The first example was set by the students of Russia at the time of revolution. They took great part therein and you know the result. In China also the students agitated and the courses of the universities were changed according to their wishes. Look at the condition of Egypt and the work done there by the students? They have obtained the religious form of instruction. They have agitated for years and in the long run they have been successful in their revolution. Both boys and girls took share in the revolution. Our only hope of spreading agitation is by means of the students who are always enthusiastic."

Our general impression is that the student community at large has not been permanently or seriously affected by such mischievous appeals, save in the way of sentimental sympathy for the non-co-operation movement and the personality of its leader. The 'national' institutions have obtained meagre support whether in the shape of funds or pupils. Several have now been closed. There was at first some response in the form of strikes, but the large majority of students returned. The result of the University Examinations, and the number of entries shew that there has been no appreciable falling off in the number of admissions or of candidates. It is noticeable that the effects varied in different institutions, which we attribute to the influence or lack of influence of the Principal and Professors. We are however convinced that as in the case of the public generally, so with the students there is less respect for authority than there was before. Nor can we overlook the fact that there is a small residue of misguided boys who, by forsaking their studies, have not only imperilled their future career but would seem to have elected that of the professional agitator. We have dwelt upon this aspect of the situation in view of the unhappy activities of certain members of the student community of Bengal ten years ago.

10. Taking into consideration all the evidence we have received, and the points to which we have adverted, and bearing in mind the still prevailing economic discontent, we cannot dismiss as improbable the danger of sudden sectarian, agrarian or labour disorder on a large scale culminating in riots.*

11. We may now in the light of this appreciation of the present political position examine the question of repealing or retaining the various Acts under consideration. Dealing with the older Acts first, we notice that they relate generally to a state of affairs which no longer exists. We regard it as undesirable that they should be used for any purpose not contemplated by their authors. The objections to them are obvious. Some, as for example, Bengal Regulation 10 of 1804, or the Forfeiture Act of 1857, are inconsistent with modern ideas; others are clothed in somewhat archaic language and are applicable only to circumstances which are unlikely to recur. Many arm the Executive with special powers which are not subject to revision by any judicial tribunal. Their presence on the Statute book is regarded as an offence by enlightened public opinion. The arguments for their retention are as follows. The use of the Bengal State Prisoners Regulation, 1818 (Regulation III of 1818) in Bengal was necessitated by the revolutionary movement which the ordinary law failed to check. The wholesale intimidation of witnesses rendered recourse to the ordinary courts ineffective. Though we have evidence of a change in the attitude of individual leaders of the anarchical movement in Bengal, we are warned that similar symptoms of intimidation have been noticed, and that, should there be a recrudescence of any revolutionary movement, it would, in the absence of these old preventive Regulations, be impossible to cope with the situation, and fresh emergency legislation would be necessary. Lastly, the plea is advanced that these old Acts may be regarded as measures intermediate between the ordinary law of the land and martial law, the ultimate result in case of extreme disorder. The abolition of these special laws, it is suggested, may mean earlier recourse to martial law than might otherwise be the case.

12. We recognise the force of these arguments, in particular the difficulty of securing evidence or of preventing the intimidation of witnesses. We also appreciate the fact that the use of the ordinary law may in some cases advertise the very evil which the trial is designed to punish. But we consider that in the modern conditions of India that risk must be run. It is undesirable that any Statutes should remain in force which are regarded with deep and genuine disapproval by a majority of the Members of the Legislatures. The harm created by the retention of arbitrary powers of imprisonment by the Executive may, as history has shewn, be greater even than the evil which such powers are directed to remedy. The retention of these Acts could in any case only be defended if it was proved that they were in present circumstances essential to the maintenance of law and order. As it has not been found necessary to resort in the past to these measures save in cases of grave emergency, we advocate their immediate repeal. In the event of a recurrence of any such emergency we think that the Government must rely on the Legislature to arm them with the weapons necessary to cope with the situation.

13. Our recommendation in regard to Regulation III of 1818 and the analogous Regulations in the Bombay and Madras Presidencies is subject, however, to the following reservations. It has been pointed out to us that, for the protection of the frontiers of India and the fulfilment of the responsibilities of the Government of India in relation to Indian States, there must be some enactment to arm the Executive with powers to restrict the movements and activities of certain persons who, though not coming within the scope of any criminal law, have to be put under some measure of restraint. Cases in point are exiles from Foreign or protected States who are liable to become the instigators or focus of intrigues against such States: persons disturbing the tranquillity of such States who cannot suitably be tried in the Courts of the

* NOTE—After this report had been drafted we received information of the grave and widespread disorders in Malabar, which, in our opinion, more than justify the apprehensions leading to this conclusion.

States concerned and may not be amenable to the jurisdiction of British Courts: and persons tampering with the inflammable material on our frontiers. We are in fact satisfied of the continued necessity for providing for the original object of this Regulation, in so far as it was expressly declared to be "the due maintenance of the alliances formed by the British Government with Foreign Powers, the preservation of tranquillity in the territories of Native Princes entitled to its protection and the security of the British Dominions from foreign hostility," and only in so far as the inflammable frontier is concerned, from "internal commotion."

We desire to make it clear that the restrictions which we contemplate in this connection are not of a penal or even irksome character. We are satisfied that they have not been so, in cases of the kind referred to above, in the past. Indeed in several instances they have been imposed as much in the interests of the persons concerned as in the interests of the State. The only desideratum is to remove such persons from places where they are potential sources of trouble. Within such limits as may be necessary to achieve this object they would ordinarily enjoy full personal liberty and a freedom from any kind of stigma such as would be associated with restrictions imposed by criminal law. We therefore recommend the amendment of Regulation III of 1818, limiting its application to the objects outlined above.

This reservation may also involve the retention in a modified form of the State Prisoners Acts of 1850 and 1858, but this is a matter for legal experts. We have carefully considered the cases in which the Madras State Prisoners Regulation of 1819 has been used. The procedure adopted was certainly simpler and more effective, but if the ordinary law is insufficient, we think it is for the Local Government to consider whether any amendment of the Moplah Outrages Act XX of 1859 is needed.

14. Turning now to the more modern Acts, we notice that the Defence of India (Criminal Law Amendment) Act, 1915, will in the ordinary course of events shortly expire. It is, we understand, at present only used in order to give effect to the Government of India's policy in the matter of colonial emigration. Section 16-B. of the Defence of India (consolidated) Rules, 1915, is at present employed to prevent the departure from India of unskilled labour, which does not come within the definition of 'emigration' given in Act XVII of 1908. We understand that a Bill to meet the case of Indian Emigrants has already been introduced.

A special regulation may, we think, also be needed for the exclusion of persons whose presence may endanger the peace and safety of the North West Frontier Province. We recommend that the Defence of India Act be repealed at once, as it was only intended to cope with difficulties arising from the war.

15. The Anarchical and Revolutionary Crimes Act, 1919, (popularly known as "the Rowlatt Act"), has never been used. Its enactment was extremely unpopular; it was to continue in force only for three years from the termination of the war. We consider that the retention of this Act is not necessary or advisable. The power to restrain personal liberty without trial conferred by this Act is not consistent with the policy inaugurated with the recent constitutional changes, and we therefore recommend its immediate repeal. It is however necessary to strike a note of warning. While we think that there has since 1918 been some improvement in the situation so far as the anarchical movement is concerned, we realize that strong measures may be needed for the suppression of any organised attempt at widespread disorder. We prefer, however, to leave this contingency to be dealt with when and if it arises, rather than retain a statute which is regarded as a stigma on the good name of India.

16. There remain then two Acts, the Indian Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1908, and the Prevention of Seditious Meetings Act, 1911. It is around those two Acts that controversy has centred and regarding which we have been careful to obtain a full expression of opinion. These Acts also differ from those to which we have already referred in that, while the Committee was sitting, they were actually being used in the Punjab, Delhi and the United Provinces. The evidence of some of the witnesses goes to show, that their effect was beneficial and that their application was necessary to maintain public tranquillity. It is affirmed that local officers responsible for the maintenance of peace and order would, under existing conditions if these Acts were repealed, find themselves in an impossible situation faced, it might be, with disorder on a large scale which they could not prevent. The application of these Acts moreover is subject to safeguards which ensure that sanction to their introduction is only granted after careful scrutiny of the necessity for such action. The Local Governments are unanimous in asking for the retention of the Seditious Meetings Act. Most of the Local Governments similarly affirm the need for retaining Part II of the Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1908. It is desirable therefore to examine most carefully the reasons for and against their repeal.

17. These Acts are first attacked as being "unconstitutional," and, like the Act of 1919, inconsistent with the present policy of Government. In support of this view our attention has been directed to the law that obtains in England with regard to public meetings. The following dictum of Professor Dicey is quoted: "The Government has little or no power of preventing meetings which to all appearance are lawful even though they may in fact turn out when actually convened to be unlawful because of the mode in which they are conducted." We would point out that the learned Professor is merely stating what are actually the principles underlying the law in England. He does not attempt to discuss their propriety, nor, we may add, their applicability to other countries. He does however allude to "the policy or the impolicy of denying to the highest authority in the State the very widest power to take in their discretion precautionary measures against the evils which may flow from the injudicious exercise of legal right." The learned author also points out that the right of public meeting is "certainly a singular instance of the way in which adherence to the principle that the proper function of the State is the punishment, not the prevention, of crimes, deprives the Executive of discretionary authority." Apart from the great difference in the class of audience which may be addressed, we recognise that while democracy and all the rights that it entails have been the result of gradual growth through the course of centuries in Great Britain, they are a recent introduction into India.

18. The next argument advanced for the repeal of these Acts is that they offend public sentiment and that their retention would be a direct incitement to further agitation. This argument is one to which we attach great weight, even though we recognise that the repeal of these Acts would only appeal to a few. We realise that the wholesale repeal of these Acts would do much to strengthen those who are anxious to assist Government and would be useful for the purposes of counter propaganda. We realise also that substantial support is necessary for Government to meet the non-co-operation movement, which is the greatest obstacle to the successful development of the reforms recently introduced and to all political and industrial progress.

19. The real point, however, at issue is whether the ordinary law that would remain would provide sufficient means for coping with any existing or reasonably apprehended disorder. Evidence has been adduced to show that in certain places the ordinary law is inadequate and this evidence we are not prepared to reject.

This brings us to the third objection that the ordinary law alone should be applied to prevent the evil with which these two Acts are designed to cope. We have had long discussions as to the manner in which Section 144 of the Criminal Procedure Code has been recently applied. It is no part of our duty to express an opinion on any individual case in which this Section has been used or to enter into any legal argument. In the opinion of those best qualified to judge this Section cannot be used effectively when there is danger of widespread disorder. We also note the argument that Section 144 of the Criminal Procedure Code was not designed to prevent meetings over a large area, and that its use for such a purpose arouses probably as much resentment as the application of the Seditious Meetings Act. It is the only preventive section in the ordinary law. Section 108 A of the Criminal Procedure Code is only partially preventive. Sections 120 A and B, 124 A, and 153 A of the Indian Penal Code are punitive. Further, even if satisfactory evidence is available, these sections can be used only against individuals and not to prevent seditious meetings or speeches. We consider it probable that if in those areas to which the Seditious Meetings Act has recently been applied, no preventive action, other than that possible under Section 144 of the Criminal Procedure Code, had been taken, the dangers of disorder would have been appreciably increased, and the number of prosecutions under these punitive sections would have been larger, which might have had the effect of exasperating public opinion. We would point out that in some cases referred to in Appendix B, the riot was directly connected with such a prosecution.

20 A fourth argument is based on the recent findings of the Committee appointed to examine the Press Act. It is unnecessary for our purpose to discuss whether the written or the spoken word commands the greater circulation. We agree with that Committee that "the more direct and violent forms of sedition are now disseminated more from the platform and through the agency of itinerary propagandists than by the Press." The prosecution of a paper is moreover much simpler than the prosecution of a speaker, attended as the latter is by the difficulties of obtaining an accurate report of the speech delivered. We think that the instances we have given above are sufficient illustration of the danger of allowing violent and inflammable speeches. Though the speaker can be prosecuted, the mischief may have been done. Of this there have been lamentable illustrations.

21. Fifthly, it is argued that the Seditious Meetings Act of 1911 not only stifles noxious speeches at public meetings but also deters people who might assist in counter propaganda. Cases have been quoted of persons otherwise well disposed to Government who declined "to ask for leave to hold a meeting or make a speech." We recognise that this is a necessary and undesirable result of the application of the Seditious Meetings Act. It is, however, a lesser evil than allowing speeches to be made which result in such disorder as would equally prevent any exponent of opposite views from obtaining a hearing. Such intimidation is, we learn, by no means uncommon.

22. In this connection, since we regard it as important that every opportunity should be given to the electorate of hearing both sides of a question, we recommend, before the next general election, the introduction of a Bill on the lines of the Disorderly Public Meetings Act, of 1906 (8, Edward VII), which makes a disturbance at a public meeting an offence, and provides a heavier penalty when this offence is committed during a Parliamentary election. We would also suggest that should such a Bill be presented, it should include a clause making it incumbent on the promoters of any meeting to provide adequate facilities and security for such reporters as the District Magistrate may wish to depute. We recommend that, when the Seditious Meetings Act is repealed, the District Magistrate should be empowered, by law, with the consent of the Local Government, to demand in any area of his district, notified in this behalf, that notice be given to him of the intention to hold a public meeting, so that he may be able to make proper arrangements for obtaining a report of the proceedings. This, we may observe, is entirely different from demanding that a person should obtain leave to hold a meeting.

23. Finally, it is pointed out that, in the last resort, should the ordinary law prove insufficient, recourse can be had to legislation by Ordinance. We would deprecate any suggestion that the exercise of the extraordinary powers of the Governor General should be regarded as an appropriate method of legislation save in abnormal circumstances. These powers should, we think, be reserved for exceptional or sudden emergencies. To regard them as in any way the normal method of legislation implies a distrust of the Legislative Assembly and Council of State to which we would be sorry to subscribe. In fact, the most potent argument advanced in favour of the repeal of these two Acts is that such repeal would be an illuminating object lesson in the value of constitutional reforms. "Trust your Legislatures," we are told, "confidence will beget confidence. If you need exceptional powers, prove your necessity and the Legislatures will grant them." We accept this principle. We have adopted it to the utmost limit consistent with safety in advising the repeal of the enactments to which reference has been made. But we feel that we should not, under present conditions, be justified in advising the immediate repeal of these two Acts. We may also point out that their provisions are not of a drastic character. In this connection we may quote from the speech of the late Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale on the Seditious Meetings Bill: "I will freely admit that from the standpoint of Government it could not have introduced a milder measure than this. The more objectionable features of the Act of 1907 have been removed, and if, when the need arises, the law is applied with reasonable care and caution, it is not likely to produce any serious hardship..........If the need of the Government is urgent and immediate, then of course all ordinary considerations must be put aside, and every loyal citizen must range himself on the side of the Government in sanctioning and enforcing the measures that are thought to be indispensable. In a state of actual disturbance, in a state of dangerous activity on the part of elements hostile to the very existence of the Government, I can understand the Government calling on all loyal citizens to rally round it in this manner". Though seldom applied, these two enactments have recently in the present situation been found necessary for the preservation of law and order. Further, an obvious objection to a more complete acceptance of this principle is that in allowing proof of the necessity for legislation to accumulate, even stronger measures than those now under consideration might eventually be required for the suppression of disorder. By the time public opinion had become sufficiently alarmed to demand or approve legislative action, the damage might be irretrievable.

24. As regards the Indian Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1908, it has been suggested that sections of the Indian Penal Code are sufficient to cope with any situation that is now likely to arise. It is generally accepted that Part I of this Act has failed to achieve in Bengal the purpose for which it was designed. As regards Part II, the conspiracy sections of the Indian Penal Code might meet the case if, but only if, evidence were forthcoming. It was in no small measure the impossibility of obtaining evidence owing to the intimidation of witnesses that led to this enactment. As we have already seen, there is definite evidence of certain organisations encouraging acts of violence or resorting to intimidation. Recently in Delhi it has been necessary to declare certain Associations of Volunteers unlawful under Section 16 of this Act. We have carefully examined the circumstances which led to this action. The Volunteer movement began with "social service," but the adherents soon developed a definite tendency to interfere with the duties of the Police and the liberty of the public. They then began to intimidate and terrorise the general body of the population. There was a tendency towards hooliganism. It has been proved that some of these Associations resorted to violence, that their behaviour at Railway Stations and public meetings was objectionable and rowdy, that they obstructed the funeral of an honoured citizen and held a most undesirable demonstration at the house of another. They actively interfered with the elections by threats and picketing. There was every reason to believe that their activities, if left unchecked, would lead to serious disorder. The conclusion we have arrived at is that some of these Volunteer Associations in Delhi were seditious organisations, formed for the purpose of intimidating loyal citizens, and interfering illegally with the administration of the province. The result of the action taken by Government has been, we were told, to "destroy the worst features of volunteer activity in so far as it was synonymous with rowdyism in the city of Delhi." We have received information of a possible recrudescence of secret associations in another part of India. It has also been stated in evidence that Bolshevik emissaries have entered India, and we cannot overlook the possibility of illegal associations promoted by them terrorising the population, and engaging in a campaign of crime and terrorism. Actually Part II of this Act has been sparingly used. Its object is not only to break down existing unlawful associations, but to deter young and comparatively guiltless persons from joining these bodies and to discourage the supply of pecuniary assistance. We regret that we cannot at this juncture recommend the immediate repeal of Part II of this Act. There are too evident indications that its application might be necessary to prevent the formation of secret societies. It must be remembered that there is no legislation in India "for the prohibition of drilling and military training without lawful authority" on the lines of the English statute (60 Geo. III). Nor can we for the reasons already given advise the immediate repeal of the Seditious Meetings Act of 1911. We were informed that the result of the application of the Act in each case has been that sober-minded people approved the action taken by Government, and that the application of the Act was of the greatest value in preserving public tranquillity.

25. Our recommendation follows that made by the Bihar and Orissa Government: "Subject, however, to the reservations temporarily made in favour of the Seditious Meetings Act and Part II of the Criminal Law Amendment Act, which cannot be abandoned until the present tension created by the non-co-operation movement has been relieved by the action of its leading promoters, His Excellency in Council desires again to emphasise the importance of removing from the Statute Book as far as possible all special laws of this character, so that the Government of India under the reformed constitution may proceed with a clean slate. At the same time, however, His Excellency in Council is conscious that in the future the need for special powers may again arise."

In view of the grave situation which exists and which may become more serious, we also think that it would be prudent to defer actual repeal of these Acts until such time as the situation improves. Many of us hope that it may be possible for the Government to undertake the necessary legislation during the Delhi session. We can make no definite recommendation on this point at present. We trust that the repeal of these Acts may be expedited by a healthy change in the political situation. The duration of retention rests in other hands than ours.

26 To this endeavour to adjust the conflicting claims of political considerations and administrative necessity we have applied the principles on which the Constitutional Reforms are based. The problem before us is, we consider, a test case of the " co-operation received from those upon whom new opportunities of service will thus be conferred and the extent to which it is found that confidence can be reposed in their sense of responsibility." We recognise our responsibility in the maintenance of peace and order. We are prepared to trust both the Provincial Councils and the Imperial Legislatures for such support as may be necessary. We believe that the Executive will use any exceptional powers with the utmost caution and restraint. Their action may always be challenged in the local legislatures. Lastly, we desire also to take into account the difficulties which at the present time confront local officers. Evidence before us shows* that the Magistrates and the Police have on many occasions been sorely tried, and we wish to record our appreciation of their loyalty in very difficult positions. Animated by these ideas, we therefore recommend the repeal of all the Statutes included in the terms of reference to this Committee, with a reservation as to Bengal Regulation III of 1818 and the corresponding Regulations of the Madras and Bombay Presidencies, but we advise that the repeal of the Prevention of Seditious Meetings Act, 1911, and Part II of the Indian Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1908, should be deferred for the present. Their retention is necessary in view of recent occurrences and possible developments, which we cannot but regard with the gravest apprehension.

Bills introduced in the Council of State and Legislative Assembly, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council and Assembly and Bills published under Rule 18 of the Indian Legislative Rules.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 19th September, 1921 :—

No. 27 of 1921.

A Bill further to amend the Indian Contract Act, 1872.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Indian Contract Act, 1872 ; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title, commencement and application.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Indian Contract (Amendment) Act, 192 .

(2) It shall come into force on the first day of ; and

(3) It shall apply to every agreement in respect of which any suit is instituted, or which is put in issue in any suit, after the commencement of this Act.

Insertion of new section 30-A in Chapter II, Act IX of 1872.

2. In Chapter II, after section 30 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, the following section shall be inserted, namely :— IX of 1872.

Agreements by way of maintenance and champerty void.

"30-A. An agreement whereby a person promises to give information or supply funds for the maintenance of litigation or actively assist in the recovery of property in consideration of receiving a share of such property or of the proceeds of such litigation is void :

Provided that nothing herein contained shall affect a bonâ fide agreement to purchase any property, if the purchaser did not intend to secure an undue advantage for himself out of the proceeds of litigation in which a title to such property was in dispute."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THIS Bill is intended to provide statutory prohibition of transactions, held void in England on the ground of champerty and maintenance, which are even punishable there as indictable offences. Although the same law does not extend to this country, the Courts proceed upon its analogy in suppressing the evil of gambling in litigation as contrary to public policy. I have discussed the subject at greater length in my Law of Transfer (4th Edition), sections 257-262, and I consider the time now ripe for checking the abuse which in certain parts of the country is reported to be notoriously rampant.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Report of the Joint Committee on the Bill further to amend the Indian Electricity Acts, 1910 was presented to the Legislative Assembly on the 19th September, 1921 :—

WE, the undersigned, Members of the Joint Committee to which the Bill further to amend the Indian Electricity Act, 1910, was referred, have considered the Bill and the paper noted in the margin, and have now the honour to submit this, our Report, with the Bill as amended by us annexed thereto.

Paper No. I.

From Mr. J. W. Meares, Electrical Adviser to the Government of India, dated 11th May, 1921.

2. Clause 7.—We have made a drafting change in the new sub-section to be added to section 20 for the purpose of making it clear that the 24 hours' notice to be given to the consumer before his supply is cut off shall begin to run from the time of the service of the notice.

Clause 8.—We are of opinion that the Local Government's power to sanction the making or the revocation of conditions to be operative between the licensee and the consumer, and its power to cancel such conditions, provided for in section 21 as amended by the Bill, should be exercised after it has consulted the local authority in cases where the licensee is not the local authority. We have made certain amendments to give effect to this.

Clause 9.—The amendment we propose in new sub-section (4) to be added to section 23 has been made as the result of an opinion contained in a letter from Mr. J. W. Meares, Electrical Adviser to the Government of India, which has been printed as a paper to the Bill. In suggesting the addition of a new sub-clause (b) containing the words "the power factor of his load" Mr. Meares says : "In continuous current systems the power factor is unity and the words do not in any way affect the situation. In alternating current systems two consumers may use energy at the same rate for the same time, and yet one may have a power factor of unity and the other of 0·7. The cost of supplying the latter is very much higher as the idle or 'wattless' current involves larger mains, larger generators, and worse regulation."

Clause 12.—In the addition to be made to the third proviso to section 27, we have provided that the Local Government may make an inquiry before it comes to the conclusion that the consent referred to in the proviso has been unreasonably withheld.

Clause 17.—We have made a slight addition here to make it clear that the Government will have power to refer classes of appeal to an Advisory Board by a general order.

Clause 19.—We have given due consideration to representations laid before us that section 39 of the Act makes it very difficult to obtain convictions in cases of theft of energy, but by a majority we are of opinion that the amendment which clause 19 of the Bill would introduce goes too far, and we have, therefore, omitted this clause, and re-numbered the following clauses.

Clause 20.—We have substituted "five hundred" and "fifty" for "one thousand" and "one hundred", respectively, in the amounts of the fines which may be imposed under section 44. We consider that the fines proposed by the Bill were unnecessarily high.

Clause 25.—It has been pointed out that, under clause VI of the Schedule, the licensee has to supply energy within one month or such longer period as the Electric Inspector may allow. Under clause VII as amended by clause 25 of the Bill, one month's notice must be given before a service line is laid in a street in which there is no distributing main. These two provisions are not entirely consistent. We have, therefore, substituted "twenty-one days" for "one month" in clause VII. We have also substituted "five or more" for "two or more" in the same clause of the Schedule in order to make it consistent with clause V.

We have made a few other changes of a purely drafting nature.

Mr. J. W Meares, Electrical Adviser to the Government of India, attended the proceedings of the Committee throughout, and we should like to take this opportunity of acknowledging the great assistance we have received from his evidence on highly technical matters.

3. The Bill was published in the Gazette of India, dated the 19th March, 1921.

4. We think that the Bill has not been so altered as to require re-publication, and we recommend that it be passed as now amended.

MINUTES OF DISSENT.

I am of opinion that Section VI (1) of the Schedule should stand as in the existing Act. This Section is meant to apply to requisitions for supply to owners or occupiers within 100 yards of the distributing main of the Licensee, while Section V is meant for the owners of the premises where the distributing mains have not been laid. By substituting the words "within the area of supply" for the words "within 100 yards from any distributing main," the original object of Section VI disappears and its object becomes practically the same as of Section V, and inconsistencies arise, in the following respects.

Section V requires a requisition by six or more owners to compel the Licensee to take the main while Section VI would require only one owner to compel the Licensee to lay the main.

Section V gives six months' time while Section VI would give only one month's time.

Under Section V, no requisition can be made until after the expiration of 2½ years from the commencement of the License while under the amended Section VI, such application can be made by one owner even on the day of the commencement of the License.

All these inconsistencies arise because the original object of Section VI is done away with by the proposed amendment.

VITHALDAS D. THACKERSEY,—18-9-21.

In signing this report I reserve to myself the right to move an amendment with reference to the decision to omit clause 19 of the Bill as introduced.

A. H. FROOM,—18-9-21.

* Subject to my minute of dissent.

[AS AMENDED BY THE JOINT COMMITTEE.]

[Words printed in italics indicate the amendments suggested by the Joint Committee.]

A Bill further to amend the Indian Electricity Act, 1910.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Indian Electricity Act, 1910 (IX of 1910); It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Indian Electricity (Amendment) Act, 192 .

Amendment of section 2, Act IX of 1910.

2. For clause (l) of section 2 of the Indian Electricity Act, 1910 (IX of 1910) (hereinafter referred to as the said Act), the following shall be substituted, namely:—

"(l) 'service line' means any electric supply-line through which energy is, or is intended to be, supplied by a licensee—

(i) to a single consumer either from a distributing main or immediately from the licensee's premises, or

(ii) from a distributing main to a group of consumers on the same premises or on adjoining premises supplied from the same point of the distributing main."

Amendment of section 3, Act IX of 1910.

3. In sub-clause (ii) of clause (a) of sub-section (2) of section 3 of the said Act, for the words "General Officer Commanding the Division," the words "Director of Military Works" shall be substituted.

Amendment of section 17, Act IX of 1910.

4. In section 17 of the said Act,—

(a) in sub-section (1), for the words "not being service lines immediately attached or intended to be immediately attached to a distributing main," the words "not being either service lines" shall be substituted; and

(b) in sub-section (2), after the word "laying," the words "or placing" shall be inserted, and the words "underground" and "immediately attached or intended to be immediately attached to a distributing main" shall be omitted.

Amendment of section 18, Act IX of 1910.

5. In section 18 of the said Act,—

(a) for sub-section (3), the following sub-section shall be substituted, namely:—

"(3) Where any tree standing or lying near an aerial line, or where any structure or other object which has been placed or has fallen near an aerial line subsequently to the placing of such line, interrupts or interferes with, or is likely to interrupt or interfere with, the conveyance or transmission of energy or the accessibility of any works, a Magistrate of the first class or, in a Presidency-town or Rangoon, the Commissioner of Police, may, on the application of the licensee, cause the tree, structure or object to be removed or otherwise dealt with as he thinks fit"; and

(b) after sub-section (4), the following Explanation shall be added, namely:—

"Explanation.—For the purposes of this section, the expression "tree" shall be deemed to include any shrub, hedge, jungle-growth or other plant."

Insertion of new section 19A in Act IX of 1910.

6. After section 19 of the said Act, the following section shall be inserted under the heading "Supply," namely:—

Point where supply is delivered.

"19A. For the purposes of this Act, the point at which the supply of energy by a licensee to a consumer shall be deemed to commence shall be determined in such manner as may be prescribed."

Amendment of section 20, Act IX of 1910.

7. In section 20 of the said Act,—

(a) in clause (c) of sub-section (1), after the word "supply-lines," the word "meters," shall be inserted; and

(b) after sub-section (2), the following sub-section shall be added, namely:—

Amendment of section 21, Act IX of 1910.

8. In section 21 of the said Act, sub-section (2) shall be re-numbered (4), and after sub-section (1), the following sub-sections shall be inserted, namely:—

"(2) Subject to the provisions of sub-section (1), a licensee may, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, given after consulting the local authority, where the licensee is not the local authority, make conditions not inconsistent with this Act or with his licence or with any rules made under this Act, to regulate his relations with persons who are or intend to become consumers, and may with the like sanction given after the like consultation add to or alter or amend any such conditions; and any conditions made by a licensee without such sanction shall be null and void;

Provided that any such conditions made before the......*day of ....192 ..shall, if sanctioned by the Local Government on application made by the licensee before such date as the Local Government may, by general or special order, fix in this behalf, be deemed to have been made in accordance with the provisions of this sub-section.

(3) The Local Government may, after the like consultation, cancel any condition or part of a condition previously sanctioned under sub-section (2) after giving to the licensee not less than one month's notice in writing of its intention so to do."

9. To section 23 of the said Act, the following sub-sections shall be added, namely:—

Amendment of section 23, Act IX of 1910.

"(3) In the absence of an agreement to the contrary, a licensee may charge for energy supplied by him to any consumer—

(a) by the actual amount of energy so supplied, or

(b) by the electrical quantity contained in the supply, or

(c) by such other method as may be approved by the Local Government.

(4) Any charges made by a licensee under clause (c) of sub-section (3) may be based upon, and vary in accordance with, any one or more of the following considerations, namely:—

(a) the consumer's load factor, or

(b) the power factor of his load, or

(c) his total consumption of energy during any stated period, or

(d) the hours at which the supply of energy is required."

10. In section 24 of the said Act,—

Amendment of section 24, Act IX of 1910.

(a) the first paragraph ending with the words "but no longer" shall be re-numbered as sub-section (1), and, in that sub-section as re-numbered, for the words "other sum" where they first occur, the words "sum, other than a charge for energy," shall be substituted; and

(b) the proviso shall be re-numbered sub-section (2), and, in that sub-section as re-numbered, the words "Provided that" shall be omitted, and to the sub-section the following proviso shall be added, namely:—

"Provided that the prohibition contained in this sub-section shall not apply in any case in which the licensee has made a request in writing to the consumer for a deposit with the Electric Inspector of the amount of the licensee's charges or other sums in dispute or for the deposit of the licensee's further charges for energy as they accrue, and the consumer has failed to comply with such request.

*The date to be filled in will be the date of the passing of the Bill.

11. In sub-section (6) of section 26 of the said Act, the words "on the basis of the previous supply" shall be omitted, and to the sub-section the following proviso shall be added, namely:—

Amendment of section 26, Act IX of 1910.

"Provided that, before either a licensee or a consumer applies to the Electric Inspector under this sub-section, he shall give to the other party not less than seven days' notice of his intention so to do."

12. To the third proviso to section 27 of the said Act, the following shall be added, namely:—

Amendment of section 27, Act IX of 1910.

"unless the Local Government, after such inquiry as it thinks fit, considers that such consent has been unreasonably withheld":

13. In sub-section (1) of section 28 of the said Act, the first proviso and the word "also" in the second proviso shall be omitted.

Amendment of section 28, Act IX of 1910.

14. In clause (b) of sub-section (1) of section 30 of the said Act,—

Amendment of section 30, Act IX of 1910.

(a) in sub-clause (ii) for the figures "1881" the figures "1911" shall be substituted; and

(b) after sub-clause (iii), the following shall be inserted, namely:—

"or

(iv) to which the Local Government, by general or special order, declares the provisions of this sub-section to apply."

15. For sub-section (1) of section 33 of the said Act, the following sub-section shall be substituted, namely:—

Amendment of section 33, Act IX of 1910.

"(1) If any accident occurs in connection with the generation, transmission, supply or use of energy in, or in connection with, any part of the electric supply-lines or other works of any person, and the accident results or is likely to have resulted in loss of life or personal injury, such person shall give notice of the occurrence, and of any loss of life or personal injury actually occasioned by the accident, in such form and within such time and to such authorities as the Local Government may, by general or special order, direct."

16. In section 35 of the said Act, sub-section (3) shall be omitted, and sub-section (4) shall be re-numbered (3), and in sub-section (3) as re-numbered, clauses (a), (b) and (c) shall be re-numbered (b), (c) and (d), respectively, and the following shall be inserted as clause (a), namely:—

Amendment of section 35, Act IX of 1910.

"(a) determine the number of members of which any such Board shall be constituted and the manner in which such members shall be appointed."

17. To sub-section (5) of section 36 of the said Act, the words "or, if the Governor General in Council or the Local Government, as the case may be, by general or special order, so directs, to an Advisory Board" shall be added.

Amendment of section 36, Act IX of 1910.

18. In section 37 of the said Act,—

Amendment of section 37, Act IX of 1910.

(a) in clause (j) of sub-section (2), the word "and" at the end shall be omitted, and after clause (k) of the same sub-section, the following shall be inserted, namely :—

"and (l) provide for any matter which is to be or may be prescribed"; and

(b) sub-section (3) shall be re-numbered (4), and the following sub-section shall be inserted after sub-section (2), namely :—

"(3) Any rules made in pursuance of clause (j) or clause (k) of sub-section (2) shall be binding on the Crown."

19. In section 44 of the said Act,—

Amendment of section 44, Act IX of 1910.

(a) for the words "three hundred" and "thirty," the words "five hundred" and "fifty" respectively, shall be substituted;

(b) for the words "the existence of artificial means," the words "if it is proved that any artificial means exist" shall be substituted;

(c) for the words "shall, where", the words "and that" shall be substituted; and

(d) for the words "be primâ facie evidence," the words "it shall be presumed, until the contrary is proved," shall be substituted.

20. In section 51 of the said Act, for the words "Governor General in Council" in both places where they occur, the words "Local Government" shall be substituted.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Council of State on the 19th September, 1921 :—

No. 8 OF 1921.

A Bill further to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, by providing for the issue by Courts in British India of commissions for the examination of witnesses to such Courts of Princes and Chiefs in India as are notified in this behalf, and for the execution by Courts in British India of commissions issued by such Courts.

V of 1898.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Code of Criminal Procedure (Amendment) Act, 192 .

Amendment of section 503 of the Code.

2. For sub-sections (3) and (4) of section 503 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, (hereinafter referred to as the said Code), the following sub-sections shall be substituted, namely :—

"(3) The Governor General in Council may by notification in the Gazette of India, declare that any Court situated within the territories of any Prince or Chief in India, not being a Court established or continued in such territories under the authority of the Governor General in Council, is a Court to which commissions issued by Courts in British India may be sent through the officer mentioned in sub-section (2).

(4) The Magistrate to whom the commission is issued, or if he is the District Magistrate, he or such Magistrate of the first class, as he appoints in this behalf, shall proceed to the place where the witness is or shall summon the witness before him, and shall take down his evidence in the same manner, and may for this purpose exercise the same powers, as in trials of warrant-cases under this Code.

(5) The officer to whom the commission is issued may either—

(a) proceed in the manner laid down in sub-section (4), and for that purpose may delegate his powers and duties under the commission to any officer subordinate to him whose powers are not less than those of a Magistrate of the first class in British India, or

(b) forward the commission to a Court within the local limits of the jurisdiction of which the witness resides and in respect of which a notification has been issued under sub-section (3)."

Amendment of section 505 of the Code.

3. In section 505 of the said Code—

(a) in sub-section (1) after the words "such interrogatories," the following words shall be inserted, namely :—

"unless the officer decides to proceed in the manner laid down in clause (b) of sub-section (5) of section 503, in which event he shall forward the interrogatories to the Court to which he forwards the commission."

(b) In sub-section (2) for the word "officer" the following words shall be substituted, namely :—

"unless he decides to proceed in the manner laid down in clause (b) of sub-section (5) of section 503 before such officer"

Amendment of section 507 of the Code.

4. In sub-section (1) of section 507 of the said Code—

(a) after the words "duly executed," the following words shall be inserted, namely :—

"or, in the case referred to in clause (b) of sub-section (5) of section 503, has been received by the officer from the Court to which he forwarded it";

(b) after the word "deposition" where it occurs for the first time, the words "if any" shall be inserted;

(c) after the words "of the record" the following words shall be inserted, namely :—

"and any deposition which has been recorded by a Court to which the officer has forwarded the commission, in accordance with the provisions of clause (b) of sub-section (5) of section 503, shall be admissible in evidence to the extent to which it would have been so admissible if recorded by a Magistrate or officer empowered under this Chapter to execute a commission."

Insertion of new section 508A in the Code.

5. After section 508 of the said Code, the following section shall be inserted, namely :—

Execution in British India of commissions from Indian States.

"508-A. (1) The Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, declare that any Court situated within the territories of any Prince or Chief in India is a Court commissions issued by which may be executed by Courts in British India.

(2) The officer representing the British Indian Government in the territories of any Prince or Chief in India may forward for execution to the District Magistrate or a Magistrate of the first class within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the witness resides, any commission for the examination of a witness in a criminal case, together with any interrogatories relating thereto, received by him from a Court in respect of which a notification has been issued under sub-section (1).

(3) On receipt of such commission, the Magistrate shall proceed to execute it as if the commission had been issued under sub-section (1) of section 503, and thereafter shall return the commission duly executed, together with the deposition of the witness examined thereunder, to the officer from whom it was received."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Section 503 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, provides that where the examination of a witness is necessary for the ends of justice and the attendance of such witness cannot be procured without unreasonable delay, expense or inconvenience, a commission may be issued for the examination of such witness. When the witness resides in the territories of any Prince or Chief in India in which there is an officer representing the British Indian Government, the commission may be issued to such officer, who shall proceed to the place where the witnesses are or shall summon them before him. Such officer may also delegate his powers and duties under the commission to any officer subordinate to him whose powers are not less than those of a Magistrate of the first class in British India. Some Darbars have represented to the Government of India that this procedure is prejudicial to the interests and privileges of Indian States. In civil matters such commissions can be executed by the Darbar Courts, but in criminal cases, they cannot be so executed, although in practice such commissions have for some time past been illegally executed by Darbar Courts in certain cases. In 1918 the Gwalior Darbar suggested that provision should be made to enable commissions issued by British Indian Courts to be executed by Darbar Courts. Local Governments were consulted on the proposal and a general consensus of opinion in favour of the introduction of such provisions on the basis of reciprocity was elicited. The whole question was then considered by a Committee appointed by the Conference of Ruling Princes and Chiefs which was held at Delhi in January 1919. The recommendations of the Committee were accepted by the Darbars and the Bill is designed to give effect to those recommendations. Its object is to provide for the issue by Courts in British India of commissions for the examination of witnesses to such Courts of Princes and Chiefs in India as are notified in this behalf, and for the execution by Courts in British India of commissions issued by such Courts. This arrangement is to be made on the basis of reciprocity.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 19th September, 1921:—

No. 26 of 1921.

A Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Income-tax and Super-tax.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to Income-tax and Super-tax; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title, extent and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Indian Income-tax Act, 192 ;

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, including the Sonthal Parganas, and applies also, within the dominions of Princes and Chiefs in India in alliance with His Majesty, to British subjects in those dominions who are in the service of the Government of India or of a local authority established in the exercise of the powers of the Governor General in Council in that behalf, and to all other servants of His Majesty in those dominions; and

(3) It shall come into force on the first day of April, 192 .

Definitions.

2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(1) "Agricultural income" means —

(a) any rent or revenue derived from land which is used for agricultural purposes, and is either assessed to land-revenue or subject to a local rate assessed and collected by officers of Government as such;

(b) any income derived from—

(i) agriculture, or

(ii) the performance by a cultivator or receiver of rent-in-kind of any process ordinarily employed by a cultivator or receiver of rent-in-kind to render the produce raised or received by him fit to be taken to market, or

(iii) the sale by a cultivator or receiver of rent-in-kind of the produce raised or received by him, when he does not keep a shop or stall for the sale of such produce, or

(iv) any building owned and occupied by the receiver of the rent or revenue of any such land as is referred to in clause (a), or occupied by the cultivator, or the receiver of rent-in-kind, of any land with respect to which, or the produce of which, any operation mentioned in sub-clauses (ii) and (iii) is carried on:

Provided that the building is on or in the immediate vicinity of the land, and is a building which the receiver of the rent or revenue or the cultivator or the receiver of the rent-in-kind, by reason of his connection with the land, requires as a dwelling-house, or as a store-house, or other outbuilding;

but does not include income derived from forestry;

(2) "Assessee" means a person by whom income-tax is payable, and includes a firm, a partnership and a Hindu undivided family;

VII of 1913.

(8) "Local authority" includes any person legally entitled to the control or management of any municipal or local fund;

(9) "Magistrate" means a Presidency Magistrate or a Magistrate of the first class, or a Magistrate of the second class specially empowered by the Local Government to try offences against this Act;

(10) "Prescribed" means prescribed by rules made under this Act;

(11) "Previous year" means—

(a) the twelve months ending on the 31st day of March next preceding the year for which the assessment is to be made, or, if the accounts of the assessee have been made up within the said twelve months in respect of a year ending on any date other than the said 31st day of March, then at the option of the assessee the year ending on the day on which his accounts have so been made up:

Provided that, if this option has once been exercised by the assessee, it shall not again be exercised so as to vary the meaning of the expression "previous year" as then applicable to such assessee except with the consent of the Assessor and upon such conditions as he may think fit; or

(b) in the case of any person, business or company or class of person, business or company such period as may be determined by the Governor General in Council or by such authority as the Governor General in Council may authorise in this behalf;

(12) "Principal officer" used with reference to a local authority or a company or any other public body or association not being a local authority or company means—

(a) the secretary, treasurer, manager or agent of the authority, company, body or association, or

(b) any person connected with the authority, company body or association upon whom the Assessor has served a notice of his intention of treating him as the principal officer thereof; and

(13) "Total income" means total income from all sources to which this Act applies computed in the manner laid down in section 16.

CHAPTER I.

CHARGE OF INCOME-TAX.

Charge of income-tax.

3. Where any Act of the Indian Legislature enacts that income tax shall be charged for any year at any rate or rates applicable to the total income of an assessee, tax at that rate or those rates shall be charged for that year in accordance with, and subject to the provisions of, this Act in respect of all income, profits and gains of the previous year.

Application of Act.

4. (1) Save as hereinafter provided, this Act shall apply to all income, profits or gains, as described or comprised in section 6, from whatever source derived, accruing, or arising, or received in British India, or deemed under the provisions of this Act to accrue, or arise, or to be received in British India.

(2) Income, profits or gains accruing or arising without British India and received in British India shall be deemed to be received in British India in the year in which they are so received, notwithstanding the fact that they did not so accrue or arise in that year.

(3) This Act shall not apply to the following classes of income :—

(i) Any income derived from property held under trust or other legal obligation wholly for religious or charitable purposes, and in the case of property so held in part only for such purposes, the income applied, or finally set apart for application, thereto.

(ii) Any income of a religious or charitable institution derived from voluntary contributions and applicable solely to religious or charitable purposes.

(iii) The income of local authorities.

X of 1897.

(iv) Interest on securities which are held by, or are the property of, any Provident Fund to which the Provident Funds Act, 1897, applies, or any Provident Insurance Society to which the Provident Insurance Societies Act, 1912, is, or, but for an exemption under that Act, would be, applicable.

V of 1912.

(v) Any capital sum received in commutation of the whole or a portion of a pension, or in the nature of consolidated compensation for death or injuries, or in payment of any insurance policy, or as the accumulated balance at the credit of a subscriber to any such Provident Fund.

(vi) Any special allowance, benefit or perquisite specifically granted to meet expenses wholly and necessarily incurred in the performance of the duties of an office or employment of profit.

(vii) Any receipts not being receipts arising from business or the exercise of a profession, vocation or occupation, which are of a casual and non-recurring nature, or are not by way of addition to the remuneration of an employé.

(viii) Agricultural income.

In this sub-section "charitable purpose" includes relief of the poor, education, medical relief, and the advancement of any other object of general public utility.

CHAPTER II.

INCOME-TAX OFFICERS.

Income-tax officers.

5. (1) There shall be the following classes of income-tax officers for the purposes of this Act, namely :—

(a) Commissioners of Income-tax,

(b) Assistant Commissioners of Income-tax and

(c) Assessors.

(2) There shall be a Commissioner of Income-tax for each province who shall be appointed by the Governor General in Council after consideration of any recommendation made by the Local Government in this behalf.

(3) Assistant Commissioners of Income-tax and Assessors shall, subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, be appointed by the Commissioner of Income-tax by order in writing which shall specify the areas within which such officers shall perform their functions.

(4) The Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, appoint Commissioners of Income-tax, Assistant Commissioners of Income-tax and Assessors to perform such functions in respect of such classes of persons or such classes of income, and for such area, as may be specified in the notification, and thereupon the functions so specified shall cease, within the specified area, to be performed, in respect of the specified classes of persons or classes of income, by the officers appointed under sub-sections (2) and (3).

(5) Assistant Commissioners of Income-tax and Assessors appointed under sub-section (3) shall, for the purposes of this Act, be subordinate to the Commissioner of Income-tax appointed under sub-section (2) for the province in which they perform their functions.

(6) All Income-tax officers shall be deemed to be public servants within the meaning of this Act and of the Indian Penal Code. XLV of 1860.

CHAPTER III.

TAXABLE INCOME.

Classes of income chargeable to income-tax.

6. Save as otherwise provided by this Act, the following heads of income, profits and gains shall be chargeable to income-tax in the manner hereinafter appearing, namely:—

(i) Salaries.

(ii) Interest on securities.

(iii) Property.

(iv) Business.

(v) Professional earnings.

(vi) Other sources.

Salaries.

7. (1) The tax shall be payable by an assessee under the head "Salaries" in respect of any salary or wages, any annuity, pension or gratuity, and any fees, commissions, perquisites or profits received by him in lieu of, or in addition to, any salary or wages, which are paid by or on behalf of Government, a local authority, a company, or any other public body or association not being a local authority or company, or by or on behalf of any private employer:

Provided that the tax shall not be payable in respect of any sum deducted under the authority of Government from the salary of any individual for the purpose of securing to him a deferred annuity or of making provision for his wife or children, provided that the sum so deducted shall not exceed one-sixth of the salary.

(2) Any income which would be chargeable under this head if paid in British India shall be deemed to be so chargeable if paid to a British subject or any servant of His Majesty in any part of India by Government or by a local authority established by the Governor General in Council.

Interest on securities.

8. The tax shall be payable by an assessee under the head "Interest on securities" in respect of the interest receivable by him on any security of the Government of India or of a Local Government, or on debentures or other securities for money issued by or on behalf of a local authority or a company:

Provided that no tax shall be payable on the interest receivable on any security of the Government of India issued or declared to be income-tax free.

Property.

9. The tax shall be payable by an assessee under the head "Property" in respect of the bonâ fide annual value of any buildings or lands of which he is the owner, other than such portions of such buildings and land as he may occupy for the purposes of his business, subject to the following allowances, namely:—

(i) where the property is in the occupation of the owner, or where it is let to a tenant and the owner has undertaken to bear the cost of repairs, a sum equal to one-sixth of such value;

(ii) where the property is in the occupation of a tenant who has undertaken to bear the cost of repairs, the difference between such value and the rent paid by the tenant up to but not exceeding one-sixth of such value;

(iii) the amount of any annual premium paid to insure the property against risk of damage or destruction;

(iv) where the property is subject to a mortgage or charge or to a ground rent, the amount of any interest on such mortgage or charge or of any such ground rent;

(v) any sums paid on account of land-revenue in respect of the property;

(vi) in respect of collection charges, a sum not exceeding the prescribed maximum;

(vii) in respect of vacancies, such sum as the Assessor may determine having regard to the circumstances of the case.

For the purposes of this section, the expression "annual value" shall be deemed to mean the sum for which the property might reasonably be expected to let from year to year:

Provided that, where the property is in the occupation of the owner for the purposes of his own residence, such sum shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed not to exceed ten per cent. of the aggregate income of the owner.

Business.

10. (1) The tax shall be payable by an assessee under the head "Business" in respect of the profits or gains of any business carried on by him.

(2) Such profits or gains shall be computed after making the following allowances, namely:—

(i) any rent paid for the premises in which such business is carried on, provided that, when any substantial part of the premises is used as a dwelling-house by the assessee, the allowance under this clause shall be such sum as the Assessor may determine having regard to the proportional part so used;

(ii) in respect of repairs, where the assessee is the tenant only of the premises, and has undertaken to bear the cost of such repairs, the amount paid on account thereof, provided that, if any substantial part of the premises is used by the assessee as a dwelling-house, a proportional part only of such amount shall be allowed;

(iii) in respect of capital borrowed for the purposes of the business, where the payment of interest thereon is not in any way dependent on the earning of profits, the amount of the interest paid;

(iv) in respect of insurance against risk of damage or destruction of buildings, machinery, plant, furniture, stocks or stores, used for the purposes of the business, the amount of any premium paid ;

(v) in respect of current repairs to such buildings, machinery, or plant, the amount paid on account thereof ;

(vi) in respect of depreciation of such buildings, machinery or plant being the property of the assessee, a sum equivalent to such percentage on the original cost thereof to the assessee as may in any case or class of cases be prescribed :

Provided that —

(a) the prescribed particulars have been duly furnished ;

(b) where full effect cannot be given to any such allowance in any year owing to there being no profits or gains chargeable for that year, or owing to the profits or gains chargeable being less than the allowance, the allowance or part of the allowance to which effect has not been given, as the case may be, shall be added to the amount of the allowance for depreciation for the following year and deemed to be part of that allowance, or, if there is no such allowance for that year, be deemed to be the allowance for that year, and so on for succeeding years ; and

(c) the aggregate of the allowances made under this sub-head either under this Act or any Act repealed thereby shall, in no case, exceed the original cost to the assessee of the buildings, machinery, or plant, as the case may be ;

(vii) in respect of any machinery or plant which has been sold or discarded as obsolete, the difference between the original cost to the assessee of the machinery or plant as reduced by the aggregate of the allowances made in respect of depreciation under clause (vi) and the amount for which the machinery or plant is actually sold, or its scrap value ;

(viii) any sums paid on account of land-revenue, local rates or municipal taxes in respect of such part of the premises as is used for the purposes of the business ;

(ix) any expenditure (not being in the nature of capital expenditure) incurred solely for the purpose of earning such profits or gains.

(3) In sub-section (2) the word "paid" means actually paid or incurred according to the method of accounting upon the basis of which the profits or gains are computed under this section.

Professional earnings.

11. (1) The tax shall be payable by an assessee under the head "Professional earnings" in respect of the profits or gains of any profession, or vocation, followed by him.

(2) Such profits or gains shall be computed after making allowance for any expenditure (not being in the nature of capital expenditure) incurred solely for the purposes of such profession or vocation, provided that no allowance shall be made on account of any personal expenses of the assessee.

(3) Professional fees paid in any part of India to a person ordinarily resident in British India shall be deemed to be profits or gains chargeable under this head.

Other sources.

12. (1) The tax shall be payable by an assessee under the head "Other sources" in respect of income, profits and gains of every kind and from every source to which this Act applies (if not included under any of the preceding heads).

(2) Such income, profits and gains shall be computed after making allowance for any expenditure (not being in the nature of capital expenditure) incurred solely for the purpose of making or earning such income, profits or gains, provided that no allowance shall be made on account of any personal expenses of the assessee.

Method of accounting.

13. Income, profits and gains shall be computed for the purposes of sections 10, 11 and 12, in accordance with the method of accounting regularly employed by the assessee :

Provided that, if no method of accounting has been regularly employed, or if the method employed is such that, in the opinion of the Assessor, the income, profits and gains cannot properly be deduced therefrom, then the computation shall be made upon such basis and in such manner as the Assessor may determine.

Exemptions of a general nature.

14. The tax shall not be payable by an assessee in respect of—

(a) any sum which he receives as a member of a Hindu undivided family ; or

(b) any sum which he receives by way of dividend as a member of a company ; or

(c) any sum which he is entitled to receive as his share of the profits or gains of any partnership or firm.

Exemption in the case of life insurances.

15. The tax shall not be payable by an assessee in respect of any sums paid by him to effect an insurance on his own life or on the life of his wife, or in respect of a contract for a deferred annuity on his own life or on the life of his wife, or as a contribution to any Provident Fund to which the Provident Funds Act, 1897, applies, or to any Provident Fund which complies with the provisions of the Provident Insurance Societies Act, 1912, or has been exempted from the provisions of that Act :

IX of 1897.

V of 1912.

Provided that the aggregate of any sum so exempted shall not, together with any sums exempted under the proviso to sub-section (1) of section 7, exceed one-sixth of the total income of the assessee.

Exemptions and exclusions in determining the total income.

16. (1) In computing the total income of an assessee for the purpose of determining the rate at which the tax is to be charged, sums exempted under the proviso to sub-section (1) of section 7, the proviso to section 8, clauses (b) and (c) of section 14 and section 15, shall be taken into account.

(2) For the purposes of sub-section (1), the sums mentioned in clauses (b) and (c) of section 14 shall be increased by the amount of income-tax payable by the company or firm in respect of the dividend received, or the share of the profits, as the case may be.

17. Notwithstanding any enactment fixing a minimum amount of income, profits or gains on which, or varying rates at which, income-tax shall be chargeable, income-tax shall be chargeable on the income, profits or gains of every company, firm and partnership at the maximum rate.

Firms and companies to be charged at the maximum rate.

18. Where owing to the fact that the total income of any person has reached or exceeded a certain limit, he is liable to pay income-tax or to pay income-tax at a higher rate, the amount of income-tax payable by him shall, where necessary, be reduced so as not to exceed the aggregate of the following amounts, namely:—

Reduction of tax when margin above a certain limit is small.

(a) the amount which would have been payable if his total income had been a sum less by one rupee than that limit, and

(b) the amount by which his total income exceeds that sum.

CHAPTER IV.

DEDUCTIONS AND ASSESSMENT.

19. (1) Income-tax shall, unless otherwise prescribed in the case of any security of the Government of India, be leviable in advance by deduction at the time of payment in respect of income chargeable under the following heads:—

Payment by deduction at source.

(i) "Salaries"; and

(ii) "Interest on securities."

(2) Any person paying any income chargeable under the head "Salaries" shall, at the time of payment, deduct income-tax on the amount payable at the rate applicable to such amount or, if the payment is a recurring one and in respect of any period less than a year, at the rate applicable to the amount which would be proportionately payable in a year, as if such amount, in either case, were the total income of the assessee:

Provided that such person may make up any deficiency in any previous deduction by addition to any deduction made under this sub-section.

(3) The person responsible for paying any income chargeable under the head "Interest on securities" shall, at the time of payment, deduct income-tax on the amount of the interest payable at the maximum rate.

(4) All sums deducted in accordance with the provisions of this section shall, for the purpose of computing the income of an assessee, be deemed to be income received.

(5) Any deduction made in accordance with the provisions of this section shall be treated as a payment of income-tax on behalf of the person from whose earnings the deduction was made, or of the owner of the security, as the case may be, and credit shall be given to him therefor in the assessment, if any, made for the following year under this Act:

Provided that, if such person or such owner obtains, in accordance with the provisions of this Act, a refund of any portion of the tax so deducted, no credit shall be given for the amount of such refund.

(6) All sums deducted in accordance with the provisions of this section shall be paid within the prescribed time by the person making the deduction to the credit of the Government of India, or as the Governor General in Council directs.

(7) If any such person does not deduct and pay the tax as required by this section, he shall, without prejudice to any other consequences which he may incur, be deemed to be personally in default in respect of the tax.

(8) The power to deduct under this section shall be without prejudice to any other mode of recovery.

(9) Every person deducting income-tax in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (3) shall, at the time of payment of interest, furnish to the person to whom the interest is payable a certificate to the effect that income-tax has been deducted, and specifying the amount so deducted, the rate at which the tax has been deducted, and such other particulars as may be prescribed.

20. In the case of income chargeable under any other head than those mentioned in sub-section (1) of section 19, the tax shall be payable by the assessee direct.

Payment in other cases.

21. The principal officer of every company shall, at the time of distribution of dividends, furnish to every person receiving a dividend a certificate to the effect that the company has paid or will pay income-tax on the profits which are being distributed, and specifying the amount of tax paid or to be paid, the rate at which it has been or is to be paid, and such other particulars as may be prescribed.

Certificate by company to shareholders receiving dividends.

22. The prescribed person in the case of every Government office, and the principal officer of every local authority, and of every company, and of every other public body or association not being a local authority or company, and every private employer shall prepare, and, within fifteen days from the 31st day of March in each year, deliver or cause to be delivered to the Assessor, in the prescribed form, a return in writing showing—

Annual return.

(a) the name and, so far as it is known, the address, of every person who was receiving on the said 31st day of March, or has received during the year ending on that date, from the authority, company, body, association or private employer, as the case may be, any income chargeable under the head "Salaries" of such amount as may be prescribed;

(b) the amount of the income so received by each such person, and the time or times at which the same was paid;

(c) the amount deducted in respect of income-tax from each such person.

23. (1) The principal officer of every company shall prepare, and, on or before the fifteenth day of June in each year, deliver or cause to be delivered to the Assessor a return in the prescribed form and verified in the prescribed manner of the total income of the company during the previous year:

Return by assessees.

Provided that the Assessor may, in his discretion, extend the date for the delivery of the return in the case of any company or class of companies.

(2) In the case of any person other than a company whose total income is, in the Assessor's opinion, of such an amount as to render such person liable to income-tax, the Assessor shall serve a notice upon him requiring him to furnish, within such period as may be specified in the notice, a return in the prescribed form and verified in the prescribed manner setting forth (along with such other particulars as may be provided for in the notice) his total income during the previous year.

(3) The Assessor may serve on any assessee a notice requiring him, on a date to be therein specified, to produce or cause to be produced such accounts or documents as he may require.

24. (1) If the Assessor is satisfied that a return made under section 23 is correct and complete, he shall assess the total income of the assessee for the previous year on the basis of such return, and shall determine the sum payable by him for the year in which the return is made.

Assessment.

(2) If the Assessor has reason to believe that a return made under section 23 is incorrect or incomplete, he shall serve on the person who made the return a notice requiring him, on a date to be therein specified, either to attend at the Assessor's office or to produce, or to cause to be there produced, any evidence on which the assessee may rely in support of the return.

(3) On the day specified in the notice issued under sub-section (2), or as soon afterwards as may be, the Assessor, after hearing such evidence as the assessee may produce and such other evidence as the Assessor may require, shall, by an order in writing, assess the total income of the assessee for the previous year, and determine the sum payable by the assessee for the year in which the return is made on the basis of such assessment.

(4) If the principal officer of any company or any other person fails to make a return under sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) of section 23, as the case may be, or fails to comply with all the terms of a notice issued under sub-section (3) of the same section or, having made a return, fails to comply with all the terms of a notice issued under sub-section (2) of this section, the Assessor shall make the assessment to the best of his judgment.

25. Where any assessee sustains a loss in any year under any of the heads mentioned in section 6, he shall be entitled to have the amount of the loss set-off against his income, profits or gains under any other head.

Set-off of loss in computing aggregate income.

26. (1) Where any business, profession or vocation is discontinued in any year, an assessment may be made in that year on the basis of the income, profits or gains of that portion of the year during which the business, profession or vocation was carried on in addition to the assessment, if any, made on the basis of the income, profits or gains of the previous year.

Assessment in case of discontinued business.

(2) Any person intending to discontinue any business, profession or vocation in which he is engaged, shall give to the Assessor fifteen days' notice of his intention, and, where any person fails to give the notice required by this sub-section, the Assessor may direct that a sum shall be recovered from him by way of penalty equivalent to the amount of tax subsequently assessed on him in respect of any income, profits or gains of the business, profession or vocation up to the date of its discontinuance.

27. Notwithstanding any change in the constitution of a firm or of a partnership of persons engaged in any business, profession or vocation, or where any person has succeeded to any business, profession or vocation, the assessment shall be made on the firm or partnership as constituted, or on the persons engaged in the business, profession or vocation, as the case may be, at the time of the making of the assessment.

Change in ownership of business or in partnership.

28. When the Assessor has determined a sum to be payable by an assessee under section 24, he shall serve on the assessee a notice of demand in the prescribed form specifying the sum so payable.

Notice of demand.

29. Where an assessee or, in the case of a company, the principal officer thereof, within one month from the service of a notice of demand issued under section 28, satisfies the Assessor that he was prevented by sufficient cause from making the return required by section 23, or that he did not receive the notice issued under sub-section (3) of section 23 or sub-section (2) of section 24, or that he had not a reasonable opportunity to comply, or was prevented by sufficient cause from complying, with the terms of the last-mentioned notices, the Assessor may cancel the assessment and proceed to make a fresh assessment in accordance with the provisions of section 24.

Cancellation of assessment when cause is shown.

30. (1) Any assessee objecting to the amount or rate at which he is assessed under section 24 or section 29, or denying his liability to be assessed under this Act, may apply by petition to the Assistant Commissioner for relief against any order of the Assessor in respect of such assessment:

Petition against assessment under this Act.

Provided that no such application may be made in respect of an assessment made under sub-section (4) of section 24, or under that sub-section read with section 29.

(2) The petition shall ordinarily be presented within thirty days of receipt of the notice of demand relating to the assessment objected to; but the Assistant Commissioner may receive a petition after the expiration of that period, if he is satisfied that the objector had sufficient cause for not presenting it within that period.

(3) The petition shall be accompanied by a copy of the order of the Assessor, shall be in the prescribed form, and shall be verified in the prescribed manner.

Hearing of petition.

31. The Assistant Commissioner shall fix a day and place for the hearing of the petition, and on the day and at the place so fixed, or on the day and at the place, if any, to which he has adjourned the hearing, shall hear the petition and pass such order thereon, whether by way of confirmation, reduction, enhancement or cancellation, of the assessment, or otherwise, as he thinks fit.

Power of review.

32. The Commissioner may, of his own motion, call for the record of any assessment proceeding which has been taken by any officer subordinate to him, and make such inquiry and pass such orders thereon as he thinks fit:

Provided that he shall not pass any order enhancing the sum payable by an assessee without hearing him or giving him a reasonable opportunity of being heard.

Penalty for concealment of income.

33. If the Assessor or the Assistant Commissioner, in making any assessment under this Chapter, is satisfied that the assessee has concealed the particulars of his income, or has deliberately furnished inaccurate particulars of such income, and has thereby returned it below its real amount, the Assessor or the Assistant Commissioner may direct that the assessee shall, in addition to the income-tax payable by him, pay by way of penalty a sum equal to the amount of income-tax which would have been avoided, if the income so returned by the assessee had been accepted as the correct income:

Provided that no such order shall be made, unless the assessee has been heard, or has been given a reasonable opportunity of being heard:

Provided, further, that no prosecution for an offence against this Act shall be instituted in respect of the same facts on which a penalty has been imposed under this section.

Income escaping assessment.

34. If for any reason income chargeable under this Act has escaped assessment in any year, or has been assessed at too low a rate, the Assessor may, at any time within three years of the end of that year, serve on the person liable to pay tax on such income, or, in the case of a company, on the principal officer thereof, a notice containing all or any of the requirements which may be included in a notice under sub-section (2) of section 23, and may proceed to assess or re-assess such income, and the provisions of this Act shall, so far as may be, apply accordingly as if the notice were a notice issued under that sub-section.

Rectification of mistake.

35. (1) The Assessor may, at any time within three years from the date of any demand made upon an assessee, on his own motion rectify any mistake apparent from the record of the assessment, and shall within the like period rectify any such mistake which has been brought to his notice by such assessee:

Provided that no such rectification shall be made, having the effect of enhancing an assessment unless the Assessor has given notice to the assessee of his intention so to do and has allowed him a reasonable opportunity of being heard.

(2) Where any such rectification has the effect of reducing the assessment, the Assessor shall make a refund to such assessee accordingly.

(3) Where any such rectification has the effect of enhancing the assessment, the Assessor shall serve on the assessee a notice of demand in the prescribed form specifying the sum payable, and such notice of demand shall be deemed to be issued under section 28, and the provisions of this Act shall apply accordingly.

Tax to be calculated to nearest anna.

36. In the determination of the amount of tax or of a refund payable under this Act, fractions of an anna less than six pies shall be disregarded, and fractions of an anna equal to or exceeding six pies shall be regarded as one anna.

Power to take evidence on oath, etc.

37. The Assessor or Assistant Commissioner shall, for the purposes of this Chapter, have the same powers as are vested in a Court under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, when trying a suit in respect of the following matters, namely:— V of 1908

(a) enforcing the attendance of any person and examining him on oath or affirmation;

(b) compelling the production of documents; and

(c) issuing commissions for the examination of witnesses;

and any proceeding before an Assessor or Assistant Commissioner under this Chapter shall be deemed to be a "judicial proceeding" within the meaning of sections 193 and 228 of the Indian Penal Code. XLV of 1860

Power to call for information.

38. The Assessor or Assistant Commissioner may, for the purposes of this Act,—

(1) require any firm or Hindu undivided family to furnish him with a return of the partners in the firm, or the adult male members of the family, as the case may be, and of their addresses;

(2) require any person whom he has reason to believe to be a trustee, guardian, or agent, to furnish him with a return of the names of the persons for or of whom he is trustee, guardian, or agent, and of their addresses;

(3) require any assessee to furnish particulars in respect of any payment made by him and shown in a return furnished or in any accounts or documents produced under section 23.

Power to inspect the register of members of any company.

39. The Assessor or Assistant Commissioner, or any person authorised in writing in this behalf by the Assessor or Assistant Commissioner, may inspect and, if necessary, take copies or cause copies to be taken of the register of members of any company or of any entry in such register.

CHAPTER V.

LIABILITY IN SPECIAL CASES.

Guardians, trustees and agents.

40. In the case of any guardian, trustee or agent of any person being a minor, lunatic or idiot or residing out of British India (all of which persons are hereinafter in this section included in the term beneficiary) being in receipt on behalf of such beneficiary of any income chargeable under this Act, the tax shall be levied upon and recoverable from such guardian, trustee or agent, as the case may be, in like manner and to the same amount as it would be leviable upon and recoverable from any such beneficiary if of full age, sound mind, or resident in British India, and in direct receipt of such income, and all the provisions of this Act shall apply accordingly.

Courts of Wards, etc.

41. In the case of income chargeable under this Act which is received by the Courts of Wards, the Administrators-General, the Official Trustees or by any receiver or manager (including any person whatever his designation who in fact manages property on behalf of another) appointed by or under any order of a Court, the tax shall be levied upon and recoverable from such Court of Wards, Administrator-General, Official Trustee, receiver or manager in the like manner and to the same amount as it would be leviable upon and recoverable from any person on whose behalf such income is received, and all the provisions of this Act shall apply accordingly.

Non-residents.

42. (1) In the case of any person residing out of British India, all profits or gains accruing or arising to such person, whether directly or indirectly, through or from any business connection or property in British India, or from interest on any security of the kinds mentioned in section 8, shall be deemed to be income accruing or arising within British India, and shall be chargeable to income-tax in the name of the agent of any such person, or, where there are more agents than one, in the name of such agent as the Commissioner shall determine, and such agent shall be deemed to be, for all the purposes of this Act the assessee in respect of such income-tax;

Provided that any arrears of tax may be recovered also in accordance with the provisions of this Act from any assets of the non-resident person which are, or may at any time come, within British India.

(2) Where a person not resident in British India, and not being a British subject or a firm or company constituted within His Majesty's dominions or a branch thereof, carries on business with a person resident in British India, and it appears to the Assessor or the Assistant Commissioner, as the case may be, that owing to the close connection between the resident and the non-resident person and to the substantial control exercised by the non-resident over the resident, the course of business between those persons is so arranged, that the business done by the resident in pursuance of his connection with the non-resident produces to the resident either no profits or less than the ordinary profits which might be expected to arise in that business, the profits derived therefrom or which may reasonably be deemed to have been derived therefrom, shall be chargeable to income-tax in the name of the resident person who shall be deemed to be, for all the purposes of this Act, the assessee in respect of such income-tax.

Agent to include person treated as such.

43. Any person employed by or on behalf of a person residing out of British India, or having any business connection with such person, upon whom the Assessor has caused a notice to be served of his intention of treating him as the agent of the non resident person shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be such agent:

Provided that no person shall be deemed to be the agent of a non-resident person unless he has had an opportunity of being heard by the Assessor as to his liability.

CHAPTER VI.

RECOVERY OF TAX AND PENALTIES.

Tax when payable.

44. The amount of income-tax specified as payable in a notice of demand under section 28 or an order under section 31 or section 32, shall be paid within the time, at the place and to the person mentioned in the notice or order, or if a time is not so mentioned, then on or before the first day of the second month following the date of the notice or order, and any assessee failing so to pay shall be deemed to be in default, provided that, when an assessee has presented a petition under section 30, the Assessor may in his discretion treat the assessee as not being in default as long as such petition is undisposed of.

Mode and time of recovery.

45. (1) When an assessee is in default in making a payment of income-tax, the Assessor may in his discretion direct that, in addition to the amount of the arrears, a sum not exceeding that amount shall be recovered from the assessee by way of penalty.

(2) The Assessor may forward to the Collector a certificate under his signature specifying the amount of arrears due from an assessee, and the Collector, on receipt of such certificate, shall proceed to recover from such assessee the amount specified therein as if it were an arrear of land-revenue.

(3) In any area, with respect to which the Commissioner has directed that any arrears may be recovered by any process enforceable for the recovery of an arrear of any municipal tax or local rate imposed under any enactment for the time being in force in any part of the province, the Assessor may proceed to recover the amount due by such process.

(4) The Commissioner may direct by what authority any powers or duties incident under any such enactment as aforesaid to the enforcement of any process for the recovery of a municipal tax or local rate shall be exercised or performed when that process is employed under sub-section (3).

(5) If any assessee is in receipt of any income chargeable under the head "Salaries," the Assessor may require any person paying the same to deduct from any payment subsequent to the date of such requisition any arrears due from such assessee, and such person shall comply with any such requisition and shall pay the sums so deducted to the credit of the Government of India, or as the Governor General in Council directs.

(6) The Local Government may direct, with respect to any specified area, that income-tax shall be recovered therein, with, and as an addition to, any municipal tax or local rate by the same person and in the same manner as the municipal tax or local rate is recovered.

(7) Save in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (1) of section 42, no proceedings for the recovery of any sum payable under this Act shall be commenced after the expiration of one year from the last day of the year in which any demand is made under this Act.

46. Any sum imposed by way of penalty under the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 26, section 33 or sub-section (1) of section 45, shall be recoverable in the manner provided in this Chapter for the recovery of arrears of tax.

Recovery of penalties.

CHAPTER VII.

REFUNDS.

47. (1) If a shareholder in a company who has received any dividend therefrom satisfies the Assessor that the rate of income-tax specified in the certificate received by him under section 21 in respect of such dividend is greater than the rate applicable to his total income of the year in which such dividend was received, he shall be entitled to a refund on the amount of such dividend (including the amount of the tax specified in the said certificate) calculated at the difference between those rates.

Refunds.

(2) If a partner in a firm satisfies the Assessor that the rate of income-tax applicable to his total income of the previous year was less than the rate at which the profits of the firm have been assessed, he shall be entitled to a refund on his share of those profits calculated at the difference between those rates.

(3) If the owner of a security from the interest on which, or any person from whose salary, income-tax has been deducted in accordance with the provisions of section 19 satisfies the Assessor that the rate of income-tax applicable to his total income of the previous year was less than the rate at which income-tax has been charged in making such deduction, he shall be entitled to a refund on the amount of interest or salary from which such deduction has been made calculated at the difference between those rates.

48. (1) If any person who has paid Indian income-tax for any year on any part of his income proves to the satisfaction of the Assessor that he has paid United Kingdom income-tax for that year in respect of the same part of his income, and that the rate at which he was entitled to, and has obtained, relief under the provisions of section 27 of the Finance Act 1920, is less than the Indian rate of tax charged in respect of that part of his income, he shall be entitled to a refund of a sum calculated on that part of his income at a rate equal to the difference between the Indian rate of tax and the rate at which he was entitled to and obtained relief under that section:

Relief in respect of United Kingdom income-tax.

10 and 11 Geo. V., Ch. 18.

Provided that the rate at which the refund is to be given shall not exceed one-half of the Indian rate of tax.

(2) In sub-section (1)—

(a) the expression "Indian income-tax" means income-tax and super-tax charged in accordance with the provisions of this Act;

(b) the expression "Indian rate of tax" means the amount of the Indian income-tax divided by the income on which it was charged;

(c) the expression "United Kingdom income-tax" means income-tax and super-tax chargeable in accordance with the provisions of the Income-tax Acts.

49. No claim to any refund under this Chapter shall be allowed, unless it is made within three years from the last day of the year to which the claim relates.

Limitation of claims for refund.

CHAPTER VIII.

OFFENCES AND PENALTIES.

50. If a person fails without reasonable cause or excuse—

Failure to make payments or deliver returns or statements or allow inspection.

(a) to deduct and pay any tax as required by section 19 or under sub-section (5) of section 45;

(b) to furnish a certificate required by sub-section (9) of section 19 or by section 21 to be furnished;

(c) to deliver or cause to be delivered in due time any of the returns or particulars mentioned in section 22, section 23, or section 38;

(d) to produce, or cause to be produced, on or before the date mentioned in any notice under sub-section (3) of section 23, such accounts and documents as are referred to in the notice;

(e) to grant inspection or allow copies to be taken in accordance with the provisions of section 39, he shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be punishable with fine which may extend to ten rupees for every day during which the default continues.

51. If a person makes a statement in a verification mentioned in section 23 or sub-section (2) of section 30 which is false, and which he either knows or believes to be false or does not believe to be true, he shall be deemed to have committed the offence described in section 177 of the Indian Penal Code.

False statement in declaration.

XLV of 1860.

52. (1) A person shall not be proceeded against for an offence under section 50 or section 51 except at the instance of the Assistant Commissioner.

Prosecution to be at instance of Assistant Commissioner.

(2) The Assistant Commissioner may stay any such proceeding or compound any such offence.

53. (1) All particulars contained in any statement made, return furnished or accounts or documents produced under the provisions of this Act, or in any evidence given, or affidavit or deposition made, in the course of any proceedings under this Act other than proceedings under this Chapter, or in any record of any assessment proceeding prepared for the purposes of this Act, shall be treated as confidential, and, notwithstanding anything contained in the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, no Court shall, save as provided in this Act, be entitled to require any public servant to produce before it any such return, accounts, documents or record or any part of any such record, or to give evidence before it in respect thereof.

Disclosure of information by a public servant.

I of 1872.

(2) If a public servant discloses any particulars contained in any such statement, return, accounts, documents, evidence, affidavit, deposition or record, he shall be punishable with imprisonment which may extend to six months, and shall also be liable to fine:

Provided that nothing in this section shall apply to the disclosure—

(a) of any such particulars for the purposes of a prosecution under section 193 of the Indian Penal Code in respect of any such statement, return, accounts, documents, evidence, affidavit or deposition, or for the purposes of a prosecution under this Act, or

XLV of 1860.

(b) of any such particulars to any person acting in the execution of this Act where it is necessary to disclose the same to him for the purposes of this Act, or

(c) of such facts, to an authorised officer of the United Kingdom, as may be necessary to enable relief to be given under section 27 of the Finance Act, 1920, or a refund to be given under section 48 of this Act:

10 and 11 Geo. V, Ch. 18.

Provided further that no prosecution shall be instituted under this section except with the previous sanction of the Commissioner.

CHAPTER IX.

SUPER-TAX.

54. In addition to the income-tax charged for any year, there shall be charged, levied and paid for that year in respect of the total income of any individual, Hindu undivided family or company, an additional duty of income-tax (in this Act referred to as super-tax) at the rate or rates laid down for that year by Act of the Indian Legislature.

Charge of super-tax.

55. (1) For the purposes of super-tax, the total income of any individual, Hindu undivided family or company shall be the total income as assessed for the purposes of income-tax.

Total income for purposes of super-tax.

(2) Where an assessment of total income has become final and conclusive for the purposes of income-tax for any year, the assessment shall also be final and conclusive for the purposes of super-tax for the same year.

56. (1) In the case of any assessee residing out of British India who is a member of a firm or partnership, and whose share of the profits from such firm or partnership is liable to super-tax, the remaining members of such firm or partnership who are resident in British India shall be jointly and severally liable to pay the super-tax due from the non-resident member.

Non-resident partners and shareholders.

(2) Where any assessee who is liable to pay super-tax on the amount of the dividends received by him from any company is residing out of British India, the principal officer of such company shall be liable to pay the super-tax due by such non-resident person in respect of the dividends received by him from the company.

(3) Where any person pays any tax under the provisions of this section on account of an assessee who is residing out of British India, credit shall be given therefor in determining the amount of the tax to be payable by any agent of such non-resident assessee under the provisions of sections 42 and 43.

57. (1) All the provisions of this Act, except sections 3, 14, 15, 17, 18, 19, 20, 22 and 47, shall apply, so far as may be, to the charge, assessment, collection and recovery of super-tax.

Application of Act to super-tax.

(2) Save as provided in section 56, super-tax shall be payable by the assessee direct.

CHAPTER X.

MISCELLANEOUS.

58. (1) The Governor General may make rules for carrying out the purposes of this Act and for the ascertainment and determination of any class of income. Such rules may be made for the whole of British India or for such part thereof as may be specified.

Power to make rules.

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may—

(a) prescribe the manner in which, and the procedure by which, the income, profits and gains shall be arrived at in the case of—

(i) businesses part of the income of which is agricultural income;

(ii) insurance companies;

(iii) persons residing out of British India;

(b) prescribe the procedure to be followed on applications for refunds;

(c) provide for such arrangements with His Majesty's Government as may be necessary to enable the appropriate relief to be granted under section 27 of the Finance Act, 1920, or under section 48 of this Act;

10 and 11 Geo. V., Ch. 18.

(d) prescribe the year which for the purpose of relief under section 48 is to be taken as corresponding to the year of assessment for the purposes of section 27 of the Finance Act, 1920; and

10 and 11 Geo. V., Ch.

(e) provide for any matter which by this Act is to be prescribed.

(3) Rules made under this section shall be published in the Gazette of India, and shall thereupon have effect as if enacted in this Act.

Power to make exemptions, etc.

59. The Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, make an exemption, reduction in rate or other modification, in respect of income-tax in favour of any class of income, or in regard to the whole or any part of the income of any class of persons Appearance by authorised representative.

60. Any assessee who is entitled or required to attend before any income-tax officer in connection with any proceedings under this Act, may attend either in person or by any person authorised by him in writing in this behalf.

Receipts.

61. When any money is paid under this Act to an Assessor, or is recovered thereunder by an Assessor or Collector, the Assessor or Collector, as the case may be, shall give a receipt for the same.

Service of notices.

62. A notice or requisition under this Act may be served on the person therein-named, either by post, or in any manner provided by the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, for the service of summons.

V of 1908

Place of assessment

63. (1) Where an assessee carries on business at any place, he shall be assessed at that place, or, where the business is carried on in more places than one, at his principal place of business.

(2). In all other cases, an assessee shall be assessed at the place where he resides.

(3) Where any question arises under this section as to the place of assessment, such question shall be determined by the Commissioner, or, where the question is between places in more provinces than one, by the Commissioners concerned, or, if they are not in agreement, by the Governor General in Council.

(4) Notwithstanding anything contained in this section, every Assessor shall have all the powers conferred by or under this Act on an Assessor in respect of any income, profits or gains accruing, or arising or received within the area for which he is appointed.

Delegation of powers of the Governor General in Council.

64. The Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, delegate all or any of his powers under this Act to such authority as may be specified in such notification.

Indemnity.

65. Every person deducting, retaining or paying any tax in pursuance of this Act in respect of income belonging to another person is hereby indemnified for the deduction, retention or payment thereof.

Statement of case by Commissioner to High Court.

66. (1) If in the course of any assessment under this Act or any proceeding in connection therewith other than a proceeding under Chapter VIII, a question of law arises, the Commissioner may, either on his own motion or on reference from any income-tax officer subordinate to him, draw up a statement of the case and refer it with his own opinion thereon to the High Court.

(2) Within one month of the passing of an order under section 31, the assessee in respect of whom the order was passed may, by application accompanied by a fee of one hundred rupees, require the Commissioner to refer to the High Court any question of law arising out of such order, and the Commissioner shall, within one month of the receipt of such application, draw up a statement of the case and refer it with his own opinion thereon to the High Court.

(3) If the High Court is not satisfied that the statements in a case referred under this section are sufficient to enable it to determine the question raised thereby, the Court may refer the case back to the Commissioner by whom it was stated to make such additions thereto or alterations therein as the Court may direct in that behalf.

(4) The High Court upon the hearing of any such case shall decide the questions of law raised thereby, and shall deliver its judgment thereon containing the grounds on which such decision is founded, and shall send to the Commissioner by whom the case was stated a copy of such judgment under the seal of the Court and the signature of the Registrar, and the Commissioner shall dispose of the case accordingly, or, if the case arose on a reference from any income-tax officer subordinate to him, shall forward a copy of such judgment to such officer who shall dispose of the case conformably to such judgment.

(5) Where a reference is made to the High Court on the application of an assessee, the costs shall be in the discretion of the Court.

(6) Notwithstanding that a reference has been made under this section to the High Court, income-tax shall be payable in accordance with the assessment, if any, made in the case:

Provided that, if the amount of an assessment is reduced as a result of such reference, the amount overpaid shall be refunded with such interest, if any, as the Commissioner may allow.

(7) In this section the expression "question of law" means any question arising with reference to the interpretation of any of the provisions of this Act or of any rule made thereunder.

67. No suit shall be brought in any Civil Court to set aside or modify any assessment made under this Act, and no prosecution, suit or other proceeding shall lie against any Government officer for anything in good faith done or intended to be done under this Act.

Bar of suits in Civil Court.

68. The enactments mentioned in the Schedule are hereby repealed to the extent specified in the fourth column thereof:

Repeals.

Provided that such repeal shall not affect the liability of any person to pay any sum due from him or any existing right of refund under any of the said enactments:

Provided, further, that the provisions of section 19 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1918, shall apply, so far as may be, to all assessments made under that Act in the year ending on the thirty-first day of March, 1921, and where an adjustment shall be made under the provisions of section 19 of the said Act, the provisions of this Act shall apply as if such adjustment were an assessment made under this Act in the year in which the adjustment is made.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

This Bill, which is designed to take the place of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1918 (VII of 1918) and the Indian Super-tax Act, 1920 (XIX of 1920), is based on the report of a Committee appointed to make recommendations for the amendment of these Acts, more particularly regarding the assessment of mercantile profits. The report of the Committee was published for general information on the 28th July 1921. The Bill deals merely with the basis, the methods, and the machinery of assessment. The rates at which income-tax and super-tax will be charged will be determined by the annual Finance Act, and the Schedules in the present Acts have, therefore, been omitted from this Bill. The Bill is a purely administrative measure, the provisions of which will be set in motion by the passing of the annual Finance Bill.

Basis of assessment.

2. Under the present Act, tax at the rates fixed for any year is levied on the income of that year. A provisional assessment is first made on the income of the preceding year, and this assessment is subsequently adjusted and corrected when the income of the year in which the provisional assessment was made is ascertained. This system has given rise to numerous complaints. It involves the keeping of a running account between the Government and the tax-payer; where incomes are liable to sudden fluctuations, the tax-payer has to pay a heavy tax in a lean year and a light tax in a prosperous year; the working of the system is not clearly understood by many assessees, and has given rise to many misapprehensions. The Bill, therefore, provides for the tax at the rates sanctioned for any year being assessed finally on the income of the preceding year and for the abolition of the adjustment system. Since, however, the assessments made in the current year are provisional assessments, clause 63 of the Bill provides that all assessments made in the year 1921-22 shall be adjusted.

The only exception to this general rule is contained in clause 26 of the Bill, where, in order to guard against a possible loss of revenue owing to delay in making assessments on the profits of businesses that close down during the course of a financial or commercial year, it is provided that in such cases, in addition to the assessment on the income of the preceding year, a further assessment may be made in the year in which a business, profession or vocation is closed down on the income of that year. The same clause imposes a statutory obligation on a person discontinuing a business, etc., to give timely notice to the income-tax authorities of his intention to discontinue the business.

3. Difficulties have been experienced in regard to the assessment of business profits owing to a High Court ruling that the word "income" in section 3 of the present Income-tax Act means income actually or constructively received, and that the use of the word in this sense in section 3 restricts and limits any interpretation to be placed upon the following sections of the Act which specify the different classes of income liable to the tax. If this interpretation were to be strictly followed, considerable inconvenience would be caused to assessees who keep their accounts not on the basis of sums actually received and sums actually paid out, but on the principles of mercantile accountancy by the preparation of a profit and loss account and the comparison of the value of the stock in hand at the beginning and the end of each year, since such assessees would be required to recast the whole of their accounts on a cash basis for income-tax returns. The provisions in clauses 3, 4 and 6 to 12 of the Bill have, therefore, been re-drafted in order to make it clear that the tax is chargeable not necessarily on "income" calculated on actual receipts and expenditure, but on the "income, profits or gains" as set out and defined in these clauses; while clause 13 makes it clear that no uniform method of accounting is prescribed for all tax-payers, and that every tax-payer may, so far as is possible, adopt such form and system of accounting as is best suited for his purposes. The only restrictions are that the method adopted must be one that clearly reflects the income of the assessee in respect of the fixed period of "the previous year," and that it is the one regularly employed by him for the purposes of his business. If the tax-payer does not regularly employ a method of accounting which clearly reflects his income for the "previous year", the computation will be made in such manner as in the opinion of the assessor does clearly reflect it. It will be the method of accounting adopted for or by the tax-payer, therefore, that will determine the period within which any item of gross income or any deduction therefrom is to be accounted for. For the same reasons the words "in respect of sums paid or, in the case of depreciation, debited" which occur in section 9 (2) of the present Act have been omitted, and sub-clause (3) of clause 10 of the Bill inserted so that there may be no doubt that the assessee may adopt either a cash basis or a mercantile accountancy basis as his regular system of keeping accounts.

4. As stated above assessable income must be computed with reference to a fixed period, which is known as the "previous year." The definition of the phrase "previous year" in section 2 (4) of the present Act has occasioned difficulties to assessees whose accounts year is not in accordance with that definition. That definition restricts the accounting period to a period of twelve calendar months, and merely gives the assessee an option of adopting a year of twelve calendar months ending on a date other than the 31st day of March. In the case of certain communities the commercial year is not necessarily a calendar year, but is a period which, expressed in calendar months, varies from year to year, and in one year may be slightly over and in another year slightly under twelve months. Again, any year which is adopted in place of the financial year must under the present definition terminate at some period within the previous financial year, and there are numerous cases where the commercial year terminates in the month of April so that the returns and accounts on which the assessment is based in such cases relate to a period more than twelve months prior to the date of assessment. Clause 2 (11) (b) provides for such cases, so that either the Government of India or the head of the income-tax department in a province, if authorised by the Government of India, may determine as the "previous year" a commercial year which may be slightly over or slightly under twelve months. It is intended that no commercial year should be fixed terminating later than one month after the end of the previous financial year.

5. The method of calculating taxable income which is prescribed in sections 12 to 14-A of the present Act has given rise to various inequalities in assessment. "Taxable income" under the present Act means income assessed directly on the assessee, that is, his income from sources other than the dividends of a company or the share in the profits of a firm, so that an assessee who has income either from a firm or from the profits of a company and has in addition other income which is assessed to income-tax directly on him, pays no income-tax on that other income unless it is in excess of Rs. 2,000, while per contra he gets no deduction on account of insurance premia set against the income that he derives from a company or a firm. Clauses 3 and 14 to 16 of the Bill, therefore, provide that the "total income" of an assessee shall determine his liability to the tax as well as the rate at which the tax shall be assessed on every portion of that income and also permit the deduction on account of insurance premia in the case of all income from whatever source derived. A further amendment in these clauses has been made in order to provide that no account shall be taken of any income derived from a Hindu undivided family by an individual member of the family in determining the rate at which that individual member shall pay income-tax on his separate income.

6. Under the wording of section 14 of the present Act it is the aggregate amount chargeable under each head that determines taxable income, so that when a person has carried on a trade or profession and also has an income from house property, if he has actually incurred a loss in the trade, the figure adopted under that head in arriving at the aggregate amount of income chargeable to income-tax is nil and not a minus sum. In clause 25 of the Bill it is proposed to amend this provision so that a loss under one head of income may be charged against profits under another.

7. Another difficulty complained of by commercial assessees is in connection with the distinction in the present Act between registered and unregistered firms. This distinction is therefore abolished in this Bill, under the provisions of which the profits of partnerships as such will be assessed at the highest rate, it being left to the assessor in each case to decide whether a partnership exists or not from the papers or accounts produced by the assessee. While the liability for the income-tax payable on account of the profits of a firm or partnership will remain upon the partnership, in order to avoid unnecessary refunds departmental instructions will be issued that where individual partners file their statements of personal income at the same time as the statement of the partnership profits, the assessor will merely have to ascertain whether the whole of the partnership profits are accounted for in these personal statements in which event he would charge the partners direct at the appropriate rate. The liability of the partnership for the tax assessed on the partnership profits would however remain unless and until the tax assessed on the individual partners has been recovered from them.

The super-tax on unregistered firms it is proposed to abolish, and super-tax will then be levied on each individual partner on his total income. In order to provide, however, for the recovery of super-tax from the share of profits of partners in a firm who are not resident in British India, provision is made in clause 56 that the resident partners or representatives of such firms shall pay the super-tax due on any non-resident partner's share of the profits, and a similar provision is made in the same clause regarding payments to non-resident shareholders of a company who are liable to super-tax. This liability will merely attach to cases where the amount of profits or dividends payable to a non-resident partner or shareholder is in itself liable to super-tax on the assumption that it represents the whole income of such non-resident partner or shareholder. It does not appear feasible to insert any provision requiring the resident partner or representative of a firm to obtain from the non-resident partner a statement of any other income that may accrue to him in British India. In cases where there is reason to believe that there is such other income, it will be necessary to rely on the provisions of clauses 42 and 43 of the Bill.

8. Difficulties have been experienced regarding the distribution of the tax in cases where there has been a change in the proprietorship of a business or profession. In clause 27 it is proposed to remove these difficulties by providing that the liability for the tax based on the income of the preceding year attaches to the business or profession itself and that the new owners are liable for the tax even although they were not owners for the whole of the time during which the profits on which the assessment is made were earned. This will apply whether the business or profession is owned by a single individual or by partners or by a company.

Machinery of assessment.

9. The income-tax authorities under the present law are the "Chief Revenue Authority," the "Commissioner," and the "Collector," designations adopted at a time when the whole of the income-tax work was done by the ordinary revenue staff in addition to their other duties. Owing to the increased employment of a whole-time staff for income-tax work, the use of these designations has given rise to considerable confusion, and it is proposed in the Bill that the income-tax authorities should have a nomenclature distinct from that of the land-revenue authorities. Chapter II of the Bill prescribes that the head of the income-tax department of a province shall be known as the Commissioner of Income-tax, the appellate authority as the Assistant Commissioner of Income-tax, and the assessing authority as the Assessor. The appointment of the income-tax staff is under the present Act vested in Local Governments. Since under rule 3 read with item 52 of Schedule I of the Devolution Rules made under the Government of India Act, "matters pertaining to a Central subject in respect of which powers have been conferred by or under any law upon a Local Government" are a Provincial subject, no question can be asked or discussion raised regarding such staff in the Central Legislature, but only in the Legislative Council of the province concerned. As the whole cost of the income-tax staff will in future be met by the Government of India, it is obviously desirable that all questions regarding such expenditure should be ventilated in the Central Legislature. References to the powers of the Local Governments are therefore omitted from the Bill, except that clause 5 (2) provides that the Commissioner of Income-tax in each province shall be appointed by the Government of India after consideration of any representations made by the Local Government. While the appointment and dismissal of the rest of the staff is vested by clause 5 (3) of the Bill in the Commissioner of each province "subject to the control of the Governor General in Council", it is proposed to utilise the agency of the Local Government for the exercise of that control and to provide in the agency rules that such staff shall be appointed and dismissed by the Commissioner of Income-tax subject to the approval of the Local Government. Although the Local Governments will meet no share of the cost of the staff, the smooth and efficient working of the department will be a matter of no little concern to Local Governments; and it is considered that, though relieved of connection with the technical operations of the staff, they should have that measure of control which is indicated in the above proposals.

While the income-tax staff will as a rule be appointed in provincial cadres, there are certain classes of cases for which it may be advisable that assessments should be made by an all-India staff. Such for example are the cases of military officers and of officers of other departments serving directly under the Government of India who are liable to transfer throughout India. Suggestions have also been made that the assessment in special cases like railway companies might be made by an officer dealing with all such cases for the whole of India. In clause 5 (4) provision is made for the appointment of officers in such cases.

10. Hitherto, the making of rules under the Acts, the interpretation of such rules and the general administration of the Acts have been left to Local Governments. This has led to a diversity both in the provisions of the rules themselves and in the interpretation of those provisions, where similar, in different provinces, and clause 58 of the Bill therefore provides that all rules shall be made by the Government of India. Since the technical administration of the tax will be in the hands of the Government of India, clause 64 of the Bill provides that the Government of India may establish an authority to which it may delegate all or any of its powers under the Bill.

11. Under section 51 of the present Act a reference on a question of law may be made to the High Court only if the Chief Revenue Authority sees fit. The Chief Revenue Authority is not required to make any such reference on the application of an assessee if it is satisfied that the application is frivolous or that a reference is unnecessary. In clause 66 of the Bill it is proposed that the Commissioner of Income-tax should no longer have power to withhold a reference on these grounds, but should be required to state a case to the High Court on the application of an assessee. In order to provide against frivolous and unnecessary applications, the clause contains a provision that every such application shall be accompanied by a fee of Rs. 100. In order to safeguard the revenue, the clause further provides that the fact that a case has been stated to the High Court shall in no way stop the collection of the tax from the assessee. An application for such reference may only be made after an appeal to the appellate income-tax authority has been disposed of. The head of the income-tax department retains the existing power to state a case to the High Court on his own motion.

12. Clause 53 amplifies the provisions of section 42 of the present Act in order to make more stringent the provisions relating to the disclosure of particulars regarding income-tax assessments. The present Act merely penalises the disclosure by a public servant of particulars contained in any statement or return furnished under the Act. Clause 53 further penalises the disclosure of any particulars contained in any accounts or documents produced under the Act or in any evidence given or deposition made in the course of proceedings under the Act or in any assessment record, and debars the Courts from requiring public servants to produce income-tax records or to give evidence respecting the same.

Procedure in regard to assessments and refunds.

13. The only extension of the system of collection at the source (apart from the case mentioned in paragraph 7 above) is in connection with the tax on salaries. While the present Act makes it obligatory on persons paying "salaries" to the employees of Government, a local authority, a company or other public body or association to deduct income-tax from such salaries at the time of payment, private employers are not required to do so unless they have entered into an agreement with the income-tax authorities. Clauses 7 and 19 (2) of the Bill extend the statutory obligation to all private employers.

14. Clauses 23, 24, 29, 30 and 60 contain several amendments designed to simplify the procedure in connection with assessments. The present Act, for example, makes it obligatory on the Collector to call for accounts where he considers that the return made by an assessee is in any way incorrect even although he may not consider it necessary to call for any accounts and may wish to dispose of a case by a personal interview with the assessee or his representative. Further, the Collector is at present debarred from calling for accounts unless he first of all declares that a statement is incorrect or incomplete. Again, the Collector is compelled under the present Act to require the personal attendance of an assessee, while one section of the Act provides that an assessee may only be represented by a pleader before the Chief Revenue Authority if he does not appear in person. The Bill provides that the assessor shall not be required to call for accounts whether he considers it necessary or not, but may call for accounts whenever he considers it necessary, that an assessee shall not be required to attend in person or by a pleader, but may at any stage of the assessment proceedings either attend in person or be represented by a person duly authorised by him in writing.

15. Under the present Act a person who has failed to make a return or failed to comply with the terms of a notice under section 18 to produce accounts, has no power to appeal against an order of assessment unless he satisfies the appellate authority that he has not wilfully or knowingly failed to make a return or to comply with the terms of a notice. The result of this procedure is that the assessee has to go to the appellate authority and obtain an order for the re-opening of the case. In clauses 29 and 30 it is proposed to alter this procedure and to provide that the assessee in such cases may, within one month after the service on him of a notice of demand, go to the assessor direct and, if he satisfies him that he was prevented by sufficient cause from making a return, or that he did not have a reasonable opportunity to comply with the terms of a notice, the assessor may cancel the assessment and proceed to make a fresh assessment.

16. Under the provisions of the present Act the assessment or re-assessment of income which has escaped taxation or has been taxed at too low a rate, the correction of a mistake, or an application for a refund must be made within one year from the end of the year to which the claim relates. This period has been found to be insufficient, and it is proposed in clauses 34, 35 and 49 of the Bill to extend the period to three years.

17. In order to simplify the procedure in connection with refunds, clauses 19 (9) and 21 make it obligatory upon persons deducting income-tax from interest on securities to issue to all security holders and upon companies distributing dividends to issue to shareholders, a certificate specifying the amount of tax deducted from the interest or paid or payable on the profits of the company. Rules relating to refunds at present are made by Local Governments and apply only to the provinces in respect of which they have been made. Further, they usually provide that income tax may only be refunded in the district in which the tax was actually paid. As stated in paragraph 10, it is proposed that all rules should be made by the Government of India, and in the refund rules it is proposed to provide that an assessee on production of the certificate aforesaid will be entitled to get a refund from the assessor of the district in which he is assessed, or of the district in which he resides if he is not assessed.

Relief from double income-tax.

18. Clause 48 of the Bill contains a provision for relief from double income-tax. At a conference between representatives of the Home Government and of the Dominions and of India an agreement was arrived at to the following effect: That in respect of income taxed both in the United Kingdom and in India there should be deducted from the appropriate rate of the United Kingdom income-tax (including super-tax) the whole of the rate of the Indian income-tax charged in respect of the same income, subject to the limitation that in no case should the maximum rate of relief given by the United Kingdom exceed one-half of the rate of the United Kingdom income-tax (including super-tax) to which the individual tax-payer might be liable and that any further relief necessary in order to confer on the tax-payer relief amounting in all to the lower of the two taxes (United Kingdom and India) should be given by India. That is to say, the proposal is that where income is liable to taxation both in the United Kingdom and in India, it should pay only at the highest rate leviable in either country. These proposals have been accepted by the Government of the United Kingdom and are embodied in section 27 of the Finance Act of 1920. Under that provision a person whose income is assessed both in the United Kingdom and in India is entitled to claim from the authorities of the United Kingdom a refund or rebate of the rate levied in India up to one-half of the English rate. Clause 48 of the Bill, therefore, provides that where any further relief is to be given in order to secure that such a person shall not pay a higher rate than the highest rate in either country, such relief will be given by India, subject to the limitation that the relief given in India shall not exceed half of the rate of income-tax and super-tax combined. At present the Indian rates of income-tax and super-tax combined are less than half of the rates in the United Kingdom, and therefore no loss will at the outset be incurred by Indian revenues from this arrangement. Loss will only be incurred where, owing to any alteration in the rates, the Indian rate is more than half the English rate, and the loss would merely be the amount by which the Indian rate exceeds half the English rate.

19. The Bill contains a number of other alterations in and additions to the present law. These are, where comment appears to be necessary, discussed in the Notes on Clauses appended to this statement.

NOTES ON CLAUSES.

Clause 4 (2).—The tax has been evaded in cases of income arising or accruing out of British India and received in British India by bringing in the said income at intervals and claiming that as such income is not received in British India in the year in which it arises or accrues out of British India, it is, when brought into British India, not income but accumulated profits or savings or capital. This new sub-clause has been inserted to prevent such evasion.

Clause 4 (3).—Section 3(2) (vii) of the present Act (viz., 'Legacies') has been omitted from the Bill, as it has been claimed that annuities granted under a will are exempt under this sub-clause. Lump sum annuities are covered by sub-clause (vii) of the Bill. Sub-clause (ix) of section 3(2) of the present Act, (viz., 'Any perquisite or benefit which is neither money nor reasonably capable of being converted into money') has been omitted, as the existence of this provision makes it impossible under the present law to assess to income-tax rent-free residences in cases where the assessee has not the power to sub-let, while rent-free residences are liable to the tax where the assessee has the power to sub-let.

Clause 9.—A change is made in this clause for the purpose of providing for the assessment of premises let for business and also for the assessment of such premises as wharves, millyards, etc.

Clause 10 (2) (vi).—This clause provides that the rates of depreciation allowances approved of by the Government of India shall be fixed rates and not, as at present, maxima rates and shall apply to the whole of India. It further provides that depreciation at these rates shall be allowed every year when there are sufficient profits, and only the excess of the depreciation allowance over the profits shall be carried forward from year to year until absorbed, and that this practice must be followed whether the depreciation allowance is adjusted in the accounts of the assessee or not and irrespective of the amounts shown in the accounts.

Clause 16 (2).—This sub-clause and sub-clause (4) of clause 19 have been added in order to make it clear that where income-tax is deducted at the source, it is the gross amount of the income (including the tax deducted) which is to be taken into account in determining the rate at which an assessee should be liable to income-tax on the rest of his income and also his income for liability to super-tax.

Clause 19 (2).—An addition has been made here in order to allow of the rectification by the person deducting income-tax from salary of mistakes in any previous deduction.

Clause 31.—The words 'and fixing such time for payment as he thinks fit' in section 22 of the present Act have been omitted, as they have given rise to confusion. Clause 44 of the Bill gives power to the assessor to determine the dates for payment.

Clause 33.—The provision of section 24 of the Act have been amended in order to make it clear that the penalty imposed under this sub-clause is not income-tax.

Clause 34.—An amendment has been made in order to make it clear that all that the assessor is required to do within the statutory period is to institute proceedings for the assessment or re-assessment.

Clause 35.—Amendments have been made in order to allow the assessor to rectify mistakes of his own motion as well as on the application of the assessee, to provide that he shall rectify his mistake when it is brought to his notice by an assessee, and to make it clear that the word 'mistake' refers only to a mistake which is patent from the facts or documents which were before the assessor when he passed the original assessment order, and that this clause does not confer a general power of review or authorise any assessee to introduce new facts.

Clause 36.—This clause has been inserted, as it is proposed to eliminate fractions of an anna from public accounts.

Clause 38 (3).—This is a new provision empowering the assessor to require information to be given regarding specific payments shown in the accounts of an assessee where there is reason to believe that such payments will become liable to income-tax in the hands of the recipients.

Clause 42.—An addition has been made in sub-clause (1) in order to make it clear that a non-resident is liable to income tax on receipts from property and interest on securities, as well as on receipts from business, and also that in cases where a non-resident deals direct with separate agents of separate branches in British India, the head of the income-tax department of a province shall have power to require the accounts of all the different branches to be amalgamated in order to avoid a loss of revenue.

Clause 45.—Amendments have been made in order to differentiate between the power to impose and the power to collect a penalty and also in order to provide for the collection of income-tax by a separate income-tax agency, in the same way as municipal dues are collected, where a separate income-tax agency is entertained for this purpose and for the collection of income-tax through the revenue authorities in other cases.

Clause 47.—Changes have been made in sub-clause (2) of this clause for the purpose of making it clear that it is the amount of profits to which a partner is entitled, and not the amount of profits which he has actually removed from the possession of the firm which determines his personal liability to income-tax and his claim to a refund, while in sub-clause (3) an addition has been made to provide for the refund of income-tax to persons from whose salary income-tax has been deducted at too high a rate.

Clause 50 (d).—The provision in section 30 (d) of the present Act that a person who fails to attend when required by a notice under clause 24 commits an offence has been omitted.

Clause 52.—In view of the appointment of special income-tax staff, the power to sanction prosecutions has been removed from the assessor and conferred upon the appellate authority.

Chapter IX.—No change is proposed regarding the method of assessing and collecting super-tax other than the change in regard to unregistered firms referred to in paragraph 7 of the statement. The present Acts make the tax chargeable upon the "taxable income," but the definition of "taxable income" in section 3 of the Super-tax Act of 1920 is a somewhat confusing one and actually corresponds exactly to the definition of 'total income' in clause 16 of the Bill. It is therefore provided that the charge shall be on total income, and that the determination of total income for the purposes of income-tax shall be final and conclusive for the purposes of super-tax.

Clause 58.—Sub-clause (d) of section 43 (2) of the present Act which provides for rules being made to "provide for a system of composition of assessments and prescribe the conditions under which the assessor may enter into compositions with assessees as to their assessment" has been omitted as unnecessary.

Clause 62.—A slight change has been made in order to make it clear that a notice may be served in any of the manners provided for in the Code of Civil Procedure for the service of a summons.

Clause 63.—This clause has been slightly amplified in order to reproduce the provisions in section 2 (5) of the present Act as to the place at which an assessee shall be assessed, and also in order to show that the reference to the Government of India is not obligatory under this clause, but need only be made where the heads of the department in the different provinces concerned are unable to come to an agreement.

Sub-clause (4) has been inserted in order to permit of inquiries being made into the profits of a branch business by the assessor of the place in which the branch is situated.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 hours on Wednesday, the 21st September 1921, based on the Indian Daily Weather Reports of the period.

1. The rainfall of the week has been dominated by a depression which formed in the Bay. It crossed the coast near Waltair and, passing over the southwest of the Central Provinces, the west of Central India and the east of Rajputana, has this morning reached the neighbourhood of Agra. It has given abundant rain in the region from Orissa to Gujarat as well as in Rajputana, the southeast Punjab and the west of the United Provinces. A western disturbance reinforced the depression from the Bay and contributed to the rainfall in northwest India. The distribution of rainfall was so completely controlled by the Bay depression that a large part of northeast India and of the south of the Peninsula had much less than half their usual amount.

2. Burma.—Nearly general rain fell in Lower Burma throughout the week; in Upper Burma rainfall was local on the 16th, 18th, 19th and 20th, and occurred at a few stations on two other days.

Northeast India, including Orissa.—In Orissa rainfall was nearly general on the 15th and 16th, and occurred locally or at a few stations on the remaining days. There was local rain in Assam on the 18th, 19th and 20th, in Bengal on the 16th, 17th and 18th, and in Chota Nagpur and Bihar on the 14th ; a few falls occurred on the remaining days in Assam, on five other days in Chota Nagpur, on three other days in Bengal, and on two other days in Bihar.

The United Provinces, Central India and the Central Provinces.—Nearly general rain fell in the United Provinces West on the 20th, in Central India West on the 17th, 19th and 20th, in Central India East on the 14th, in the Central Provinces West on the 17th and 18th, and in the Central Provinces East on the 14th, 16th and 17th; rainfall occurred locally or at a few stations during the rest of the week in the Central Provinces West, on five other days in the west of the United Provinces, on three other days in Central India West and in the Central Provinces East, and on one other day in Central India East. Rain fell locally in the United Provinces East on the 14th, 15th, 19th and 20th.

Northwest India.—There was nearly general rain in Gujarat and Rajputana East on the 19th ; rain fell locally or at a few stations during the rest of the week in the former area and on three other days in the latter. Rainfall was local in the east and north Punjab on the 15th and 20th, and in Kashmir on the 18th ; a few falls occurred on one other day in the former area and on two other days in the latter. The week was rainless in the southwest Punjab, Sind and Baluchistan, while in the North-West Frontier Province, Parachinar recorded rain on three days, the aggregate amount being 0·93″.

The Peninsula.—Nearly general rain fell in the Konkan except on the 20th, in Malabar and the Bombay Deccan on the 17th and 18th, in Hyderabad North on the 16th, 17th and 18th, in Hyderabad South on the 14th, 16th and 17th, in Mysore on the 14th and 17th in the Madras Deccan on the 14th, and on the north Madras coast between the 14th and 17th; there were local or individual falls during the rest of the week in the Konkan and Malabar, on four other days in Mysore, and on three other days in the Bombay Deccan and in Hyderabad South, and on two other days in Hyderabad North and the Madras Deccan, and on the north Madras coast. In Madras Southeast rain was limited to three light falls in Madras.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday, 17th September, 1921.

Burma.—The rainfall during the week was general in Lower Burma. In Upper Burma no rain fell in Thayetmyo, Pakokku, Lower Chindwin, Kyaukse, Meiktila and Myingyan but elsewhere scanty rain was received. Transplanting of the main rice crop is approaching completion in Lower Burma and is progressing in Upper Burma. Cultivation of late sesamum and beans is proceeding normally and reaping of early sesamum and maize is in progress. Standing crops are good in Lower Burma and generally fair in Upper Burma. More rain is still needed in the dry zone. Cattle are generally healthy. The price of unhusked rice was Rs. 260 and of white rice (specials) Rs. 645 per hundred baskets.

Assam.—The weather is seasonable and favourable. Harvesting of autumn rice and jute and plucking of tea continue. Transplanting of winter rice has been nearly finished. Ploughing of land for pulses has begun. The outturn and prospects of crops are fair. Cattle disease is reported from two districts. The price of common rice is practically unchanged.

Bengal.—The rainfall was heavy in Northern Bengal and generally light to moderate elsewhere. Transplantation of winter paddy and harvesting of autumn paddy and jute have been nearly completed. Prospects of standing crops are generally favourable. The average price of common rice has fallen by 0·5 per cent.

Bihar and Orissa.—The rainfall during the week was general over the Province, the fall being heavy in the Tirhut division and Shahabad and in parts of Patna, Gaya, Monghyr, Bhagalpur, Purnea and the Santal Parganas and light to moderate in Chota Nagpur and Orissa. Transplantation of winter paddy has been nearly completed. Harvesting of the early bhadoi crops is going on. Standing crops are doing well but some damage has been done to bhadoi crops by heavy rain in Muzaffarpur and to aghani paddy by floods in Darbhanga. Damage by high floods, the extent of which is as yet unascertained, is reported from Saran. 7,701 persons received gratuitous relief in Puri (including 192 persons on relief from the District Charitable Fund) and 45 persons in Cuttack. The price of common rice has risen in five districts, fallen in seven and remained stationary in the remainder. The average price of local common rice at headquarters was 6·04 seers a rupee against 5·18 seers in the preceding week and that of maize was 9·27 seers against 7·96 seers in the preceding week. Cattle disease is reported from thirteen districts. The condition of standing crops in the Feudatory States of Orissa and Chota Nagpur is good.

United Provinces.—The rainfall was again general, though excessive in some districts causing slight damage to crops. Preparation of land for spring crops and harvesting of millets continue. Standing crops are doing well. Prospects are good. The condition of agricultural stock is satisfactory but cattle disease still exists. Fodder, water and market supplies are sufficient. Prices are almost stationary.

The weekly report on scarcity in Garhwal, Almora and Mirzapur not received.

Punjab.—Light showers fell only in a few reporting districts and were useful for standing autumn crops. More rain is wanted for standing crops and for spring sowings. The condition of sugarcane, cotton and other autumn crops is generally normal. Sowings of gram, toria taramira and vegetables continue in parts of a few districts. Dry fodder is generally scarce. Green grass chari and juar are available. Cattle are generally in good condition. Water is sufficient. Prices are generally stationary. They are generally above scarcity rates. No test work was opened during the week. Stocks of food grains are insufficient except in a few districts. Price of wheat:—Ambala 4¼, Ferozepore 3¾, Lahore 4¼, Lyallpur 4, and Rawalpindi 4 seers per rupee.

North-West Frontier Province.—Light showers fell in one tahsil. Rapeseed, vegetables and fodder crops are being sown. The condition of standing crops is promising. Picking of cotton is in progress in one district. Prices of food grains are dangerously high but falling slightly in Peshawar. Wheat is selling at Peshawar at 4¾ seers and in Dera Ismail Khan at 3 $\frac{7}{16}$ seers per rupee.

Jammu.—Slight rain fell during the week. Prices are rising. Fodder is sufficient in certain tracts.

Kashmir.—It rained in the Muzaffarabad district and in part of the Valley. Harvesting of autumn crops is in progress. No disease is reported in the Valley but cholera in a mild form and malaria prevail in the Muzaffarabad district.

Baluchistan.—No rain fell during the week except a few showers in the Duki tahsil and in the Sherani country. Rain is badly needed for khushkaba crops. Irrigated crops are in good condition. Economic conditions are still the same as prices are abnormally high. Grazing is sufficient and the condition of cattle is good. There is considerable suffering, however, among the poorer classes in Barkhan where many persons are reported subsisting on roots, etc. There were 656 men employed on relief works in the Chaman and Pishin sub-divisions, 850 in Musakhel and 227 on Nushki-Galangur road. Bugti kitchen had 825 inmates and Musakhel kitchen 517. The number of persons receiving gratuitous relief in Lower Zhob was 358, in the Sherani country 13 and in Upper Zhob 11. Cholera—Quetta town 4 cases 4 deaths and the neighbourhood 16 cases 16 deaths. Gulistan is now free from cholera. Prices of staple grain :—Quetta 3¼ seers, Sibi 3⅞ seers, Loralai 3⅝ seers, Fort Sandeman 2⅞ seers and Nushki 4⅞ seers per rupee.

Rajputana.—The rainfall during the week was general throughout Rajputana and Ajmer-Merwara, except in the Jaisalmer and Marwar States. The maximum fall was 4 inches 77 cents in Dag in the Jhalawar State. Weeding continues. Standing crops are in good condition. Fodder and water are sufficient. Cattle disease exists in Tonk and Kishengarh State. Cholera exists in parts of Kotah. Prices are falling in Partabgarh.

Central India.—The rainfall during the week was general. It was partial in Malwa and insufficient in Jaora. Weeding continues Land is being prepared for spring crops. The condition of standing crops and of agricultural stock is fair to good. Fodder is sufficient and improving in Rampura-Bhampura. Prices are high.

The weekly report on famine in Rewa is as follows :—The number of persons in receipt of gratuitous relief in Deosar was 1,637. Poorhouses had 691 inmates.

Gwalior.—The rainfall during the week was sufficient. The condition of standing crops is good. Harvesting of maize has commenced in places. Agricultural stock is fairly healthy. Prices of food grains continue to be high.

Central Provinces.—The weather has been cloudy and rainy. Saugar, Seoni, Narsinghpur and Chhindwara had light showers of rain not exceeding 89 cents. Elsewhere moderate to heavy rain was received, the heaviest quantity registered being 8 inches at Yeotmal. A break is urgently needed in Nimar, Jubbulpur, Betul, Hoshangabad, Amraoti, and the Vindhyan districts. Excessive rain and insect pests slightly damaged the crops in parts of Damoh, Nimar, Chanda, Chhindwara, Raipur and Amraoti. The condition of crops is good otherwise and prospects are bright. Fodder and water are ample. Agricultural stock is generally in good condition. Prices fell in Raipur by 1¼ seers per rupee. Elsewhere prices remained steady or fluctuated slightly.

Feudatory States.—The rainfall was sufficient. Weeding and thinning of rice are in progress.

The weekly report on famine and scarcity is as follows :—The rainfall varying from 1 to 7 inches was general during the week in Jubbulpur, Chattisgarh and Nagpur divisions. Elsewhere light showers were received. A break is required in the north of the Province where some damage from excessive rainfall is reported. Otherwise prospects are excellent as before. The number of persons on relief works fell from 16,621 to 14,132 and the number of persons in receipt of gratuitous relief from 26,406 to 21,747. Gratuitous relief has now been closed in all except in six districts where it continues on a limited scale or to kotwars. The Public health is fair except for the prevalence of malarial fever. Crime is decreasing in Mandla and is normal elsewhere. Prices are generally stationary.

Bombay.—The rainfall during the week was heavy in parts of Gujarat, good in the Konkan, parts of the West Deccan and the Karnatak and insufficient in parts of the East Deccan, Bijapur and Kolhapur where more rain is needed for standing crops and for the sowing of spring crops. Sowing of autumn crops is nearing completion. Transplantation continues. Standing crops have been damaged slightly by excessive moisture in parts of Gujarat and are suffering for want of rain in parts of the West Deccan, Dharwar and Bijapur. They have been damaged by rats in parts of Karachi. The fodder supply is generally sufficient. Drinking water is adequate. Water for irrigation is sufficient. Cattle are in good condition. Prices are almost stationary.

The weekly report on famine and scarcity is as follows:—Distress continues to decrease as labourers get sufficient employment except in parts of Ahmednagar, Sholapur and Bijapur where distress is being again felt which is due to withholding of rain. Five works are in progress in Bijapur and one in Ahmednagar. Gratuitous relief to the decrepit and the needy and dole to inferior village servants continue. Number on relief :—Workers—Ahmednagar 2,930. Bijapur 4,296 ; dependants —Ahmednagar 1,416 ; gratuitous—Sholapur 3,667, Bijapur 3,982 and Belgaum 3,012. The condition of the people on works and in receipt of dole is good.

Hyderabad.—The rainfall during the week was nearly general but insufficient in the Aurangabad, Bir, Nander, Gulbarga, Raichur and Usmanabad districts. Medak Nalgonda, Mahbubnagar and Warangal districts received more than 2 inches. The average fall for the Dominions was 1·11 inches. Autumn crops are withering in the Aurangabad, Bir, Usmanabad and Raichur districts. Elsewhere they have improved by the week's rain. Harvesting has begun in parts. The early rice crop is fair and is being irrigated. Sowing for spring crops has commenced in parts. Pasture is sufficient The water supply is adequate for drinking and irrigation purposes except in parts of the Raichur and Usmanabad districts. The condition of agricultural stock is generally good. Cattle disease is reported in parts of the Parbhani district. Prices of food grains continue to be high and almost stationary. Juar is selling at 3 seers per rupee in the Gulbarga, Bidar and Mahbubnagar districts.

The weekly report on famine for the week ending 1st September is as follows:—The rainfall during the week was scanty in some parts of affected district. Relief works continue. The number of persons on relief is decreasing. Prices of foodgrains continue to be high, Juar is selling at 3½ to 6 seers and rice at 2½ to 4½ seers per rupee. Number on relief :—Works 4,000, gratuitous 5,000, total 9,000.

Mysore.—The rainfall during the week was light to fair. Prices of food grains are generally steady. Markets are well supplied. Standing crops are in fair condition. Paddy is being sown. Weeding and transplanting are in progress in parts. Prospects of the season are fair but more rain is needed in the Tumkur, Hassah, Kudur, Shimoga and Chitaldrug districts. Cattle are generally healthy. Water and fodder are available.

Coorg.—The rainfall during the week was moderate. Transplanting of rice is almost over. Water and fodder for cattle are available. Cattle are generally healthy. The public health is fair. Prices of food grains are high.

Madras.—The rainfall during the week was moderate to very heavy in the Circars and Cochin, light or nil in the South except Tanjore and Travancore and fair to moderate elsewhere. Standing crops are fair generally but are withering and require more rain in parts of the Deccan except Cuddapah and Madura. The outturn of the harvested paddy and dry crops in parts of most districts is generally fair. Sowing of paddy and dry crops is proceeding in most districts. The condition of cattle is good. Water is sufficient except in parts. Pasture and fodder are sufficient generally. Prices are steady. Prospects are improving in Kurnool and are fair elsewhere. Test works are in progress in Kurnool with an attendance of 2,423 persons and gratuitous relief was given to 288.

The weekly report on famine in Bellary and Anantapur is as follows:—Four relief works are in progress in Bellary and six in Anantapur. One test work has been opened in Bellary. Distress is increasing. Coolie classes are mostly affected also small agriculturists in Anantapur. People are freely resorting to works. There is no marked foreign influx. The condition of the people on relief and the public health are generally fair. No emaciation is noticeable. Relief measures are adequate. No special relief to weavers and artisans is necessary now. Cooked food and grain doles are distributed by private charity in Bellary. State loans are being advanced. The price of cholam in Bellary was 6·2 and in Anantapur 6·1 seers per rupee. Number on relief:—Bellary—test work, 338, relief works 15,569, gratuitous, 3,618 ; total 19,525 ; Anantapur—works 10,649, gratuitous 4,712 ; total 15,361,

No. 2165.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

HOME DEPARTMENT.

(ESTABLISHMENTS.)

Simla, the 15th September 1921.

RESOLUTION.

In the Home Department Resolution, no. 1099, dated the 8th August 1919, certain concessions were granted in the matter of securing civil employment under Government to those who had rendered service in connection with the prosecution of the war. Since then the Governor-General in Council has had under consideration the question of granting concessions in respect of pensions to such persons as have rendered military service during the war, are employed in a civil department of Government and are not eligible for the concessions recently sanctioned for the candidates for various Imperial services and Departments who rendered service with His Majesty's forces during the war.

2. Any military service rendered with permanent units, which is pensionable under military rules but which terminates before a pension has been earned in respect of it, can be allowed to count, when followed by service qualifying for civil pension as part of such service under the orders contained in the Secretary of State's despatch no. 12-Financial, dated the 3rd February 1921; but service with temporary units, as also service rendered in the British Army elsewhere than in India, does not count. In order to meet cases of this kind, His Excellency in Council, with the approval of the Secretary of State in Council, is pleased to announce that civil employees who, prior to their civil employment, have rendered satisfactory paid military service in the Great War, which does not ordinarily qualify for a service pension under military rules, shall be allowed to count such military service for the purpose of civil pension, subject to the following general principles being observed :—

(1) Completed years of military service shall be allowed to count up to a maximum of four years.

(2) In the case of services in which a minimum age is fixed for recruitment no military service rendered below that age shall be allowed to count for pension.

(3) The addition of war service shall not be included in total service under Article 408 of the Civil Service Regulations for the purpose of leave counting as service for pension, nor allowed in addition to the concession in Article 403 or 404-A, Civil Service Regulations, but any Government servant who may be entitled to the concessions permissible under those Articles and to the concessions announced in this Resolution, will be allowed to select whichever is more favourable.

(4) The scope of the concession shall be confined to an employee who retires on a superannuation or retiring pension.

(5) British and Indian military service shall be allowed to count alike for pension and no contribution towards, or share of, a pension earned as a result of this concession shall be claimed from the Home Government.

(6) No refund of military bonus or gratuity shall be demanded from the employee.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to all local Governments and Administrations, the several Departments of the Government of India (including the Financial Adviser, Military Finance), and the offices subordinate to this Department for information and guidance.

ORDERED also that it be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India for general information.

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE.

TARIFF VALUATION OF SUGAR.

In supersession of Customs Circular No. V of 1911 it has been decided that, for the purpose of fixing the Tariff Valuation of Sugar imported into India, "Java 23 Dutch Standard and above" should be accepted as the standard grade by reference to which the other grades will receive their values by means of fixed margins, namely :—

Beet crystals	To be valued at the same rate as Java 23 D. S. and above.
Sugar, crystallised and soft, from Mauritius	Re. 1-8 lower.
Java 16 to 22 Dutch Standard	Rs. 2 „
Java 15 Dutch Standard and under	Rs. 2-8 „
Japanese and Formosan crystals	Rs. 2 higher.
China crystals	Rs. 2 „
Egyptian crystals	Re. 1 „

Returns have been received from October 1920 and the average value of "Java 23 Dutch Standard and above" for the eleven months October, 1920 to August, 1921, is notified below :—

Description of sugar.	Imported during the month of August, 1921.		Imported since 1st October, 1920.
	Quantity.	Average net value per cwt.	Quantity.	Average net value per cwt.
	Cwt.	Rs. A.	Cwt.	Rs. A.
Java 23 Dutch Standard and above	1,482,371	21 4	6,422,618	27 12

The tariff valuation of Sugar for each calendar year is fixed on the average net market price ruling during the previous twelve months ending September. The above statistics are published in order to enable merchants to determine the probable net market price for the next calendar year.
